BRAMPTON, ONT.

Weather conditions have changed at last, and the bright days we are now having ought to bring about a satisfactory condition of things for the Easter season. Lilies appear to be in great demand, but the crop is far shorter this year than usual. Many had to be thrown out in the earlier stages of their growth.

We understand that there is a movement on foot to endeavor to do away with the handling of flowers by the drug stores of Toronto. The reasons advanced by those who have charge of this movement have not been made quite clear. It is doubtful whether this branch of trade—which seems to have been fostered by most of the growers, for reasons that must be well known to every florist—will allow itself to be wiped out of existence unless some good remedy is offered by those who are interesting themselves to bring about a change.

The coal situation is now so relieved that there is little likelihood of any serious drawback to any of the growers this season, at least. Just as an example of the kind of experience which has not been uncommon this winter, we might mention that a car of coal shipped exactly three months ago from the mines in West Virginia, reached Brampton this week.

The large carnation section at the Dale Estate has had its dividing partition taken down, and is now one extensive area of carnations in full bloom. No less than fourteen houses, 500 feet long, are devoted to this particular flower.

The demand for vegetables is likely to be such this year that in all probability a large amount of space will be devoted to three or four different kinds, which will be suitable for market next winter. W. G. P.

NEW LONDON, CONN.

At the recent meeting of the New London Horticultural Society P. J. Van Baarda, of Boston, gave a most interesting talk on spring-flowering bulbs. This society is giving a series of lectures, by both local and out-of-town speakers, and it is gratifying to see the keen interest the public takes in the affairs of the society. The meetings are held in the council chamber of the Municipal building and members bring their choicest stock for exhibition.

Thomas Hatton attended the recent Davey tree convention at Kent, O.

New London now has three well equipped stores to take care of the needs of a flower-loving public.

James D. Rough, formerly of Boston, recently was elected president of the New London Horticultural Society. R.

Morris, Ill.—Two greenhouses operated here by T. Nelson will be torn down to make room for three larger and better equipped ones. The largest, 32x114, will be planted to roses. The remaining two will be 32x72 and 10x60.

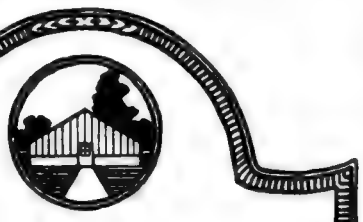
MOTT-LY MUSINGS.



T. J. Opperman, of Camp Hill, Pa., believes this spring will offer a big opportunity to the raiser of vegetable plants. He intends to double his usual extensive sowing. The retail trade is steadily increasing; a show house and salesroom are in perspective.

Manager Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., was using the dictaphone. "Finest thing of its kind," he observed, "but it lacks one feature to make it perfect, facial expression. Then it would be more interesting to our correspondents and ourselves in many respects." Secretary Clarke is putting "pep" into the company's consignors to grow carnations similar to those he saw at Indianapolis.

D. W. Davis, of Berwick, Pa., who some two years ago closed his downtown store, has opened again with a thoroughly up-to-date place in the center of town. Increase of business is the chief reason. "Just found we could not get along well without the store," said Mr. Davis.

Benjamin Dorrance, of Dorranceton, Pa., is wintering in Florida. Miss Dorrance reports exceptionally good business. The rose crops are fine and there are excellent prospects. Hybrid teas flourish, especially Sunburst, Ophelia, White Killarney and Hoosier Beauty, the latter variety doing so well that the planting will be double. It is predicted that there will be somewhat of a scarcity of blooms to exhibit at the March show at Philadelphia.

A curiosity was noted in the beds on the public square at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. There was scarlet ruscus; grafted on mountain laurel? W. M.

Service

Metropolitan Greenhouse Service
the utmost in efficiency and—results

No matter what the initial cost of a greenhouse amounts to, it is in every instance a good investment, provided the revenue results are proportionate, and the cost of maintenance remains at a minimum. But no matter how little the initial cost, it is far too much for unsatisfactory returns, with constantly increasing upkeep and repair expenses.

Therefore, as the quality of materials used in the construction of all greenhouses is, after all, a matter of contract specifications, this organization bases its claims upon the high character of its labor and its constant endeavor to render a service which is at all times the utmost in efficiency, economy and results.

The reliability of this organization has been conclusively proven by the fact that it has not merely sustained, but heightened its prestige for so long a period.

The Market.

Business last week was rushing from start to finish. Not only was funeral work heavy, but the call for flowers for other purposes also was unusually large, and potted stock also had a good demand. St. Patrick's day business was all that any of the florists could expect. Few green carnations were left over.

Bulbous stock is plentiful. Some well-grown plants of rhododendrons, wistarias, lilacs and rambler roses have made their appearance and sell fairly well.

When the ground hog saw his shadow February 2 and crawled back to his hole to hibernate for another six weeks, by that he forecasted six weeks more of winter, and the old boy did not miss it far, as the weather during the last six weeks proves. The six weeks were up last week, thanks be!

Various Notes.

George Suris, who has been bothered with rheumatism off and on all winter, is greatly improved.

John Bath reports the best season on record. St. Patrick's day business with him was most satisfactory.

The Herman Bros. Co. is having a large run on ferns and sweet peas. The peas are as fine as any we have seen for some time, the stems averaging eighteen to twenty-two inches in length. The demand is greater than the output. The firm intends to almost double the bench space devoted to Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia.

Ex-president MacRorie, of the S. A. F., stopped off in this city last week to visit some of the florists. He was on his way to New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and was accompanied from here by Treasurer J. J. Hess.

The store of Hess & Swoboda had a narrow escape from ruin by fire one night last week when a fire started in a moving picture theater next door. There was a high wind, but the fire department soon had the blaze under control.

ANALYSIS OF WATER.

As I intend to erect greenhouses at Eagle Grove, Ia., I have taken the precaution to obtain a chemical analysis of the city water there. The figures submitted by the analyst are as follows:

Mineral Solids—	Grains per Gal.
Silica	.198
Oxides of iron and aluminum	.912
Carbonate of lime	12.848
Sulphate of lime	none
Carbonate of magnesia	7.185
Sodium and potassium sulphate	2.859
Sodium and potassium chlorides	1.530
Sodium and potassium carbonates	2.353
Loss, etc.	.264
Total mineral solids	28.149
Organic matter	trace

Total solids, 4.02 pounds per thousand gallons.

Please state whether this water, as indicated by the analysis, will be suitable for watering plants.

J. B.—Minn.

From the foregoing analysis it would appear that about two-thirds of the solids contained in the water are composed of carbonates of lime and magnesia. While some plants prefer to grow in soils that are slightly acid, it is not likely that any greenhouse plants would be injured by the comparatively small amount of lime and magnesia contained in the water, and for most plants it would be decidedly beneficial.

About one-fourth of the solids in the water is made up of sulphates, chlorides and carbonates of sodium and potassium, but the relative amounts of sodium and potassium are not given. When present in large amounts, the chlorides—and particularly the chloride of sodium, or common salt—are decidedly injurious to plants and the same holds true to a somewhat smaller degree with the sulphates of those elements, but there is only about one pound of the sodium and potassium salts in 1,000 gallons and this is not likely to do any harm. In fact, when applied in the usual amounts, water containing sulphate, chloride and carbonate of potassium would have some value in furnishing potassium, which is needed for the growth of all plants. I presume, however, that, as is generally the case, the amount of sodium is much greater than that of potassium, so that the value of the water for supplying potassium need not be considered.

I would consider the water safe to use in a greenhouse. T.

"Signed Lumber is Safe Lumber."

It's a pretty good idea (now that the lumber mills in the Southern Cypress Mfrs.' Assn. are IDENTIFYING EVERY CYPRESS BOARD THEY SAW) TO MENTION TO YOUR LUMBER DEALER, CONTRACTOR OR CARPENTER—and to ASK YOUR ARCHITECT to SPECIFY—that YOUR CYPRESS MUST BE

"TIDEWATER" CYPRESS IDENTIFIED BY THIS TRADE-MARK

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFFICE

When a manufacturer places his imprint indelibly upon his product it evidences to the consumer two factors of value which, together, are the sum total of all any buyer wants; these factors are integrity of purpose and complete responsibility on the part of the maker of the desired commodity.

The above legally registered "Tidewater Cypress" trade-mark is now YOUR INSURANCE POLICY of LUMBER QUALITY.

It appears stamped mechanically into the end of EVERY board and timber of

CYPRESS "THE WOOD ETERNAL."

Thoroughly dependable Cypress Flooring, Siding, Moulding and Shingles, etc., which come in bundles, bear the same mark on EVERY BUNDLE.

The legal right to apply this epoch-making symbol of STRICT RESPONSIBILITY IN LUMBER MAKING AND SELLING is restricted to those Cypress mills which, by their membership in the Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association, attest their devotion to its Principles of SERVICE to the CONSUMER. Only mills cutting "Tidewater" Cypress are eligible for membership. (Cypress which grows too far inland is not equally noted for the "Eternal," or decay-resisting, quality.) Only mills which subscribe to the Association's standard of scrupulous care in Methods of MANUFACTURE, INTEGRITY OF GRADING and ACCURACY OF COUNT can belong to the Association. These responsible mills the Association now licenses to CERTIFY THEIR CYPRESS by applying the registered trade-mark with their identifying number inserted.

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFFICE

BY THIS MARK YOU KNOW THAT IT'S CYPRESS, "THE WOOD ETERNAL," AND WORTHY OF YOUR FAITH. IT IS WELL TO INSIST ON SEEING THIS TRADE-MARK ON EVERY BOARD OFFERED AS "CYPRESS."

To be confidential with you—here's a bit of history—

—a bit of history that tells in deeds much better than we can tell in words that the AGMCO has made, and is making, good.

On the first day of November, 1915, a modest little office was opened in the Masonic Temple, Chicago, "just around the corner from the wholesale flower market," by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., and a new business was launched on the commercial sea. There was no blare and flourish of trumpets at this launching, but there was the quiet force of a set purpose—the purpose to build better greenhouses, super-greenhouses, casting aside all useless patterns and outworn methods of construction and holding fast to those things that are good and true.

Since that time many moons have passed, and the quiet force of a strong purpose has carried the fame of the AGMCO into every, even the remotest, corner of the greenhouse world. And the result? The result has far surpassed the wildest hope of the most Utopian dreamer; for in the bright light of AGMCO perfection of design, of service, of workmanship, the "average job" has faded away into the gloomy recesses of limbo, never to return again.

You'd be surprised at the amazing amount of work we have accomplished and the ground we have covered. Why, you can't think of a modern type of house we haven't built. There are the three big 60 x 500 footers for Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Illinois; the nine 44 x 550 foot giants for the Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, Illinois; Ignaz Schwinn's curved eave, flat rafter leanto conservatory, 12 x 17 feet, in Chicago; the classic palm house, 36 x 45 feet, without columns, erected for Carl Erickson in Princeton, Illinois; the four houses, 36 x 300 feet, for Daut Brothers, Decatur, Illinois; the two improved type AGMCO pipe frame houses, 36 x 300 feet, for the W. A. Rowe Floral Company, Kirkwood, Mo., and three pipe frame houses, 16 x 115 feet, for Sam Pearce, of Chicago. Nor are these by any means all—they but serve to give you an idea of the scope of the AGMCO work.

These things are not said boastingly—"but out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," and we are fain to let those open-minded members of the trade, who seeking for worth found it and seized it, know that we appreciate to the fullest possible degree the courtesies they have shown us in this, our infancy, and the part they have played in helping us to make good.

You can't be fair to yourself without being fair to us.

Range of Greenhouses Furnished for Fred J. Benthey, New Castle, Ind.

The big cyclone that struck New Castle, Ind., March 11, wrecked a large part of the Fred J. Benthey range of glass.

It took Mr. Benthey just about two minutes to make up his mind to rebuild, and not much longer to decide to have us furnish the material.

Mr. Benthey knew that we had the necessary materials on hand, that we had the shipping facilities and that our goods were right in every way. He could depend upon us to take care of him.

We are always at your service and you can always depend on us.

Just give us a trial, we can show you.

Other Flower Show Echoes or What Was Heard Over a Lunch Table Last Week at the Biltmore

THERE were six of us—Mr. Bohannon, of Bohannon Fl. Co., Chicago; Mr. Brown, of J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland; Mr. Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit; Mr. Max Schling, New York; Mr. Arthur Langhans, of Wheeling, W. Va., and our company representative.

We were there as Max Schling's guests to talk over the question of forming a definite organization of one or two retail florists from each state, with the idea of doing some national advertising to broaden the sale of flowers. Also with the aim of an intimate co-operative service between members.

After the organization business was over, the talk turned towards business methods.

Already ads have been issued reaching over six million readers.

Mr. Bohannon, of Chicago, said that with every basket of flowers they sent out, a card was enclosed stating that "if the flowers were not fresh and entirely satisfactory when received, to immediately let them know, and a fresh lot would promptly be sent."

Mr. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, said he didn't like that word "if." It at once put a person in a needlessly critical state of mind. Their method was to enclose a card saying: "These flowers are fresh. If not satisfactory, let us know at once."

Mr. Breitmeyer then spoke up in his quiet, sunny way, carrying indisputable convincement with it: "I don't care what you print on your cards, boys,—the thing is to make good, and do it promptly and cheerfully."

Mr. Schling mentioned that when he was asked to refill a basket that was not fresh and clean, or the color scheme out of all harmony with the flowers, he first had it understood that his name-card would not accompany it. Said he could not afford to have his reputation risked.

Right then and there I would like to have spoken up and said that for exactly the same reason Lord & Burnham often refuse to build certain houses, certain ways, for possible customers. We simply cannot afford to build houses we know are not practical. Neither will we lower quality to cut down costs to meet competition.

The only way we meet competition is in giving a man a better house for his money.

If you want to talk over that kind of a house, say when and where, and we'll be there.

Crepe-Wood

IT LASTS A SEASON

The Newest Florists' Accessory

A Waterproof Covering for Flower Pots and Flower Boxes. Manufactured from wood and can be cut with shears. Crepe-wood is an ideal covering for potted plants and boxes. It is manufactured from thin sheets of veneer and reinforced with strong thread seams. It stands the water and does not become mushy and soiled like paper. For window decorations and display stands it is especially suited, as the plants may be sprinkled with a can or hose without removing the covering.

HOW TO MAKE A FLOWER BOX

Simply unroll around any old box and tack in position. A fiber ribbon tied around the sides of the box adds to the appearance. Lath, stained dark green and tacked on, to create a paneled effect, makes a permanent flower box which may be used outdoors if desired. Potted plants may be used in the box for display if desired.

FOR FLOWER POTS AND POTTED PLANTS

Crepe-wood is tied around the pot with a ribbon, cord or wire. Try it in your window or display stand. Don't be afraid to wet it.

SPENCER SWEET PEAS

New Giant Waved or Spencer SWEET PEAS

There is no other flower that ranks greater in importance to the florist than Sweet Peas. Since the introduction of Countess Spencer some years ago, they have steadily grown in favor. The florist may obtain any of his favorite colors of the Grandiflora type in the Spencers.

Flowers gigantic in size (often 2 inches in diameter), stems stiff, 12 to 15 inches long; the foliage and flower extraordinary in appearance.

"Hamburg Late White" CHRYSANTHEMUM

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America

Picture was taken December 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean, white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud as the later buds come somewhat fuller. By selecting late buds flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April, 1917, delivery and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Rooted Cuttings, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000; 2-in. pots, $15 per 100, $125 per 1000

Easter Stock, 1917

On time and in fine shape. Can ship any time, and it would be to your advantage, if you have glass, to have stock shipped a week or two before Easter, as there is much less danger of bruising the buds on blooming stock. Then too, it will make a much better appearance developing after shipment.

State whether to be in or out of pots. Three, four, five and six-inch stock, grown in pots, can be shipped in paper pots and save express. Azaleas, large Roses and Hydrangeas must be left in pots.

Packing will be charged at cost.

BAUR & STEINKAMP, Carnation Breeders Indianapolis, Indiana

Announcement of Dorner's Novelties for 1918

If you are interested in something new, of greater than ordinary merit, give this more than your passing glance.

LADDIE

New Carnation, "Laddie"

Color, a warm rose salmon-pink. Flowers of largest size, average three and one-half inches in diameter when at proper stage to cut, and which develop to four and one-half inches on the plants or in water. Undoubtedly the coming fancy carnation to grow. The keeping qualities are beyond question far ahead of any carnation yet produced, being superior to PINK DELIGHT, from which as a seedling it inherited this excellent quality. The growth is good and clean, makes large plants which quickly throw strong, stiff flowering shoots. The calyx is all that can be desired. An early and prolific producer.

LADDIE won the DORNER MEMORIAL MEDAL at Indianapolis, January 31, 1917. Certificated by the Boston Horticultural Society in the same month, and has never failed to win high recognition whenever exhibited. The rich, non-fading color, size of flower, the splendid growth and unsurpassed commercial qualities have won many strong admirers who, with pleasure, look forward to its dissemination

That there will be the greatest demand for this commercial wonder is assured by the bookings to date, which March 14th totaled 54,200 cuttings, and this before any announcement of its dissemination had been made. If you want something extra select, LADDIE is the variety. Deliveries will commence in December, 1917, and orders will be filled in rotation as booked. Place your order now to be in on the early deliveries.

PRICE - $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000;
2500 for $237.50; 5000 for $450.00.

New Pink Forcing Rose, "Rose Marie"

Sunburst Crossed with Hoosier Beauty

In offering to the trade this pink rose, we wish to state that its commercial value has been tried and proven. In color, size, stem, keeping qualities, freedom of bloom and strong, clean growth, it ranks with the best of the greenhouse roses.

The color is a beautiful clear rose-pink. The buds are long, of perfect shape and open into a very large flower of as good substance as its parents, and as fragrant as Hoosier Beauty. Growth is very strong, throwing extra long flowering shoots, the breaks come quickly and it has no resting period at any time. Has never shown a trace of mildew or any other disease.

Grafts and own root plants grown side by side have shown no difference, proving that it will do as well on own root as on Manetti.

Deliveries will begin March 1, 1918.

PRICE—Own root, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000.
Grafts, - - 35.00 per 100; 300.00 per 1000.

FOURTH EDITION—JUST OUT

The Florists' Review, 508 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

Inspired with confidence by the largest season's business on record, the Trade is making preparations for Easter on a greater scale than ever before.

IF ever there was a class of men trained more than another to practice that old precept, "Make hay while the sun shines," we are that class, we who deal in plants and flowers. And we all are getting ready for Easter with a wholehearted enthusiasm that indicates a unanimous belief that the first week of April, 1917, will be the "sunniest" we ever have known.

This has been the record season to date with practically all of us who deal with the public. The growers have had their troubles, perhaps, with severe weather, small cuts, late crops and increased expenses, but there has been no difficulty in selling flowers to the public, or in getting rather better than the usual prices.

The retailing, if not in all cases the the producing end, of the flower business, all season has reflected the high degree of general prosperity throughout the country. There never has been so little unemployment and wages never were better, the result being that for every flower buver lost because of the high cost of living two have been gained because of the larger volume of money in circulation.

Big Business.

From the selling point of view, Christmas was the best ever for florists and business up to Ash Wednesday was about all that we could ask. If there has been a less favorable showing during Lent it can be accounted for by its earlier arrival, simultaneously with a large crop of flowers. The fact that the public this year is absorbing a quantity of bulbous stock at least two-thirds greater than usual is in itself an assurance that Easter will present possibilities limited only by one's ability to take advantage of them.

The Big Week of the Year.

For many years Easter was the big day on the trade's calendar. Recently Christmas has gone ahead in dollars, but not in number of sales; indeed, there are any number of us whose customers have not yet adopted the custom of sending such unutilitarian Christmas gifts, but who, nevertheless, can be counted on with certainty to buy a lily to grace their own front window Easter morning.

We all can reckon safely that Easter will give us the opportunity to make a larger number of sales than at Christmas, or at any previous Easter.

Stock has been sufficiently plentiful this season so that, with all the fine business done at retail, growers whose stock goes to the trade nearly all will tell you they have not received as good average prices this year as last. Consequently there is no prospect of anything more than local shortages of stock for Easter.

Anyway, practically everyone who has watched the business grow, year by year, has come to recognize that the sales for Easter no longer are limited by the supply of stock but by the individual florist's ability to wait on trade. The public habitually puts off buying until the last moment—then there is a most unholy rush.

Only recently has the trade given any real attention to the problem of getting the Easter buying started earlier.

It will pay any florist to study the records of other Easters; to do it now, for there yet is time to push ahead the selling of next week.

The chances are the records of other years will show sales the first three days of the week preceding Easter to have been rather below the normal business; that by Thursday the buyers were nibbling, but that the Easter sales virtually all were made in the last two days. Look up the facts and see if the sales of Saturday did not exceed those of all the rest of the week!

In the Book.

In the memorandum book every florist should keep to preserve the knowledge he gains by experience, see if it is not written of every pleasant Easter Saturday that the rush was so great many would-be customers left before they could be waited on, and that of every rainy Easter Saturday it is recorded that profits were lost with the stock unsold—or that a loss was avoided only by the use of the telephone like the grocery order-taker does it. Anyone can see in such a record reasons for special consideration of the means by which it may be possible to get the orders earlier.

Detroit Coöperation.

The thing most worthy of note in the Easter preparations this year is the action of the trade in Detroit. That is one of the cities in which florists are friends. Perhaps it is because the population and wealth of the city have increased so rapidly that there has been enough business for all, but the fact is the Detroit florists do not have it as the first article of their creed: "If I can't get the order, let's cut the profit out of it for the other fellow." They believe prosperous, contented competitors are less to be feared than would be those made discontented and reckless by the pressure of financial necessities. So they work together.

Detroit Plans Early Start.

Some years the Detroiters' efforts have taken the direction of coöperative advertising; other times they have held a spring show, free to the public. But this Easter they acted on the evident greatest desirability of starting selling soon. They have taken it for granted everybody wants flowers for Easter and they have dropped advertising of that character; they have cut out the show as not calculated to produce the results they want. Instead, they have all joined in an attempt to get the people into the flower stores the first three days of the week, April 1, 2 and 3—they know April 4, 5, 6 and 7, in any case, will bring all the business they can conveniently handle.

Think what it will mean to the business that every flower store in Detroit is advertising an Easter opening for Sunday, April 1, and the two succeeding days!

Each for All.

Each one is doing what he pleases to advertise his own opening, but all are advertising the general opening day. For two weeks every parcel, every letter and every bill sent out by any Detroit florist has had in it a neatly printed circular in the typical Easter color, with a cut of lilies, a rabbit and some eggs, carrying the words, "Easter Flower Show at ALL Detroit Flower Shops April 1-2-3."

Get the people in and the Easter orders will begin to accumulate, the final rush will be reduced, the danger of loss through bad weather will be eliminated and the whole proposition made easier and more profitable.

We all shall watch with interest the results of the Detroit undertaking.

GETTING READY FOR THE BIG DAY

EASTER PLANT NOTES.

The Busiest Season.

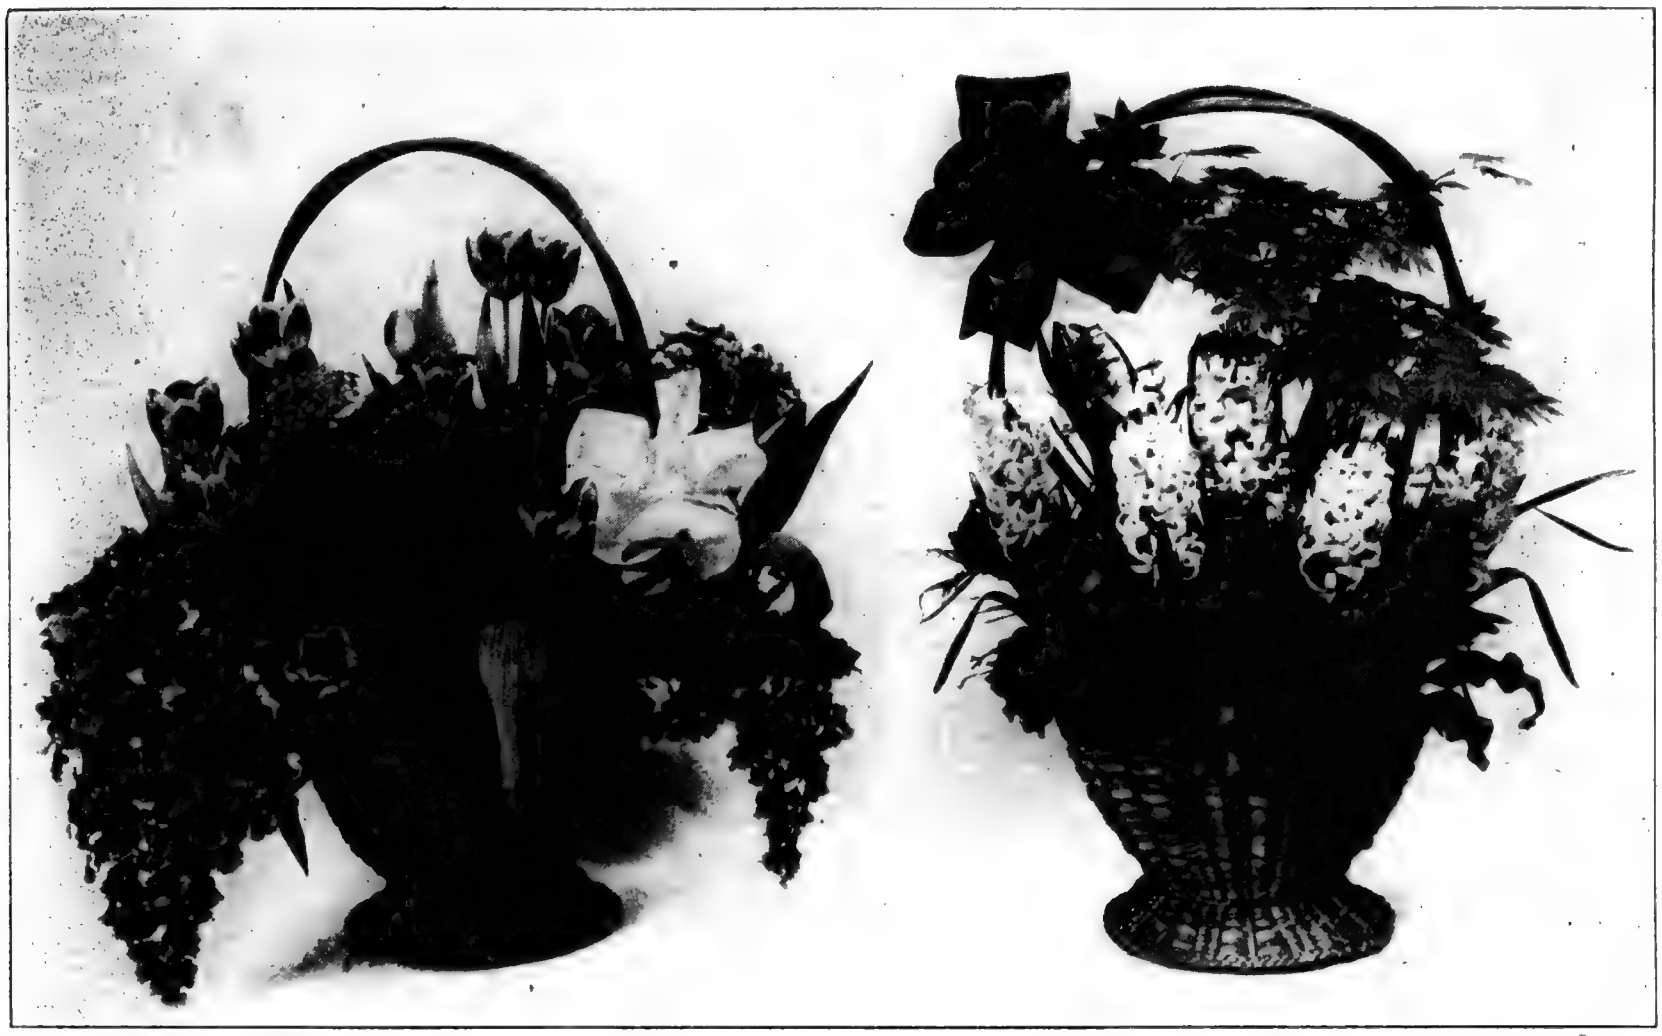
The busiest plant season of the entire year usually is crowded into the three or four days preceding Easter. Some customers place their orders in good season, but the majority of them put off buying until near the end, when stocks of many plants are more or less exhausted and when there is often difficulty in securing just the plants wanted. Foliage plants sell only in moderate numbers, but the call for flowering plants is always tremendous. Whether or not the prevailing high cost of living will in any way cripple the sale of plants, remains to be proved. Good weather, with moderate temperatures, means a great saving in labor and wrapping material to florists. Everyone hopes for balmy climatic conditions. We should reasonably get these after a long winter, but experiences of one or two recent Easters have shown the danger of trusting too much to the erratic weather man.

To Make Buyers Customers.

Paper of every kind is costly now, but we must have it in quantity. We may get cold, frosty and windy weather, in which case careful wrapping is necessary. Merely disposing of plants does not end our responsibilities. We must aim to deliver plants to all purchasers in first-class condition, and we must not forget to attach a tag or card to such plants as marguerites, rambler roses, hard-wooded plants, spiræas and hydrangeas emphasizing the necessity for an ample water supply. Mere dribblings are valueless; make it clear that at least one soaking watering daily is a necessity. I suppose thousands of plants die annually within a day or two after being sold, on account of ignorance or carelessness on the part of purchasers. We should not look upon this with anything but regret and disfavor. Those who buy plants and see them shriveled corpses a few days later are not likely to spend much money with florists. Let us endeavor to teach our customers the need of proper watering, for the longer pleasure they may derive from plants bought the better it will prove for our business.

Why Not Give the Names?

Have you ever considered the value of attaching neatly written, or, better still, printed cards to the various plants you are offering? Give both the botanic and common name when possible. Retailers should endeavor to make their window and store displays more educational. In what better way can they do this than by letting people know what they were carrying? It will not cost much to have cards marked for Rose Dorothy Perkins, French Hydrangea Mme. Mouillere, Rhododendron Pink Pearl, Azalea Niobe, Lilac Marie Legraye or Hyacinth Queen of the Blues, to give a few common examples. Be sure the words are correctly spelled. Some store assistants in an endeavor to appear smart will give customers fanciful names for plants they do not know the identity of. Discourage such practices. Remember that, while some may not know much about plant names, others may know more about them than you do.



Three Well Known Figures at St. Louis.

The Leading Sellers.

Following are short notes on some of the plants which are good Easter sellers and which will be in most prominence. While colored flowers in the main have the best call, there is one white flower which will always be associated with Easter, the lily, and of this one plant more are sold than of any other.

The Lilies.

Every family which has the necessary wherewithal will buy at least one pot of Easter lilies, and the exact timing of this all-important crop means a good deal to the average country florist. The retailers are growers in only a minority of cases, but the country florist growing his own plants must be alert to have his plants in the right condition when wanted. Prices are low immediately after Easter, but funeral orders may be depended upon to use up flowers from time to time. Therefore do not force plants if there is little likelihood of getting them into bloom. Plants with only a few flowers open are better than those more fully expanded. If one flower is open your plants will sell. Run them cool for a few days if you can. To retard the early ones, stand the plants in a cool cellar or shed. Remove all pollen masses and be sure all the pots are cleaned in good season. If you want to make up large pots or pans, shake the soil away, but retain as many roots as you can. Soak the plants well after potting. Plants thus treated will hold their foliage dark green for several days. If you do not grow your lilies, it is well to buy them with large buds, as open flowers are always more or less bruised when sent by express or even by auto truck or horse and wagon. Giganteum is the leading Easter lily. For tall spikes Formosa is necessary, while for stately effect for church decorations the longer spiked Madonna lily, L. candidum, is incomparable.

Two Highly Effective Ways of Using Bulbous Stock in Handle Baskets.

The Roses.

At one time Crimson Rambler was the great seller for Easter. A good many of this old-time favorite are still sold, but the number decreases each year, while the pink shades now have far and away the heaviest sales. Tausendschon and Baby Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, White Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, Hiawatha, Excelsa, and such polyanthas or baby ramblers as Orleans, Erna Teschendorff, Phyllis and Ellen Poulsen, are all good. I doubt if any one variety will sell so heavily as Tausendschon, better known as Thousand Beauties. The hybrid teas and hybrid perpetuals, if they can be held so as to have one or two flowers opening, are good sellers. Especially good in the latter class are Magna Charta, Brunner and that glorious white, Frau Karl Druschki. Be sure your roses receive an ample water supply. Do not take them from a hot to a cold house where there is more or less draft, or mildew will soon attack them and soon disfigure them so that they will become unsalable.

French Hydrangeas.

No other plants have come into favor so rapidly in late years as the beautiful and varicolored French hydrangeas. They have entirely eclipsed the old Otaksa for early work and are easily had in fine shape for Easter, even if it comes as early as the third or fourth week in March. Such lovely sorts as Mme. E. Mouillere, Radiant, Avalanche, Bouquet Rose and Mme. Tremeault have proved to be fine sellers. Their flower heads are less coarse than those of Otaksa and, while they will not stand outdoor weather conditions like Otaksa, they are much more floriferous and better plants in every way for Easter work. Given an ample water supply, hydrangeas will last as long as any flowering plant on the Easter list, but water they must have, and in abundance. Speaking of the comparative hardiness of various plants, it may not be generally known that these French hydrangeas planted outdoors have successfully wintered in sections where temperatures have fallen to 10 and 15 degrees below zero, where they had a good mulch of leaves.

The Azaleas.

While a great many azaleas are disposed of at Christmas, there is always an ample stock of them left for Easter, and at this latter date the plants will be found more heavily bloomed. If inured to cool conditions, Azalea Indica will stand a position even outside the store, but while the Indica section is fairly tough it will be noted that forced plants of A. mollis wilt much more readily. The flowers of mollis contain less substance than those of Indica, but come in some delightful shades. If some of your azaleas chance to be unsalable, pick off the seeds, keep the plants well watered and plant them out on or about May 25, in a location easily reached by the hose.

Dutch Bulbous Flowers.

Pots and pans of tulips, narcissi and hyacinths are always sold in immense numbers at Easter. They can be profitably moved at a moderate price and they are plants which can safely be placed outdoors with impunity, even when the temperature falls below freezing and the winds are cold. The commercially grown bulbs need to be grown cool and well up to the light in order to have them stocky and avoid the need of staking them. While many varieties are offered at Easter, Murillo tulips and Victoria narcissi are special favorites, and Queen of the Blues, L'Innocence and Gertrude hyacinths are good sellers. In wrapping your bulb pans it is not usually necessary to completely cover them, but let the paper cover the pans and come up the sides of the pans level with the flowers.

The Spiræas.

Since the introduction of the new pink and lavender-colored spiræas or astilbes, these plants have become greater Easter favorites. Such varieties as Philadelphia, Rubens, Venus, Ceres, Peach Blossom and Queen Alexandra are of charming colors. Among the whites the old Japonica is less grown each year, but Gladstone, with its dense flower spikes, is popular. Remember that spiræas are notoriously thirsty subjects and can scarcely be overwatered. Most plants, if placed in saucers in which water is allowed to stand, are soon seriously damaged, but this stagnant condition has no ill effect on spiræas. It is best to tell your customers to water them twice daily. Once a day might carry them in a cool room, but in the average steam-heated home twice a day should be insisted upon. Keep your pink and lavender varieties in a shaded position, for the sun soon takes out much of their color.

Hard-wooded Plants.

Both the small-flowered and long-tubed ericas make splendid Easter plants. One thing is certain; there is little likelihood of flowers being broken or shaken off; the erica will stand longer in fine condition in the home than almost any other plant.

Boronias are seen in fewer numbers than ericas, but are pretty, sweet-scented plants for which the demand is usually good. Acacias are graceful and attractive in their several shades of yellow; not cheap plants, by any means, but wonderfully fascinating. These and other hard-wooded plants should never be allowed to become dry at the roots.

One severe drying out will kill some hard-wooded plants, and will at least seriously cripple all of them.

Forced Shrubs.

The number of varieties of forced shrubs is now considerable. There is something quite appealing and satisfying about them. All the rhododendrons, notably the glorious Pink Pearl; the kalmias or mountain laurels; lilacs; staphyleas; cytisus, better known as laburnums; ornamental malus; dwarf and standard wistarias; deutzias; Prunus triloba and P. Pissardi, are a few of the better known and more easily forced kinds. Do not let the plants have too high a temperature just before you need them. Contrive to give the plants moderate heat until the flowers start to open, and customers will receive more direct benefit from this kind of plants, especially the deciduous ones, if only a few blooms are open at buying time. Do not send your forced shrubs into the open unless the atmosphere is mild.

Marguerites.

Some day we may get a good blue or pink marguerite. Of course we have the little Agathæa cælestis, but it lacks the size necessary to make it an acceptable pot plant. Yellow marguerites, while the most popular for cutting, do not make shapely pot plants. The old white Paris daisy still is the best for pot culture, with one or two sports with larger flowers less adaptable. While thinking of it, this is the time to put in cuttings of white marguerites. Give them one or two necessary shifts until the pots can be plunged outdoors for the summer. Marguerites are thirsty subjects and in a warm, steam-heated room all should have two waterings a day to keep them in good shape.

Genistas.

Large numbers of genistas are sold yearly at Easter. The bulk are trimmed into a quite close and formal head. Some resemble baskets and others have even more fantastic designs. Natural-grown plants, or those with a little trimming, are the best. Genistas cannot be classed as good house plants. It may have been noticed that even in a flower show lasting three to four days the genistas were dropping their flowers. Ask customers to give genistas a cool room, if they possess one, and to be sure that they are amply watered. If kept cool and moist at the roots, genistas will give far more satisfaction.

Other Flowering Plants.

The number of miscellaneous Easter plants is quite large. Among them are bougainvilleas, which are good keepers and stand a dry heat uncommonly well. English primroses, forget-me-nots, pansies and double daisies can be found doing well in pans or pots. The polyanthus is also more in evidence. Mignonette well grown in 4-inch to 6-inch pots is a good seller. Schizanthus is rarely seen at shows after March. At present it is at its best and a well bloomed schizanthus presents a most beautiful picture. Ie requires a cold greenhouse to keep it in condition.

Wallflowers in such colors as blood red, golden yellow and brown are fine, and I may say are better if pot-grown than if bench-grown. Geraniums nicely flowered in 4-inch to 6-inch pots are popular for Easter. Cinerarias, both of the stellata and old grandiflora section, are numerous and somehow seemed to have a particularly good sale a year ago, as did cyclamens. Primula malacoides will be in evidence more than ever, as will our old friend, P. obconica. There are more flowering plants than those I have mentioned. Easter gives us a fine assortment and every year the constant query is for something new, which is not always easy to produce. Lay your plans as soon as Easter passes for what you may need a year hence. It is none too early.

The Pussy Willow Has Come to be an Important Accessory.

CYLAMEN SEEDS.

What special treatment, if any, should be given cyclamens to secure a good supply of seeds? How many seeds may I reasonably expect from a plant in an 8-inch fern pan carrying 150 blooms? H. B. R.—Ia.

Keep the plant in an open, sunny location and reduce the water supply a little as the flowers pass. The earliest and strongest flowers produce the best seeds. It is not wise to leave on all the flowers. Leave a couple of dozen, and you will have seeds of better quality.

Everything will depend on whether or not your flowers were fertilized artificially. If they were not fertilized the crop of seed is uncertain and may be anywhere from fifty to 500 seeds. If you receive 200 good seeds, you should be satisfied. C. W.

THE FARM PAPER.

Misleading the Amateurs.

A couple of weeks ago the laundryman, who delivers the clothes to our place every Saturday, approached me in the greenhouse rather shyly and said in a meek tone:

"Mister, can I ask you a confidential question?"

"Sure, Mike," I said, "raus mit."

"Well," he continued, "I have fifteen acres of land on Bald Eagle lake and I am living out there with my large family. I want to do something with the land and the family."

"Fine, very fine," I said to the man. "I wish I had fifteen acres of land on Bald Eagle lake and a large family to work it. Gee, whiz! I would make things fly out there, growing all kinds of green vegetables for the markets in the Twin Cities."

Here allow me to explain that Bald Eagle lake is a fine lake about fifteen miles from St. Paul and Minneapolis, with good car service and hundreds of cottages, bungalows and near-bungalows, farmhouses, shanties and buildings of all kinds.

The laundryman looked once more at me and said, without blushing or any other facial expression:

"I want to raise geraniums on it."

Almost Fainted.

Mr. Editor, everyone who knows me knows that I am a little fellow in stature, but strong on nerves and endurance, but this laundryman pretty near caused me to faint. But I did not show my emotions enough to make the man suspicious and responded quickly:

"So, you want to raise geraniums on those fifteen acres? What are you going to do with them in the fall? Make sauerkraut out of them, or pickle them?"

"No, no," the man said, "I want to grow them for the market, for Decoration day, for spring planting and so on.

Bulbous Stock Will Be the Big Seller This Easter, but Heather Has Its Friends.

I have a farm paper at home which, in the last number, says it is easy to grow 5,000 or more, and at 10 cents a plant that means $500, a nice little sum, which would help me in paying for the land and supporting my family. And, maybe, in a couple of years or more I would not have to drive that laundry wagon."

"Sure, Mike," I said, "but have you any greenhouses on these grounds?"

"Oh, no; the farming paper says greenhouses are not necessary. Hotbeds will do."

Writers Know It All.

"Ah, so," I blurted out, "great fellows, these farm paper writers. They get me, and you, and everybody else. They know everything. They know it all. They tell you how to make lice powder for man and beast; cough drops out of cornstalks; chocolate wafers out of dried and powdered horse chestnuts; a combination suit for the oldest boy out of burlap, and so on.

"Now, Mr. Man," I said to the laundryman, "let us talk plain business. Have you any money to put up for doing something with your land?"

"Oh, yes, a couple of hundred dollars, but I want to make money."

"Certainly," I said, "but not in geraniums. It takes more than a couple of hundred dollars to do that. It takes knowledge, material and certain time. But you take your money, buy good seed potatoes, almost any early ones, and a couple of tons of sheep and cow manure, spread it over the ground, have it plowed well and harrowed fine, then plant the spuds properly and keep your family at it from morning to night, hoeing and weeding, and hilling up the plants, and by the end of the month of August you will have your money back in your pocket with a nice profit, and a healthy-looking family, besides.

"And do not believe these farm papers any too much. Those fellows writing farming articles are, as a rule, not farmers or growers of anything. But they know how to disturb innocent minds by publishing articles out of their line in their sheets, just to make that paper look smart. If you want to know or to learn something about floriculture, we have good trade papers, such as The Review.

"Good-bye, dear man, I have to water my carnations."

Christ. Bussjaeger.

Peoria, Ill.—John and Frank Hasse, who have been employed at the George A. Kuhl greenhouses, are preparing to go into business for themselves. A greenhouse will be erected next month.

London, England.—The United Kingdom is not alone in its potato shortage, the food controller has announced, there being a world-wide scarcity. There will be no potatoes in Great Britain during the early summer.

Knaphill, England.—It may interest many of the British gardeners in America to know that at the Waterer nursery here there are eight men whose terms of service each exceed forty years. The youngest of the eight is 59 and has been in the nursery forty-eight years, while the oldest is 83 and has served sixty-four years.

Haarlem, Holland.—One of the greatest trials to exporting houses in this trade is the continued loss of American mail. It is hard enough when thousands of letters and orders are lost as in the submarining of the Laconia, but for more than a year much mail taken off steamers for examination by the censor has disappeared. It has been noted that correspondence with American Florists bearing German names has suffered especially in this respect.

Yokohama, Japan.—The reports that forcers in the United States are looking for lower bulb prices is a surprise here. The market in Japan is higher than a year ago, and it is thought bulb prices must be above the usual level this year if for no other reason than that everything else is high. There is no indication of an oversupply to force prices down, particularly if England admits any part of the normal quantity.

Sassenheim, Holland.—Bulb exporters are much in the dark as to business being booked in the United States this season, communication being sadly disorganized. Cables cost 31 cents per word and code is prohibited by the censor. Mail is slow because of infrequent sailings and the delays of the censor, and between the quantities of letters held up by the censor and those lost by submarining, no exporter can know what his representatives in America have done until the representatives return, and even that, at the moment, is a hazardous undertaking. The loss of mail with the Laconia was seriously felt.

One severe drying out will kill some hard-wooded plants, and will at least seriously cripple all of them.

Forced Shrubs.

The number of varieties of forced shrubs is now considerable. There is something quite appealing and satisfying about them. All the rhododendrons, notably the glorious Pink Pearl; the kalmias or mountain laurels; lilacs; staphyleas; cytisus, better known as laburnums; ornamental malus; dwarf and standard wistarias; deutzias; Prunus triloba and P. Pissardi, are a few of the better known and more easily forced kinds. Do not let the plants have too high a temperature just before you need them. Contrive to give the plants moderate heat until the flowers start to open, and customers will receive more direct benefit from this kind of plants, especially the deciduous ones, if only a few blooms are open at buying time. Do not send your forced shrubs into the open unless the atmosphere is mild.

Marguerites.

Some day we may get a good blue or pink marguerite. Of course we have the little Agathæa cælestis, but it lacks the size necessary to make it an acceptable pot plant. Yellow marguerites, while the most popular for cutting, do not make shapely pot plants. The old white Paris daisy still is the best for pot culture, with one or two sports with larger flowers less adaptable. While thinking of it, this is the time to put in cuttings of white marguerites. Give them one or two necessary shifts until the pots can be plunged outdoors for the summer. Marguerites are thirsty subjects and in a warm, steam-heated room all should have two waterings a day to keep them in good shape.

Genistas.

Large numbers of genistas are sold yearly at Easter. The bulk are trimmed into a quite close and formal head. Some resemble baskets and others have even more fantastic designs. Natural grown plants, or those with a little trimming, are the best. Genistas cannot be classed as good house plants. It may have been noticed that even in a flower show lasting three to four days the genistas were dropping their flowers. Ask customers to give genistas a cool room, if they possess one, and to be sure that they are amply watered. If kept cool and moist at the roots, genistas will give far more satisfaction.

Other Flowering Plants.

The number of miscellaneous Easter plants is quite large. Among them are bougainvilleas, which are good keepers and stand a dry heat uncommonly well. English primroses, forget-me-nots, pansies and double daisies can be found doing well in pans or pots. The poly anthus is also more in evidence. Mignonette well grown in 4 inch to 6 inch pots is a good seller. Schizanthus is rarely seen at shows after March. At present it is at its best and a well bloomed schizanthus presents a most beautiful picture. It requires a cold greenhouse to keep it in condition.

Wallflowers in such colors as blood red, golden yellow and brown are fine, and I may say are better if pot grown than if bench grown. Geraniums nicely flowered in 4 inch to 6 inch pots are popular for Easter. Cinerarias, both of the stellata and old grandiflora section, are numerous and somehow seemed to have a particularly good sale a year ago, as did cyclamens. Primula malacoides will be in evidence more than ever, as will our old friend, P. obconica. There are more flowering plants than those I have mentioned. Easter gives us a fine assortment and every year the constant query is for something new, which is not always easy to produce. Lay your plans as soon as Easter passes for what you may need a year hence. It is none too early.

The Pussy Willow Has Come to be an Important Accessory.

CYLAMEN SEEDS.

What special treatment, if any, should be given cyclamens to secure a good supply of seeds? How many seeds may I reasonably expect from a plant in an 8-inch fern pan carrying 150 blooms? H. B. R.—Ia.

Keep the plant in an open, sunny location and reduce the water supply a little as the flowers pass. The earliest and strongest flowers produce the best seeds. It is not wise to leave on all the flowers. Leave a couple of dozen, and you will have seeds of better quality.

Everything will depend on whether or not your flowers were fertilized artificially. If they were not fertilized the crop of seed is uncertain and may be anywhere from fifty to 500 seeds. If you receive 200 good seeds, you should be satisfied. C. W.

THE FARM PAPER.

Misleading the Amateurs.

A couple of weeks ago the laundryman, who delivers the clothes to our place every Saturday, approached me in the greenhouse rather shyly and said in a meek tone:

"Mister, can I ask you a confidential question?"

"Sure, Mike," I said, "raus mit."

"Well," he continued, "I have fifteen acres of land on Bald Eagle lake and I am living out there with my large family. I want to do something with the land and the family."

"Fine, very fine," I said to the man. "I wish I had fifteen acres of land on Bald Eagle lake and a large family to work it. Gee, whiz! I would make things fly out there, growing all kinds of green vegetables for the markets in the Twin Cities."

Here allow me to explain that Bald Eagle lake is a fine lake about fifteen miles from St. Paul and Minneapolis, with good car service and hundreds of cottages, bungalows and near-bungalows, farmhouses, shanties and buildings of all kinds.

The laundryman looked once more at me and said, without blushing or any other facial expression:

"I want to raise geraniums on it."

Almost Fainted.

Mr. Editor, everyone who knows me knows that I am a little fellow in stature, but strong on nerves and endurance, but this laundryman pretty near caused me to faint. But I did not show my emotions enough to make the man suspicious and responded quickly:

"So, you want to raise geraniums on those fifteen acres? What are you going to do with them in the fall? Make sauerkraut out of them, or pickle them?"

"No, no," the man said, "I want to grow them for the market, for Decoration day, for spring planting and so on

GETTING TOGETHER

WHEN EASTER'S IN THE AIR.

Hitching Sentiment to Flowers.

No one can gainsay the fact that the flower trade is attaining a higher form of organization and that its members are striving more as a unit than ever before in furthering matters of common good. Undoubtedly the leading evidence of progress in the retail division during the last few years has been the more extensive and more intelligent use of the "dynamo of business," advertising. No longer may it be said with impunity that retail florists as a rule are, from long habit, non-advertisers. A review of the business done on any of the notable flower days seldom fails to bring out the encouraging fact that more florists have been convinced of the efficacy of printers' ink as a stimulant of flower sales.

It is principally in connection with the red-letter days—Easter, Mothers' day, Memorial day and St. Valentine's day—when sentiment plays an important part in the sale of flowers, that retailers have employed advertising extensively, and in many cases with highly profitable results. The increase in the quantity of publicity has been attended by an improvement in advertising copy, indicating that many a retailer through experience has learned to distinguish strong copy from weak copy.

Periodic Ads Must Have "Pep."

As the advertising done for the big flower days must necessarily be of short duration, appearing a few days only, advertisers years ago found it expedient to put a more concentrated punch into their periodic publicity. It was agreed that for short-time advertising newspaper advertisements of large dimensions had a more telling effect and gave the flower message for the day a more conspicuous showing than did small advertisements. To attain this desirable feature, the coöperative plan of advertising was adopted, as first suggested by The Review for boosting Mothers' day. Since then this method has become popular and has been used by florists of nearly all the cities in the country.

The reproduction on page 33 shows how six florists of Dallas, Tex., instead of each doing his own advertising, coöperated in their sales promotion for Easter last year and thereby strengthened their representation. The collective idea was unusually well handled by the Texans. The cut is attractive, the appeal to sentiment adroit and the flowers are not forgotten. The advertisement was a full newspaper page, and apparently each participant in the plan received the benefits of a full-page display, although he was required to pay only his sixth of the expense.

The Rambler Roses Have Lost None of Their Popularity.

Copy Must Sell to Pay Space.

Perhaps if the Texans had given ranges of prices for roses, lilies, carnations and other specific items plentiful for the day, they would have answered many questions of "How much?" on the part of the readers. Prices are interesting to the average reader. However, the talk in a coöperative ad for obvious reasons must be somewhat general, in this case to represent six interests.

The sentimental appeal on flower days is a powerful factor in promoting sales, but it is a difficult matter to mix sentiment and the merchandising of flowers in the right proportion. The thing can be overdone as easily as it can be underdone. One should not forget the goods advertised, nor that prices are more important than some would have us believe. As florists continue to devote more study to their advertising copy, the old adage that "any advertising is better than no advertising" will go by the boards. Perhaps some day the slogan will be: "All advertising can be good advertising—make the copy sell!"

THE CLOSE AT NEW YORK.

A Splendid Success.

The New York show, which opened March 15, the awards up to the last day appearing in last week's issue of The Review, ran for eight days, closing March 22. The show was an excellent success from the public's every point of view, with the result that the financial returns insure the continuance of the spring exhibitions. The trade exhibitors, most of whom planned to do business with the public rather than with florists, were well pleased with the results obtained, so that their feature of the show no doubt can be expanded again another year.

The following awards were not made in time for last week's report:

THE NATIONAL ROSE SHOW.

Continuing Last Week's Report.

The idea that the national rose festival would continue to improve day by day was faithfully pushed, but did not come out strongly. The show was fully as strong on the first day as at any time thereafter. The new attractions came and they just about kept the show at its high level of quality, without raising the standard of excellence. As far as novelty went, the public did not get started quite so fast as the management had hoped, so the original display was extremely novel to most people when they arrived. The bad weather March 21 cut down the attendance, which improved notably afterward.

To resume the description of the show given last week: The dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford, given by the American Rose Society in honor of the judges and visitors of national repute, was attended by some sixty guests. William F. Gude said that all the horticultural leaders of the country were there, ready to assimilate knowledge from the society's melting pot. The $18,000 rose from John Cook, of Baltimore, was a star attraction that evening on the handsomely covered dais in front of the Dreer rose garden. Just why it was called the $18,000 rose greatly agitated the public. From that same elevation, on the same evening, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell (historic name, that!) christened the new pink-Shawyer-et-al. seedling from Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa., after her mother-in law, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury. It really ought to be a good rose to live up to its sponsor's hopes.

Wednesday and Thursday.

Wednesday, March 21, brought the rose exhibits of the private gardeners, flowers from William Kleinheinz, Thomas W. Logan and a single entry from James Fox.

Thursday, March 22, brought two contestants for the prizes for decorative roses arranged in 200 square feet of space. A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., captured the gold medal and first prize with a fine display comprising a baker's dozen or so of varieties. A. Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., won the silver medal, second prize, with five or six commercial varieties, shown in excellent form.

The miniature cottages in carefully laid out lawns proved attractive to the visitors. Taking it all the way through, it seemed that the crowds lingered most over the three large retail displays arranged by Pennock Bros., J. J. Habermehl's Sons and the Gude Bros. Co. The fountain in the center of the long dinner table of the Gude display proved a great attraction.

While the advertising of the show was extensive, it did not prove so effective as the wonderful high-water mark reached by last year's display. Comparing the two shows, the National Flower Show was much larger and touched a greater variety of interest than the rose festival just closed. The rose festival was more effectively staged. The music was a great addition to the enjoyment of visitors. By request the show remained open Saturday, March 24, one day longer than originally planned.

How Dallas Florists Worked Together to Increase the Use of Flowers.

The Florists' Club's "Smoker."

The entertainment given at the Hotel Adelphia Wednesday evening, March 21, by the Florists' Club, in honor of the visitors to the show, was in every way successful. About 300 guests assembled to join in what the committee styled a smoker. Charles H. Grakelow, chairman of the committee, has an enviable reputation as a delightful host, so everyone was satisfied to leave it to the committee, as the invitations advised, and nobody regretted doing so. There were refreshments served at sociable little tables and mild liquids and lots of fumigation and speeches—not too many—and a really clever vaudeville performance on a stage in the room. Everybody knew everybody else, or if they did not it didn't seem to matter, and everybody went home happy.

The Pierson Awards.

In the telegraphed list of awards published last week the awards on Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst, White Killarney, Red Radiance, Milady, Lady Alice Stanley, Mrs. Ward, My Maryland and Ophelia credited to F. R. Pierson Co. should have been credited to A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. F. R. Pierson Co. was not an exhibitor, while the entries of A. N. Pierson, Inc., were a principal feature of the show.

St. Louis Next?

The executive committee fixes the place and date of the annual meeting and exhibition, but a vote was in favor of St. Louis in 1918, when the exhibition and convention will be held in conjunction with the National Flower Show.

Apologia.

Now that the rush is over, two faces rise before my imagination in scornful reproach. They seem to ask, "Have you forgotten us, that you say nothing of our part in growing those beautiful plants, the ones that were used in the central rose garden?" One is the face of Mark Patton Mills, of William K. Harris; the other is the face of Ernest F. Zieger, of Zieger & Son. Forgive me, friends; forgive me. Phil.

ANOTHER WIND STORM

HOOSIER HOUSES HIT AGAIN.

The Big Blow at New Albany.

March, 1917, will be recorded by Indiana florists as a month during which the elements set a record for destruction of greenhouses and stock in their state. The excitement over the big tornado at Newcastle on the afternoon of March 11 was abating when news came that a tornado had visited New Albany Friday, March 23, and, like the one at Newcastle, had taken its heavy toll of life and property.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the tornado swooped down on the town, leveling trees and buildings. It came so rapidly and so unexpectedly that no preparations could be made. New Albany suffered heavily. All of the florists there sustained losses to some extent, but undoubtedly the heaviest loser was Anders Rasmussen. What was one of the largest and most up-to-date ranges south of Chicago is a twisted mass of pipe and sashbars. The beds and benches are littered with broken glass. Twenty-one houses, each 300 feet long, went before the storm. Easter stock that was in the pink of condition is a crumpled mass of vegetation. Thousands of lilies were blackened; thousands of roses which were coming into heavy crop are now standing outdoors.

Rasmussen Loss About $80,000.

The two great steel stacks fell on the houses, causing extra damage and eliminating the possibilities of supplying heat to the less damaged sections. A young man cutting sweet peas in one of the houses was seriously injured by falling glass and lumber. It is estimated that the loss is around seventy-five per cent, equivalent to about $80,000. It is understood that little insurance was carried.

Nick Pontrich was another heavy loser. Both of his houses were carried away, leaving nothing but the benches. The F. Walker Co. sustained damages to its service buildings and glass was broken by flying lumber and hail. At the greenhouses of Lewis G. Pleiss there was a heavy breakage of glass and the concrete boiler room was torn up. The damage at the range of J. Guthrie was considerable, but principally broken glass. A. F. Aebersold also lost heavily; about one-half of his range was demolished.

Thus the work of a lifetime was wiped out, in less than five minutes.

E. C. Walker underwent a harrowing experience. He was buried beneath his ruined residence for several hours and in imminent danger of being burned to death. Mr. Walker suffered severe bruises and a fractured limb.

G. G. W.

Although the tornado of March 23 practically blotted out his life's work, this was not the first time that Anders Rasmussen felt the destructive powers of the angered elements. August 12, 1911, the records show, a cyclone visited the Rasmussen range and destroyed a greenhouse, 42x300, which had been completed only a few months before. The loss to building and stock was about $3,000, with no insurance. At that time Mr. Rasmussen said:

"I have repeatedly tried to get cyclone insurance, but can get no company to take the risk on the glass."

MR. RINGIER RESIGNS.

Arnold Ringier has severed his connection with the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

The announcement was made March 24, following Mr. Ringier's return from a trip to California, prolonged somewhat by the illness of Mrs. Ringier, who was in a hospital at Los Angeles with pneumonia contracted on the trip west. It is reported, however, that Mr. Ringier disposed of his stock interest and tendered his resignation as secretary of the corporation prior to his departure for the coast. Mr. Ringier had been associated with the house for twenty-seven years and is looked upon as one of the men of broadest all-around information in the trade, in addition to which he has a wide acquaintance in the seed, canning, florist, bulb and greens businesses.

Mr. Ringier has not yet announced his plans for the future.

The picture shows him playing cowboy at Byron Hot Springs, Cal., with Frank D. Pelicano, of San Francisco, who supplied the photograph.

ALL ABOUT THE GLADIOLUS.

Extension Bulletin 9, recently published by the New York State College of Agriculture, at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., probably does not tell nearly all there is to tell about the gladiolus, but by the time the other bulletins in the proposed series are issued the subject ought to be about exhausted. The information to be embodied in the series of books will be largely the result of experiments conducted at the trial grounds of the American Gladiolus Society, located at Cornell.

The present bulletin is entitled "Gladiolus Studies—I; Botany, History and Evolution of the Gladiolus." It is illustrated and contains 188 pages. It was prepared by Alvin C. Beal, professor of floricultural investigations at Cornell and chairman of the nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society. This first book of the series, says Mr. Beal, "is intended to trace the development of the gladiolus up to the present time. Succeeding bulletins will treat of its culture and of the varieties that have been tested in the gladiolus trial grounds."

This series of "gladiolus studies" may be expected, therefore, to be an epitome or compendium of most of the important available facts about the gladiolus, and cannot fail to be interesting to any who are interested in the flower.

NEW ZEALAND MOUNTAIN LILY.

S. L. Watkins, of Pleasant Valley, Cal., says:

Ranunculus Lyalli, the shepherd's or mountain lily, is the largest and one of the most singularly beautiful ranunculi in the world. The most graphic description would fail to convey any adequate idea of its marvelous beauty. The leaves are of enormous size, a deep glossy green. The massive flowers appear on tall stems and are over four inches in diameter, with beautiful waxy white petals and a yellow disk. The white of the petals is of the most intense, glistening, snowy whiteness, and the yellow the most intense golden yellow. This plant is a luxuriant bloomer, and its blooming propensities can be continued greatly by occasional irrigation in dry sections. It is highly fragrant.

This plant has a bold, striking, tropical appearance and stands three to four feet in height in its blooming season, with a spread of leaves of from three to four feet.

It is indigenous to the high mountains of New Zealand, and is perfectly hardy in nearly all localities. It can be easily protected in localities where it is not.

ON EASTER EVE

By ANNIE WEIR YOUNG

A florist had a wondrous dream.
On Easter eve, so it would seem,
The Easter lilies all began
Developing feet, and so they ran—
On Easter eve.

Helter-skelter, here and there,
Down the streets he saw them tear.
The Crimson Ramblers madly strayed,
Till their bright petals all were frayed,
On Easter eve.

Azalea flirted with Spiræa,
And both seemed pleased with the idea.
The Violet, that modest flower,
Ran and capered by the hour,
On Easter eve.

The very ribbons waved adieu,
And round about the counter flew,
While gentle Mignonette behaved
Like any small, coquettish maid,
On Easter eve.

The Pansy and the Calla Lily
Went skipping off like any silly.
The Lily of the Valley, too,
Was dancing to the music true,
On Easter eve.

The Sweet Pea waves its rainbow wings,
While to the time it dancing swings.
The Carnation, in this maddening hour,
Is dancing, too, with all its power,
On Easter eve.

The roses, with their thorny stem,
Declared that Love belonged to them;
They conquered Love with fragrance sweet
And then they chased Love's flying feet,
On Easter eve.

The Hyacinth and Daffodil
Made an appointment by a rill.
The Tulip vied with gay Narcissus
In stealing all the floral kisses,
On Easter eve.

The Orchid waves its fragile petals,
As on the florist's head it settles.
But Forget-me-not calls in liquid tone,
So the flowers troop back without a moan,
On Easter eve.

These flowers all had faces fair;
Their light feet skipped on buoyant air.
The florist watched them in affright;
To him it seemed an endless night—
On Easter eve.

But now these flowers, in all their glory,
Are telling him the strangest story
Of leaves that turned to greenbacks true,
And where Carnations are bright blue—
On Easter eve.

He reached his hand to touch the leaves;
The greenbacks rustled in the breeze!
And all the leaves in his shop that night
Were greenbacks true, in the florist's sight!
On Easter eve.

Inc., Cromwell, Conn. F. R. Pierson Co. was not an exhibitor, while the entries of A. N. Pierson, Inc., were a principal feature of the show.

St. Louis Next?

The executive committee fixes the place and date of the annual meeting and exhibition, but a vote was in favor of St. Louis in 1918, when the exhibition and convention will be held in conjunction with the National Flower Show.

Apologia.

Now that the rush is over, two faces rise before my imagination in scornful reproach. They seem to ask, "Have you forgotten us, that you say nothing of our part in growing those beautiful plants, the ones that were used in the central rose garden?" One is the face of Mark Patton Mills, of William K. Harris; the other is the face of Ernest F. Zieger, of Zieger & Son. Forgive me, friends; forgive me. Phil.

ANOTHER WIND STORM

HOOSIER HOUSES HIT AGAIN.

The Big Blow at New Albany.

March, 1917, will be recorded by Indiana florists as a month during which the elements set a record for destruction of greenhouses and stock in their state. The excitement over the big tornado at Newcastle on the afternoon of March 11 was abating when news came that a tornado had visited New Albany Friday, March 23, and, like the one at Newcastle, had taken its heavy toll of life and property.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the tornado swooped down on the town, leveling trees and buildings. It came so rapidly and so unexpectedly that no preparations could be made. New Albany suffered heavily. All of the florists there sustained losses to some extent, but undoubtedly the heaviest loser was Anders Rasmussen. What was one of the largest and most up-to-date ranges south of Chicago is a twisted mass of pipe and sashbars. The beds and benches are littered with broken glass. Twenty-one houses, each 300 feet long, went before the storm. Easter stock that was in the pink of condition is a crumpled mass of vegetation. Thousands of lilies were blackened; thousands of roses which were coming into heavy crop are now standing outdoors.

Rasmussen Loss About $80,000.

The two great steel stacks fell on the houses, causing extra damage and eliminating the possibilities of supplying heat to the less damaged sections. A young man cutting sweet peas in one of the houses was seriously injured by falling glass and lumber. It is estimated that the loss is around seventy-five per cent, equivalent to about $80,000. It is understood that little insurance was carried.

Nick Pontrich was another heavy loser. Both of his houses were carried away, leaving nothing but the benches. The F. Walker Co. sustained damages to its service buildings and glass was broken by flying lumber and hail. At the greenhouses of Lewis G. Pleiss there was a heavy breakage of glass and the concrete boiler room was torn up. The damage at the range of J. Guthrie was considerable, but principally broken glass. A. F. Aebersold also lost heavily; about one-half of his range was demolished.

Thus the work of a lifetime was wiped out, in less than five minutes.

E. C. Walker underwent a harrowing experience. He was buried beneath his ruined residence for several hours and in imminent danger of being burned to death. Mr. Walker suffered severe bruises and a fractured limb.

G. G. W.

Although the tornado of March 23 practically blotted out his life's work, this was not the first time that Anders Rasmussen felt the destructive powers of the angered elements. August 12, 1911, the records show, a cyclone visited the Rasmussen range and destroyed a greenhouse, 42x300, which had been completed only a few months before. The loss to building and stock was about $3,000, with no insurance. At that time Mr. Rasmussen said:

"I have repeatedly tried to get cyclone insurance, but can get no company to take the risk on the glass."

MR. RINGIER RESIGNS.

Arnold Ringier has severed his connection with the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

The announcement was made March 24, following Mr. Ringier's return from a trip to California, prolonged somewhat by the illness of Mrs. Ringier, who was in a hospital at Los Angeles with pneumonia contracted on the trip west. It is reported, however, that Mr. Ringier disposed of his stock interest and tendered his resignation as secretary of the corporation prior to his departure for the coast. Mr. Ringier had been associated with the house for twenty-seven years and is looked upon as one of the men of broadest all-around information in the trade, in addition to which he has a wide acquaintance in the seed, canning, florist, bulb and greens businesses.

Mr. Ringier has not yet announced his plans for the future.

The picture shows him playing cowboy at Byron Hot Springs, Cal., with Frank D. Pelicano, of San Francisco, who supplied the photograph.

ALL ABOUT THE GLADIOLUS.

Extension Bulletin 9, recently published by the New York State College of Agriculture, at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., probably does not tell nearly all there is to tell about the gladiolus, but by the time the other bulletins in the proposed series are issued the subject ought to be about exhausted. The information to be embodied in the series of books will be largely the result of experiments conducted at the trial grounds of the American Gladiolus Society, located at Cornell.

The present bulletin is entitled "Gladiolus Studies—I; Botany, History and Evolution of the Gladiolus." It is illustrated and contains 188 pages. It was prepared by Alvin C. Beal, professor of floricultural investigations at Cornell and chairman of the nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society. This first book of the series, says Mr. Beal, "is intended to trace the development of the gladiolus up to the present time. Succeeding bulletins will treat of its culture and of the varieties that have been tested in the gladiolus trial grounds."

This series of "gladiolus studies" may be expected, therefore, to be an epitome or compendium of most of the important available facts about the gladiolus, and cannot fail to be interesting to any who are interested in the flower

S. L. Watkins, of Pleasant Valley Cal., says:

Ranunculus Lyalli, the shepherd's o mountain lily, is the largest and on of the most singularly beautiful ran unculi in the world. The most graphi description would fail to convey an adequate idea of its marvelous beauty The leaves are of enormous size, a dee glossy green. The massive flowers ap pear on tall stems and are over fou inches in diameter, with beautiful wax white petals and a yellow disk. Th white of the petals is of the most in tense, glistening, snowy whiteness, an the yellow the most intense golden ye low. This plant is a luxuriant bloome and its blooming propensities can b continued greatly by occasional irriga tion in dry sections. It is highly fra grant.

This plant has a bold, striking, tro ical appearance and stands three t four feet in height in its blooming sea son, with a spread of leaves of fro three to four feet.

It is indigenous to the high mou tains of New Zealand, and is perfectl hardy in nearly all localities. It ca be easily protected in localities whe it is not.

ON EASTER EVE

By ANNIE WEIR YOUNG

A florist had a wondrous dream.
On Easter eve, so it would seem,
The Easter lilies all began
Developing feet, and so they ran—
On Easter eve.

Helter-skelter, here and there,
Down the streets he saw them tear.
The Crimson Ramblers madly strayed,
Till their bright petals all were frayed,
On Easter eve.

Azalea flirted with Spiræa,
And both seemed pleased with the idea.
The Violet, that modest flower,
Ran and capered by the hour,
On Easter eve.

The very ribbons waved adieu,
And round about the counter flew,
While gentle Mignonette behaved
Like any small, coquettish maid,
On Easter eve.

The Pansy and the Calla Lily
Went skipping off like any silly.
The Lily of the Valley, too,
Was dancing to the music true,
On Easter eve.

The Sweet Pea waves its rainbow wings,
While to the time it dancing swings.
The Carnation, in this maddening hour,
Is dancing, too, with all its power,
On Easter eve.

The roses, with their thorny stem,
Declared that Love belonged to them;
They conquered Love with fragrance sweet
And then they chased Love's flying feet,
On Easter eve.

The Hyacinth and Daffodil
Made an appointment by a rill.
The Tulip vied with gay Narcissus
In stealing all the floral kisses,
On Easter eve.

The Orchid waves its fragile petals,
As on the florist's head it settles.
But Forget-me-not calls in liquid tone,
So the flowers troop back without a moan,
On Easter eve.

These flowers all had faces fair;
Their light feet skipped on buoyant air.
The florist watched them in affright;
To him it seemed an endless night—
On Easter eve.

But now these flowers, in all their glory,

He reached his hand to touch the leaves;
The greenbacks rustled in the breeze!

BOSTON HOLDS A BIG SPRING SHOW

THE BEST YET.

Good Show; Large Attendance.

The spring flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, March 21 to 25, was the most successful Boston ever has held, not only from the point of view of exhibits, but also in the matter of attendance. The management gave the exhibition widespread publicity, putting it in charge of Chester R. Campbell, who managed the National Flower Show when it was held in Boston, and other big functions. As a result thousands of dollars more were taken at the doors than in any previous year and each day for a number of hours it was almost impossible to move in the halls, so great were the crowds.

The halls were beautifully arranged and nearly all exhibits seemed as fresh at the close of the fifth day as when the show opened. Little fire heat was used and air was admitted in abundance, making conditions ideal for both plants and cut flowers. High quality ruled throughout the show, but the orchid groups, groups of flowering and foliage plants, acacias, azaleas, bulbous flowers, ericas, cyclamens and schizanthus were noteworthy features.

The Flemish garden was a delightful feature, with its tiled walks, plots of verdant lawn, bulb borders, borders of deciduous flowering shrubs, wicket fence covered with the golden Jasminum primulinum, rest house, fountain surrounded by the new Amoor River Adonis, and many more attractive points worked out in Farquhar's best style.

Thomas Roland's acacia group was a truly marvelous one. Those who saw his great group at Philadelphia, which was sold, could hardly believe that from the same establishment could come so soon such another display. Numerous varieties were included, among which were glorious standards of pubescens, also cultriformis, longifolia, Baileyana, Drummondii and many others. The ericas from the same skillful grower also were fine examples of cultural skill.

Orchids were never so extensively shown here since the great special orchid show and entirely outclassed the New York display at the Grand Central Palace show. Novelties were more numerous than usual and the retailers' displays have never been surpassed at Horticultural hall.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

DOINGS OF THE DIRECTORS.

The Meeting at New York.

The mid-Lent meeting of the board of directors of the Society of American Florists was held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, March 16 and 17. The following directors were present:

R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., president.
A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., vice-president.
John Young, New York, secretary.
J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., treasurer.
Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.
Wm. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.
William F. Gude, Washington, D. C., Washington representative.
Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.
Frank X. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.
George W. Hess, Washington, D. C.
George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.
S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.
J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.
George E. M. Stumpp, New York.
A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.
Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco, Cal.
Paul R. Klingsporn, Chicago, Ill.

Ex-President Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., was present on the invitation of President Kerr. William H. Amling, Chicago, Ill., director through his office as president of the Chicago Florists' Club, through illness, was unable to be present and the club's credentials delegating Paul R. Klingsporn as a substitute director were, on motion, accepted. Credentials from the various affiliated bodies covering the directors appointed by them were presented and, on motion, accepted, and the directors duly seated. President Kerr announced that he had exercised the privilege of inviting the members of the National Flower Show committee to sit at the meetings of the board.

An Advance for Mothers' Day.

Secretary Young reported that O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn., had agreed to act as chairman of the committee on Mothers' day. He also read a letter from E. J. Fancourt, a member of the committee, reporting on an interview recently had with Miss Jarvis in Philadelphia, and she had arranged to consider the matter of the best assistance the committee could render to advance the Mothers' day movement. Mr. Fancourt expressed the opinion that, if a proper campaign was started, at least $5,000 could be raised for the work, and suggested that the society might be willing to advance the sum of $1,000 to start such a campaign, which could not be started without considerable expense. Some discussion ensued, which generally endorsed the idea of supporting Miss Jarvis in her work, and finally the board directed that an advance of $1,000 be made to the committee, or as much thereof as might be necessary.

A. M. Davenport's First Prize Group at the Boston Spring Show.

Credits and Collections.

The project of the establishment of a national credit and collection bureau was discussed at some length and, in order that the committee in charge of the project might have something definite on which to work, on motion of J. J. Hess, the president was directed to appoint a committee of three to draft suggestions in the matter, to be endorsed by the board, if found acceptable.

President Kerr appointed the following as such committee: S. S. Pennock, W. J. Keimel and G. E. M. Stumpp, with the latter as chairman.

There was no report from the committee on development of American products. The committee on school gardens reported progress.

The report of the committee on tariff and legislation being called for, it was presented by James McHutchison, of the committee, who was introduced by Mr. Gude, the chairman, in an address in which he appealed for prompt action by the board on the recommendations embodied in the report.

Defer Anti-Import Action.

The report was practically a brief on the proposed legislation to prohibit imports of plants, plant products and bulbs from all sources. The committee on the bill seeking this prohibition had, the report stated, agreed to defer legislative action pending a conference with the florists' and nurserymen's legislative committees, to be held probably next June or July. The details of the proposed legislation had, said the report, been published in the trade papers, consequently need not be further commented upon, but the committee requested from the board full power to represent the S. A. F. and O. H. at the conference; that power be extended to the committee to add to its body three members, and to share with the nurserymen the expense of employing a qualified man to assist in the protection of the interests of both bodies. A number of letters from interested growers and much printed matter were presented with the report.

Committee to Oppose Legislation.

The following resolutions were then offered by Mr. Gude:

Whereas: It has come to our notice that an effort is to be made to introduce legislation into Congress, seeking to prohibit at some future time the importation of plants, bulbs, plant products and nursery stock of all kinds from every source; and

Whereas: The executive committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists considers such measures not only unnecessary but injurious to the welfare of its members and of the whole horticultural trade of the United States; therefore

Be It Resolved: That the chairman of the legislative committee of the S. A. F. and O. H. be empowered, and he is hereby empowered, to oppose the proposed legislation, to act according to his judgment in the interests of our organization at the forthcoming conference, to get what assistance he can from any of its members, and to share with the nurserymen's legislative committee the expense of employing a trained man to help protect our joint interests.

The resolutions were, after a long discussion, adopted without change.

Firemen's License Laws.

Secretary Young presented correspondence regarding movements in Ohio and Maine requiring the licensing of firemen employed in greenhouse establishments. Mr. Gude criticised such requirements as absolutely nonsensical and believed they should be opposed by the society. Maine was following the precedent set by Ohio, and a bill was before a committee of its legislature seeking the licensing of firemen in charge of low-pressure heating plants. He offered the following resolution, which was passed:

Resolved: That the Society of Amercian Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists absolutely oppose the legislation proposed in the state of Maine compelling the employment of a licensed fireman for the firing of greenhouse boilers carrying less than ten pounds pressure, as being injurious to the welfare of the horticultural trade; and that this society deprecates the laws already passed in Ohio or other states, as highly detrimental to the horticultural interests affected by them.

State Stock Inspection.

Mr. Gude also offered the following resolution:

Whereas: Several of the states of the United States have enacted statutes relative to the inspection of stock, which render it practically impossible to send commercial shipments into such state; it is therefore

Resolved: That the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, through its tariff and legislative committee, use its power and influence to secure the enactment of uniform inspection laws throughout the United States.

This resolution was also carried.

Postpone Trade Directory.

The report of the committee on trade directory which, at the Houston convention, was referred to the board of directors for action, was taken up for discussion, and the board decided that the matter should be deferred until after some system had been established by the proposed bureau of national credits and collections.

Secretary Young presented his financial report for the year 1916. The report disclosed that $7,794.63 had been received during the year, and the accompanying report of the auditors, Edmonds & Bouton, Inc., New York, showed that this money had all been properly accounted for. It was seen that 293 new annual members had been secured and forty-one life members.

Membership Growing.

A financial statement for 1917, to March 10, showed receipts of $2,714.75; the addition of fifty-nine new annual members and thirty-two life members. The secretary also presented the report of the auditors on the National Flower Show accounts, covering receipts, as shown by the secretary's books, amounting to $62,301.

President Kerr asked Mr. Young whether he had noticed any increase or decrease in the society's membership in the last two months. The secretary stated that the society had more members in good standing than it ever had, as could be seen by the records, which spoke very well for the conventions held in the west and south.

Plans for Convention.

The secretary then made a report on the arrangements made for the convention to be held in New York next August. The main hall of the Grand Central Palace had been secured for the trade exhibition, at the low rental of $500, and the meeting hall for $100; a total of $600. As a comparison, he cited the cost of similar accommodations at Minneapolis, which cost $1,200. Orders for space in the trade's exhibition already booked approximated $3,000, but the floor plans showed available space to the amount of $8,000, all of which space he believed would be disposed of. The floor plans had been sent out, and copies could be secured by anyone interested.

Through the kind offices of the New York Botanical Society, the convention garden had been laid out in the Botanical Garden, Bronx park. Blueprints of the planting space had been prepared and would be distributed in a few days. He predicted a great success for the garden. Already about twenty applications for planting space had been received.

The members of the board, later, inspected the convention quarters.

At this point a motion was carried unanimously thanking Secretary Young for his efficient conduct of the secretary's office during the last year.

Convention in Spring.

A petition from the St. Louis Florists' Club asking that the board of directors change the convention date for 1918 to the period in spring when the National Flower Show would be held, was considered, and the change, by motion, approved, in accordance with power conferred under the amended by-laws. Mr. Gude stated that he had obtained the opinion of counsel in Washington on the legality of this procedure, and it was confirmed.

It was, on motion, decided to recommend to the incoming president the reappointment of the entomologist for the next ensuing year, in order that he may complete the special work enumerated in his report to the Houston convention.

On motion, Dr. Britton, on whom the superintendence of the convention garden devolved, was authorized to draw upon the society for money required for of cinerarias, spring bulbous plants and palms. Farquhar & Co. received a gold medal for their Flemish garden. R. Duly, gardener to L. D. Towle, showed brasso-cattleyas. Kameyama & Serada had a nice group of foliage and flowering plants.

Thomas Roland received a silver medal for superior culture of ericas and a similar award went to F. Dorner & Sons Co., for Carnation Laddie, finely shown for them by S. J. Goddard. A. N. Pierson, Inc., was awarded a certificate of merit for Climbing Rose Elizabeth Zeigler. William Sim received a similar award for his improved blue primrose, and T. D. Hatfield, gardener to Walter Hunnewell, the same for Rhododendron lutescens, a small-flowered yellow rhododendron from western China.

Awards of honorable mention were made to Charles Holbrow, for his new seedling rose; to William Martin, gardener to N. T. Kidder, for isoloma; to Strout's, for seeding carnation, Snow White; to Lowthorpe School of Horticulture, for a collection of geraniums; to John L. Smith, for Tulip President Wilson, and to T. D. Hatfield for a group of Acacia Drummondi. S. J. Goddard showed a fine vase of his new carnation, Doris. John Lawrence had a nice vase of seedling geraniums. There also was a pretty little Dutch garden that received honorable mention.

Mr. Saltonstall's Luncheon.

President R. M. Saltonstall entertained 110 of the exhibitors and other horticulturists at a luncheon at the Hotel Somerset March 23. The tables were beautifully decorated by the leading retailers. Short addresses were made by R. M. Saltonstall, who presided; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, James Wheeler, F. J. Dolansky, Robert Kift, James Methven, W. N. Craig and Chester R. Campbell.

Visitors to the exhibition were numerous from all parts of New England, others coming from New York New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

DOINGS OF THE DIRECTORS.

The Meeting at New York.

The mid Lent meeting of the board of directors of the Society of American Florists was held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, March 16 and 17. The following directors were present:

R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., president.
A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., vice president
John Young, New York, secretary.
J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., treasurer
Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.
Wm. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.
William F. Gude, Washington, D. C., Washington representative.
Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn
Frank X. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.
George W. Hess, Washington, D. C.
George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.
S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.
J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.
George E. M. Stumpp, New York.
A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.
Paul R. Klingsporn, Chicago, Ill.

Ex-President Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., was present on the invitation of President Kerr. William H. Amling, Chicago, Ill., director through his office as president of the Chicago Florists' Club, through illness, was unable to be present and the club's credentials delegating Paul R. Klingsporn as a substitute director were, on motion, accepted. Credentials from the various affiliated bodies covering the directors appointed by them were presented and, on motion, accepted, and the directors duly seated. President Kerr announced that he had exercised the privilege of inviting the members of the National Flower Show committee to sit at the meetings of the board.

An Advance for Mothers' Day.

Secretary Young reported that O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn., had agreed to act as chairman of the committee on Mothers' day. He also read a letter from E. J. Fancourt, a member of the committee, reporting on an interview recently had with Miss Jarvis in Philadelphia, and she had arranged to consider the matter of the best assistance the committee could render to advance the Mothers' day movement. Mr. Fancourt expressed the opinion that, if a proper campaign was started, at least $5,000 could be raised for the work, and suggested that the society might be willing to advance the sum of $1,000 to start such a campaign, which could not be started without considerable expense. Some discussion ensued, which generally endorsed the idea of supporting Miss Jarvis in her work, and finally the board directed that an advance of $1,000 be made to the committee, or as much thereof as might be necessary.

Credits and Collections.

The project of the establishment of a national credit and collection bureau was discussed at some length and, in order that the committee in charge of the project might have something definite on which to work, on motion of J. J. Hess, the president was directed to appoint a committee of three to draft suggestions in the matter, to be endorsed by the board, if found acceptable.

President Kerr appointed the following as such committee: S. S. Pennock, W. J. Keimel and G. E. M. Stumpp, with the latter as chairman.

There was no report from the committee on development of American products. The committee on school gardens reported progress.

The report of the committee on tariff and legislation being called for, it was presented by James McHutchison, of the committee, who was introduced by Mr. Gude, the chairman, in an address in which he appealed for prompt action by the board on the recommendations embodied in the report.

Defer Anti-Import Action.

The report was practically a brief on the proposed legislation to prohibit imports of plants, plant products and bulbs from all sources. The committee on the bill seeking this prohibition had, the report stated, agreed to defer legislative action pending a conference with the florists' and nurserymen's legislative committees, to be held probably next June or July. The details of the proposed legislation had, said the report, been published in the trade papers, consequently need not be further commented upon, but the committee requested from the board full power to represent the S. A. F. and O. H. at the conference; that power be extended to the committee to add to its body three members, and to share with the nurserymen the expense of employing a qualified man to assist in the protection of the interests of both bodies. A number of letters from interested growers and such printed matter were presented with the report.

Committee to Oppose Legislation.

The following resolutions were then offered by Mr. Gude:

Whereas: It has come to our notice that an effort is to be made to introduce legislation into Congress, seeking to prohibit at some future time the importation of plants, bulbs, plant products and nursery stock of all kinds from every source; therefore

Whereas: The executive committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists considers such measures not only unnecessary but injurious to the welfare of its members and of the whole horticultural trade of the United States; therefore

Be It Resolved: That the chairman of the legislative committee of the S. A. F. and O. H. be empowered, and he is hereby empowered, to oppose the proposed legislation, to act according to his judgment in the interests of our organization at the forthcoming conference, to get what assistance he can from any of its members, and to share with the nurserymen's legislative committee the expense of employing a trained man to help protect our joint interests.

The resolutions were, after a long discussion, adopted without change.

State Stock Inspection.

Mr. Gude also offered the following resolution:

This resolution was also carried.

On motion, Dr. Britton, on whom the superintendence of the convention garden devolved, was authorized to draw upon the society for money required for the prosecution of the work on the garden, as needed, to the extent of $1,000, the same to be deducted from the income from space.

A letter from Theodore Wirth, chairman of the convention garden committee, asking that, in the event of National Flower Show dates being adopted for the St. Louis convention, he be authorized to arrange, if possible, for an inside garden, was discussed and the requested authority granted.

After votes of thanks to the botanist, pathologist and entomologist, adjournment was taken for the luncheon tendered by the New York Florists' Club.

The board reconvened at 2 p. m.

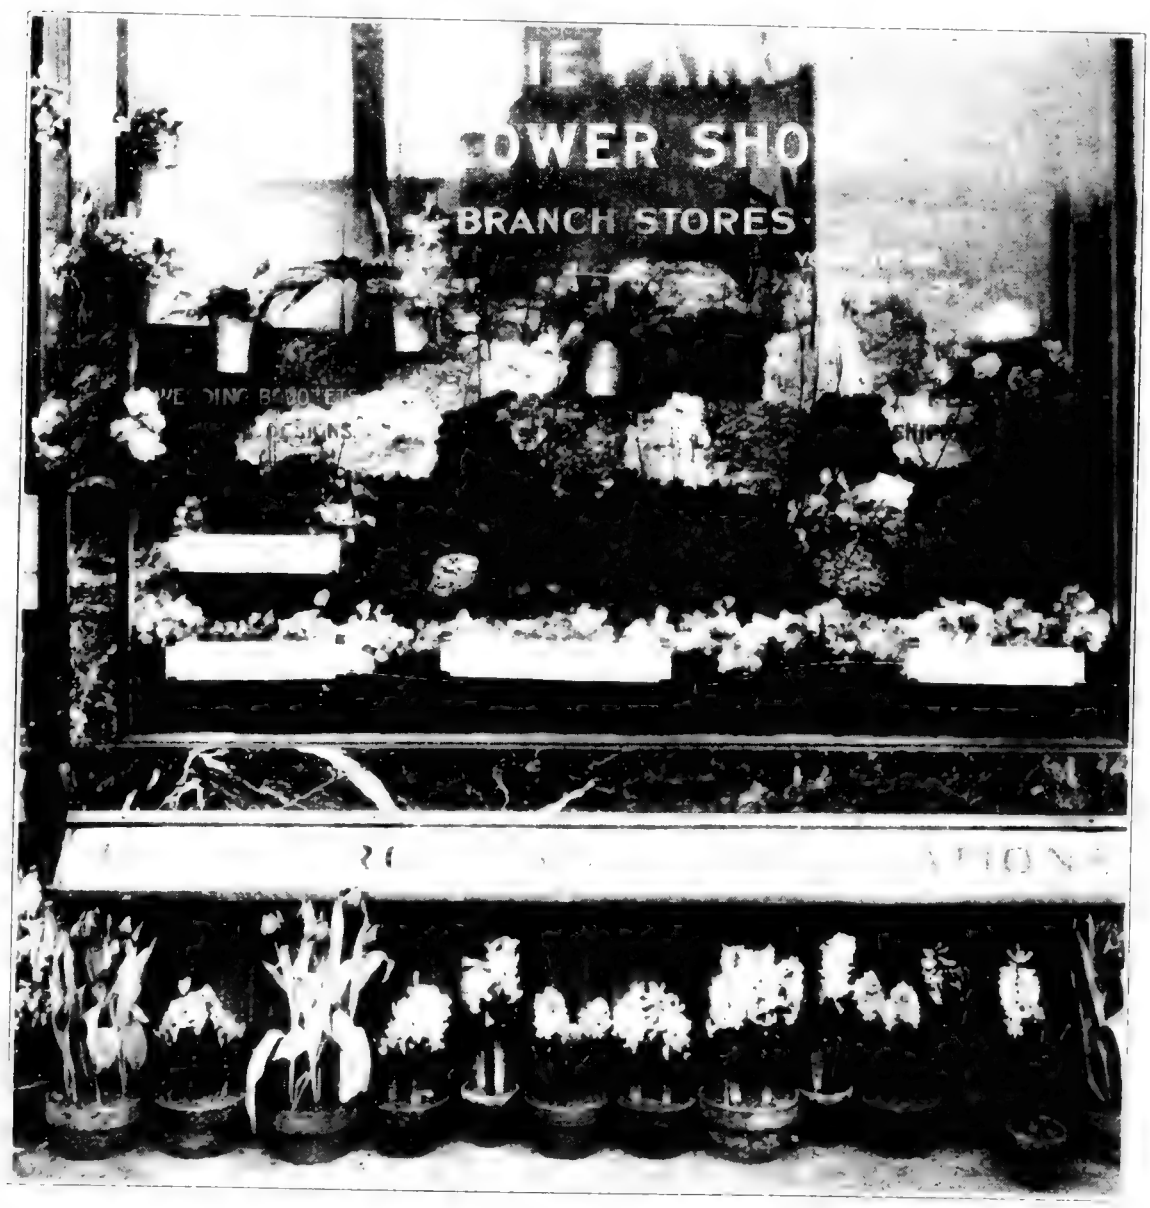
Secretary Young was excused, so that he could attend to some pressing business at the flower show.

Payments to Workers.

Appreciating the greatly increased duties of the secretary in connection with the work of the society, the board ordered an increase in his salary amounting to $500.

The question of a stipend to be paid the chairman of the National Flower Show committee for his services in connection with the Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia, referred to the board at the Houston convention, it was directed that the same be $1,000. It was also resolved that such officer hereafter be granted ten per cent of the net proceeds of a National Flower Show; and that members of the committee be allowed $5 per day as subsistence from the time they leave home until they return, when on National Flower Show business.

Adjournment was here taken until Saturday morning at 9:30.



The meeting opened on Saturday morning promptly at 9:30 o'clock. Thomas Roland, of the National Flower Show committee, was in attendance at this session.

Treasurer J. J. Hess presented his report covering the period July 15 to December 31, 1916; also the auditor's certification of audit.

Bonds of Officers Increased.

The board authorized the treasurer to invest as much of the general and permanent funds and all other funds he could consistently spare at this time, in gilt-edge first mortgages on real estate; such investments to be made with the approval of the president and the secretary.

On motion, the bond of the treasurer was increased to $30,000 and that of the secretary to $10,000.

Window of the Park Flower Shop, Cleveland, O.

The appropriations of last year were continued, excepting that the appropriation for the stenographic report of the convention was left in the hands of the secretary. The appropriation for the tariff and legislative committee was already decided upon.

Make Secretary Appointive.

A prolonged discussion took place as to the advisability of so amending the by-laws that the secretary be elected by the board of directors instead of by the convention as at present. Pros and cons were carefully considered, and there appeared to be much unanimity of opinion. Finally, the following resolution was passed by unanimous vote:

Whereas: This board of directors is held responsible for the government of the affairs of the society; and

Whereas: The constitution and by-laws have been amended that all directors be elected to office by the members at large instead of appointment by the president; therefore

Be It Resolved: That Section 2 of the constitution and by-laws be amended so that the secretary be elected by the board of directors for a term of one year at the mid-Lent meeting of the board.

Mileage of Directors.

The term "mileage" employed in the constitution and by-laws was discussed in order that a proper construction should be placed on it by the board. After the views of each member had been taken, it was, on motion, decided that the definition of "mileage" should be the nearest distance between the place where a director lived and where a meeting was to be held; and that the compensation, or rate, be 7 cents per mile one way.

After consideration of the matter of procuring essays for reading at the next convention, it was decided that the convention program be left in the hands of the vice-president and secretary.

Help F. T. D. Publicity.

An appropriation of $1,000 was made to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery for publicity purposes.

The balance of the session was devoted to a discussion of the working conditions of the National Flower Show committee, the individual efforts of its members, the absence of a proper appreciation of the time expended on the project by them, and the sacrifices of personal interests incurred during the progress of such work. The discussion was led by Mr. Asmus, who made a lengthy address dealing with the subject in various details.

The board then adjourned for luncheon as guests of the New York Florists' Club, to meet again at 3 o'clock p. m.

President Kerr called the afternoon meeting to order promptly.

The report of the sub-committee on national credits and collections bureau was called for, but the committee could only report progress. The work to be done in starting the bureau was, however, discussed at some length, and the matter of the election of a chairman of the standing committee was settled by the appointment by President Kerr of Patrick Welch, Boston, to be the chairman.

The board, at the request of Chairman Asmus, of the National Flower Show committee, authorized payment of mileage of representatives of the Rose and Carnation Societies when called to meetings of the committee.

Thank New York Hosts.

The committee on final resolutions, George W. Hess, chairman, William R. Nicholson and Daniel MacRorie, then presented the following resolution, which was adopted by a rising and unanimous vote:

Whereas: At the mid-Lent session of the executive board of the S. A. F. and O. H., the visiting members and others in attendance have enjoyed the greatest courtesy and hospitality at the hands of the New York Florists' Club; therefore

Be It Resolved: That we tender to our hosts our most heartfelt thanks for all the attention paid to us. We also thank the management of the International Flower Show for courtesies extended. We further desire to heartily thank Vice President Miller for his kind invitation to visit the Long Island florists on Sunday.

After further discussion of a few matters informally, the board adjourned sine die.

The members of the board in the evening were again the guests of the New York Florists' Club, at the club's banquet at the Hotel Biltmore.

POPULAR PRICES PLEASE PEOPLE.

That the great mass of common people offers the best field for the florist's wares is the theory of A. B. Barber, president and general manager of the Park Flower Shop Co.

He runs his business upon the principle that flowers are just as necessary as clothing and food to make life worth living. Judging from the amount of business being done in the company's three stores, and the increases being shown, his theory is sound, and he is putting his ideas across.

The Park Flower Shop Co. owns and operates stores in three Ohio cities. The Cleveland store, which is the headquarters of the company, is located at 144 Public Square, one of the busiest spots in the city. The Youngstown store, opened a year ago, is at 7 Federal street. The Akron store was opened about eight months ago at 109 South Main street.

Mr. Barber believes in letting people know what he has to sell and he is not bashful about telling them why it is to their advantage to buy flowers at the Park Flower Shops. He uses space in the newspapers at least once a week and supplements that with direct advertising for special occasions. For the direct work, folders, calendars and blotters are used and the price appeal is made predominant.

Saturday specials are an institution with the Park shops. They come as regularly as the day. They are always something good and at an attractive price. More than a few men have acquired the habit of taking flowers home every Saturday because of the appeal of these "specials."

The Park stores are open for business every day in the year with the exception of the Akron store, which is obliged to close Sundays by a Sunday closing law, unless it is near a holiday.

While the bulk of its business is in cut flowers and plants, of which large stocks are carried in each of the stores, the company has built up a fine business in funeral designs and has acquired a reputation for quick service, good work and moderate prices. Having stores located in three important cities in Ohio, the company is in a position to send flowers anywhere in the state on short notice.

Mr. Barber says that, while it may not be true that two can live as cheaply as one, especially with potatoes at the price they are, it certainly is true that he can buy for three stores cheaper than for one and the cheaper he buys, the more he can sell; business is steadily gaining and this Easter will be the biggest ever.

C. E. Russell is vice-president and H. B. Jones, secretary-treasurer, of this hustling concern.

NEW YORK FEDERATION MEETS.

A meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs was held at New York March 19. President F. R. Pierson presided. The following clubs were represented by delegates: New York Florists' Club, New York Horticultural Society, New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, Albany Horticultural Society, Rochester Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, Syracuse Florists' Association.

President Pierson reported regarding a joint meeting of delegates from the federation and from the New York Vegetable Growers' Association, which was held in Albany, February 22. This joint committee had a conference with the lieutenant governor, the chairman of the finance committee and the chairman of the ways and means committee regarding an appropriation for a horticultural building at the New York State Fair grounds.

President Pierson said the governor was keenly interested in the building, and that the committee was anxious to do everything possible to obtain it, but changing the race track and the necessity for new buildings for horses and swine, together with the financial situation in the state this year, seem to make it impossible for an appropriation to be made for the whole amount. It was hoped that a sufficient appropriation, at least, might be made to have the plans drawn and the construction on part of the buildings begun. The committee discussed with the state architect plans for a building large enough to accommodate the exhibits of fruits, vegetables, flowers and farm crops.

President Pierson also said that his committee had decided that because of the financial situation in the state, the money for the investigational range of greenhouses at Cornell University should not be asked for this year.

Charles Vick, of Rochester, Anton Schultheis, of College Point, and Fred Danker, of Albany, were appointed on a committee to confer with the commissioner of agriculture and the superintendent of the flower exhibit at the New York State Fair regarding the adjustment of a more satisfactory premium list for flowers and plants.

OUR NOVELTIES IN ENGLAND.

One of the British trade papers, in discussing carnations, recently said: "A good rule of life is, if one cannot say anything nice of people, to say nothing at all, and if one applied this rule in this case, one would not have much to say of most of the novelties of 1916. A bevy of American varieties have not made good, on this side of the water. Miss Theo, a rose-pink, is too blue, small and sleepy for this climate. The reds, Aviator, Belle Washburn, Nebraska and Red Wing, all show the weakness of reds in midwinter by going slaty. Red Wing is worth trying again, as it measures up and is similar to Beacon, still one of the best in this color. Aviator, too, is of fine color at times. Finally, Alice Coombs, a bright salmon-rose-pink, although of good color and substance, is slow, probably too slow to make a first-class market variety, and even the Dorner variety, Nancy, a fine salmon-pink and good grower, opens too slowly."

EXTERMINATOR OF CUTWORMS.

I am having considerable trouble with grubworms or cutworms in my greenhouse. The pests devour everything, and seem to be particularly fond of carnations and smilax. During the day they are invisible, but after dark they crawl up on the stems and eat the leaves. They drill holes through the carnation buds and destroy the flowers completely; even the roots suffer heavily. What is a good exterminator of these pests? I have used carbon bisulphide, but this treatment has been ineffectual. The soil was taken from an old field and well rotted manure was added. H. O.—N. D.

Your carnations undoubtedly are being attacked by one of the common cutworms, of which there are several varieties. They feed at night, and that is why you do not see them during the day. If you will take a strong bull's-eye lantern late at night, you will be able to see many of them and destroy them. Another method is to scatter poisoned bait where the insects are doing damage. Mix some bran with enough molasses to make a mash, then incorporate in it enough Paris green to make it deadly. The cutworms will eat the sweetened bran in preference to most vegetation. You perhaps will find this the most efficient remedy. A. F. J. B.

CARNATION BUDS HOLLOW.

If you closely examine the enclosed carnation bud you will notice that it is hollow. About one-half of my carnation buds come in that condition, and I would like to know the cause of the trouble and a remedy for it. The compost is good, with about four inches of well rotted manure in the bottom. Whenever the plants seem dry I water them, usually in the morning. The soil seems to contain little lime, but whether or not carnations require lime I do not know. The temperature in the house averages about 50 degrees, and when it goes higher on warm days I open the ventilators. I have not used liquid manure on the beds.

C. E. B.—Pa.

While the specimen arrived in a fresh condition, it gave no clue as to the probable cause of your trouble. One could see that it would never develop into a good flower; but there was no sign of insect or fungus. You did, however, make a serious mistake in putting four inches of manure under the soil when filling your bench. That may possibly have something to do with the blasting, although I would not be positive about it. A scant inch of manure on the bottom of the bench is ample, and even that is not essential to success. For next season, mix your carnation soil early this spring, using four parts of sod soil and one part of stable manure. If the stems are strong, your soil has enough lime. A. F. J. B.

THE F. T. D. IS GROWING.

In line with the provisions for publicity made at their special meeting at Chicago last year, the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association are accomplishing a great deal of missionary work in educating the public to the uses of the F. T. D. service. With each member availing himself of every opportunity to acquaint the people of his territory with the service, this phase of the retail business is bound to grow rapidly. Perhaps an indirect result of the drive for more F. T. D. orders has been an addition of about fifty new members to the association's membership list since the first of the year. There now are approximately 425 F. T. D. stores, indicating that one branch of the business is rapidly becoming better organized.

A ROSE OF PRIME QUALITY.

The title, "A Rose of Prime Quality," is not intended as an authoritative statement, but only as an attempted definition—a plausible interpretation of the name Primerose, with which one of the new roses has been christened. Please do not omit the "e" at the end of the first syllable of the name, for the rose is supposed to be "prime"; that is, "first in rank or excellence," as Webster says. And some of the noted rosarians, such as E. G. Hill, Chas. H. Totty and A. N. Pierson, Inc., have watched the behavior of the rose long enough so that they have confidence in it and feel safe in recommending it as being reasonably worthy of its name. In helping to disseminate it, they do not seem to have serious fears that their reputation for honesty and good judgment will suffer on its account.

Primerose is a hybrid tea and was introduced in 1913, by Soupert & Notting, one of the famous European firms whose names naturally occur to us whenever we think of roses.

Apparently the aforementioned trio of authorities, Messrs. Pierson, Hill and Totty, have not borrowed their opinions of the rose from one another, but each speaks from personal observation. Yet they seem to be in substantial accord with reference to the main characteristics of the rose. They agree that it is at least fairly free in growth and of good habit; that its foliage is of a bronzy cast, "deep bronzy maroon when young and bronzy green in later stages"; that the bud is long and pointed and the fully developed flower is shapely and of good size. They even agree approximately in their description of that almost indescribable quality, the color of the flower. They say that the hue is "saffron and cream with apricot shadings," "Indian yellow with apricot shadings," "a deep shade of pinkish yellow," or "melon yellow in warm weather, golden yellow with apricot shadings in autumn and winter."

Mr. Totty says that the rose, under his culture, seems to be proof against mildew and spot and that he "feels sure it has a future as a greenhouse rose." He says it resembles Ophelia, but has more substance and color.

ROSE FOLIAGE SCORCHED.

I am enclosing some rose leaves. Can you tell me the cause of these leaves falling off? I think there may be a gas leak. Would this cause the leaves to fall? Would the fumes of sulphur which was burned on the steam pipes be the cause? G. T.—Wis.

Either escaping gas or strong sulphur fumes from steam pipes would injure foliage in this way. A leak of gas would be the more probable cause and you should make an effort to locate it. Either sewer or illuminating gas is deadly to plant life and the damage is, of course, most serious while the ground is frozen and while the greenhouses are tightly closed at night. C. W.

WORMS IN ROSE BEDS.

I am sending you under separate cover a sample of some worms that are numerous in my rose beds. I would like to know the name of them and how they can be exterminated. Any information regarding them will be greatly appreciated. T. G. O.—Miss.

The particular worms sent were badly shriveled up in the bottle when received and were not recognizable. If these are harming your roses you should use some carbon bisulphide in the soil to suffocate them. Bore holes twelve to fifteen inches apart each way across your beds. They need not be over two or three inches deep. Pour a scant teaspoonful of the liquid in each hole and immediately cover with soil. Go over your beds in this way. The fumes of the carbon will not harm the plants, but will suffocate the worms. Carbon bisulphide comes in pound cans and is inexpensive. Do not use any naked lights while applying it, as it is of an explosive nature. Sterilization of your soil before planting another season would kill out all these and other soil pests. C. W.

ALL ABOUT OPHELIA.

The splendid results everywhere obtained with the Ophelia rose have set on foot a wide discussion of how it first came to notice. The British trade papers recently have printed many letters on the subject. Say the originators, Wm. Paul & Son, Ltd.: "Some may suppose that the origin of the rose is obscure or unknown. This is not the case. Ophelia was raised by us and was distributed by us with other novelties in the spring of 1912. At the time of distribution it was publicly exhibited by us and many rosarians visiting our nurseries saw it growing and flowering here, so that they had ample opportunities of gauging its merits."

One widely quoted writer made the statement that E. G. Hill was impressed with the rose at the Beckwith Nurseries, at Hoddesdon. Beckwith & Son say: "We had not even heard of the rose until towards the close of the year 1912, when our friend, E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., wrote to the late George Beckwith and urged him strongly to give it a thorough trial as a forcing variety, as he had proved it to be a good thing in America and intended to boom it. Acting on this advice, we purchased plants from the raisers, Wm. Paul & Son, of Waltham Cross, January 9, 1913, and immediately worked up a few hundred plants for trial in the following year. Mr. Hill has not yet seen the rose growing in our nurseries, as his last visit was prior to our purchasing it. As a garden rose Ophelia was not 'discovered' by America, but as a market forcing variety the credit for its 'discovery' is solely due to Mr. Hill. It is true that the majority of really good forcing roses, suitable for market growers, during the last few years have been 'discovered' by Americans, but there is an element of luck in it, as our own trials every year of new roses are extensive and expensive, and it is a long time since we found a good one. Had Ophelia been exhibited at the National Rose Society shows before 1913, we should have tried it without any advice."

WE SHOULD WORRY.

It is suggested that the number of novelties coming from Europe will be greatly reduced by the war, if, indeed, importations are not cut off by the enactment of the prohibitory law proposed by the gentlemen who fear the United States may be eaten up by some unheard-of foreign insect. But we should worry. We have enough novelties in sight in this country to keep us busy until we can raise some more.

The list of new roses of American origin is particularly attractive. Several Ophelia seedlings are in sight and at La Fayette, Ind., F. Dorner & Sons Co., raiser of Hoosier Beauty, has been working with that variety and with Sunburst. One of the seedlings from that cross has been named Rose Marie. It is rose-pink and, if importations of Manetti are to be shut off, it is important to note that, like Sunburst, it does well on its own roots. The accompanying illustration shows the Dorner house of Rose Rose Marie as it looked about the middle of March.

CARNATIONS

OUR NOVELTIES IN ENGLAND.

One of the British trade papers, in discussing carnations, recently said: "A good rule of life is, if one cannot say anything nice of people, to say nothing at all, and if one applied this rule in this case, one would not have much to say of most of the novelties of 1916. A bevy of American varieties have not made good, on this side of the water. Miss Theo, a rose pink, is too blue, small and sleepy for this climate. The reds, Aviator, Belle Washburn, Nebraska and Red Wing, all show the weakness of reds in midwinter by going slaty. Red Wing is worth trying again, as it measures up and is similar to Beacon, still one of the best in this color. Aviator, too, is of fine color at times. Finally, Alice Coombs, a bright salmon-rose-pink, although of good color and substance, is slow, probably too slow to make a first-class market variety, and even the Dorner variety, Nancy, a fine salmon-pink and good grower, opens too slowly."

EXTERMINATOR OF CUTWORMS.

I am having considerable trouble with grubworms or cutworms in my greenhouse. The pests devour everything, and seem to be particularly fond of carnations and smilax. During the day they are invisible, but after dark they crawl up on the stems and eat the leaves. They drill holes through the carnation buds and destroy the flowers completely; even the roots suffer heavily. What is a good exterminator of these pests? I have used carbon bisulphide, but this treatment has been ineffectual. The soil was taken from an old field and well rotted manure was added. H. O. N. D.

Your carnations undoubtedly are being attacked by one of the common cutworms, of which there are several varieties. They feed at night, and that is why you do not see them during the day. If you will take a strong bull's-eye lantern late at night, you will be able to see many of them and destroy them. Another method is to scatter poisoned bait where the insects are doing damage. Mix some bran with enough molasses to make a mash, then incorporate in it enough Paris green to make it deadly. The cutworms will eat the sweetened bran in preference to most vegetation. You perhaps will find this the most efficient remedy. A. F. J. B.

CARNATION BUDS HOLLOW.

If you closely examine the enclosed carnation bud you will notice that it is hollow. About one half of my carnation buds come in that condition, and I would like to know the cause of the trouble and a remedy for it. The compost is good, with about four inches of well rotted manure in the bottom. Whenever the plants seem dry I water them, usually in the morning. The soil seems to contain little lime, but whether or not carnations require lime I do not know. The temperature in the house averages about 50 degrees, and when it goes higher on warm days I open the ventilators. I have not used liquid manure on the beds.

C. E. B.—Pa.

While the specimen arrived in a fresh condition, it gave no clue as to the probable cause of your trouble. One could see that it would never develop into a good flower; but there was no sign of insect or fungus. You did, however, make a serious mistake in putting four inches of manure under the soil when filling your bench. That may possibly have something to do with the blasting, although I would not be positive about it. A scant inch of manure on the bottom of the bench is ample, and even that is not essential to success. For next season, mix your carnation soil early this spring, using four parts of sod soil and one part of stable manure. If the stems are strong, your soil has enough lime. A. F. J. B.

THE F. T. D. IS GROWING.

In line with the provisions for publicity made at their special meeting at Chicago last year, the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association are accomplishing a great deal of missionary work in educating the public to the uses of the F. T. D. service. With each member availing himself of every opportunity to acquaint the people of his territory with the service, this phase of the retail business is bound to grow rapidly. Perhaps an indirect result of the drive for more F. T. D. orders has been an addition of about fifty new members to the association's membership list since the first of the year. There now are approximately 425 F. T. D. stores, indicating that one branch of the business is rapidly becoming better organized.

ROSES

A ROSE OF PRIME QUALITY.

The title, "A Rose of Prime Quality," is not intended as an authoritative statement, but only as an attempted definition—a plausible interpretation of the name Primerose, with which one of the new roses has been christened. Please do not omit the "e" at the end of the first syllable of the name, for the rose is supposed to be "prime"; that is, "first in rank or excellence," as Webster says. And some of the noted rosarians, such as E. G. Hill, Chas. H. Totty and A. N. Pierson, Inc., have watched the behavior of the rose long enough so that they have confidence in it and feel safe in recommending it as being reasonably worthy of its name. In helping to disseminate it, they do not seem to have serious fears that their reputation for honesty and good judgment will suffer on its account.

Primerose is a hybrid tea and was introduced in 1913, by Soupert & Notting, one of the famous European firms whose names naturally occur to us whenever we think of roses.

Apparently the aforementioned trio of authorities, Messrs. Pierson, Hill and Totty, have not borrowed their opinions of the rose from one another, but each speaks from personal observation. Yet they seem to be in substantial accord with reference to the main characteristics of the rose. They agree that it is at least fairly free in growth and of good habit; that its foliage is of a bronzy cast, "deep bronzy maroon when young and bronzy green in later stages"; that the bud is long and pointed and the fully developed flower is shapely and of good size. They even agree approximately in their description of that almost indescribable quality, the color of the flower. They say that the hue is "saffron and cream with apricot shadings," "Indian yellow with apricot shadings," "a deep shade of pinkish yellow," or "melon yellow in warm weather, golden yellow with apricot shadings in autumn and winter."

Mr. Totty says that the rose, under his culture, seems to be proof against mildew and spot and that he "feels sure it has a future as a greenhouse rose." He says it resembles Ophelia, but has more substance and color.

ROSE FOLIAGE SCORCHED.

I am enclosing some rose leaves. Can you tell me the cause of these leaves falling off? I think there may be a gas leak. Would this cause the leaves fall? Would the fumes of sulphur which was burned on the steam pipes the cause? G. T.—Wis.

Either escaping gas or strong sulphur fumes from steam pipes would injure foliage in this way. A leak of gas would be the more probable cause and one should make an effort to locate it. Either sewer or illuminating gas is deadly to plant life and the damage is, of course, most serious while the ground is frozen and while the greenhouses are tightly closed at night. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Winter-Flowering Begonias.

It is hoped that everyone has put in an ample supply of leaves of Cincinnati, Lorraine and other winter-flowering begonias. If not, lose no time in getting in more leaves. During winter, while there is a steady bottom heat and a lack of top heat, these begonias root more easily. The earliest batch of plants, potted some time ago, will be sending up a good number of shoots and will be ready for a shift from 2¼-inch to 3-inch pots. Avoid large shifts at this time, and be sure to use a light compost. One containing plenty of flaky leaf-mold, with some sharp sand and a little old manure, will suit the plants to a nicety. Give them a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees and moderate shade. If the plants can stand on a bench where there is a little bottom heat, they will make all the better headway.

Gladioli.

Gladioli wanted for a Memorial day crop should be planted in benches now. It should be remembered that pinks and reds sell much better than whites at that season. Perhaps you want some gladioli to come along in good season outdoors, but have not facilities for benching these in your greenhouses. In such cases it will pay to start a few dozens or hundreds, according to your needs, in 3-inch pots. Either earthenware or paper pots may be used. If you cannot spare greenhouse space, they will do well in a gentle hotbed. A foot of fresh manure, well tramped, a layer of fine coal ashes over this, just sufficiently deep to half plunge the pots, will give them an ideal start. They can be gradually hardened and planted outdoors early in May. They will flower two or three weeks ahead of the outdoor-planted dormant tubers.

Marguerites for Bedding Out.

The white marguerite, Mrs. F. Sander, is not sufficiently planted out for summer blooming. The ordinary single white and yellow varieties are flowerless about all summer, but bloom a little before the frost kills them. Mrs. Sander, on the other hand, will flower right through the hot weather, and, while under glass the bulk of these are single or semi-double, practically all are double outdoors. It proves extremely useful for funeral work, in addition to being a good bedder. Put in a good batch of this marguerite now, in order to have good 4-inch pots for sale in May. Give the plants outdoors good soil, and water if they are droughty. They will well repay you for the little extra labor incurred.

Allamandas.

Allamandas are among our most valuable summer-flowering plants. While usually classed as stove or tropical subjects, they will succeed splendidly in an ordinary greenhouse. Plants which were rested in winter will now have well matured wood and should be pruned back and later shaken out and repotted, using a compost of two-thirds fibrous loam and one-third old cow manure. If in large pots or tubs or planted out, the removal of some of the old surface soil and a liberal top-dressing will suffice for them. Allamanda Hendersoni is one of our finest climbers. A. Williamsi, with smaller flowers, is the best to use for a pot plant. At Newport, R. I., and other summer resorts these allamandas are largely used both in pots and for cutting, and delightful they are for table decorations.

Fancy-Leaved Caladiums.

A fine selection of fancy-leaved caladiums nowadays can be purchased at quite low prices. Some people object to colored-leaved plants, and they are at present under something of a cloud, but they will again have their innings. These caladiums should be started in shallow flats of clear sand and when well started they can be potted off in a compost of fibrous loam old cow manure, leaf-mold and sand. They like a little brisk heat, and under glass should have some shade, but not a heavy shade, or it will dull the beautiful and natural colorings of the leaves. Caladiums are useful as piazza plants in hot weather. They can also be used in living rooms and will succeed when well bedded out, if some taller plants are grown which cast a little shade over them.

Spiræas for Easter.

While not a specially valuable plant as compared with the lily, hydrangea, rambler or azalea for Easter, the spiræa is an easily grown and serviceable plant which can be sold at a moderate price. The plants can hardly be overwatered. Elevate some of your best plants on pots and place saucers below them. Never mind if the saucers are full of water; it will not cause any loss of foliage, as it would in the case of hydrangeas or even marguerites. They stand much heat while forcing, but be sure to give them an abundance of water. Do not fumigate them with ordinary tobacco stems and be sure to remove the fine new pink and lavender varieties to a shaded position as the flowers open, or they will fade out badly.

Vegetable Plants.

Many country florists do a considerable business in vegetable plants in spring and early summer. Now is the time to start a number of these. For an early cabbage use Copenhagen Market or Early Jersey Wakefield. For an early tomato, Chalk's Early Jewel or Sparks' Earliana. For main crop varieties Stone or Dwarf Stone cannot be surpassed. For an early celery Golden Self-blanching is the best, with later sowings of Winter Queen and Boston Market for winter use. Snowball cauliflower, May King and Big Boston lettuces can also be sown now. If you cannot sell all the plants you raise, be sure to plant some of them out for yourself, and thus help to combat the increasing cost of living.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

FERNS IN THE SOUTH.

The summer culture of ferns, especially of the nephrolepis family, varies much in the south according to latitude. In the sections where rain storms are frequent, the plants do much better planted out in a frame, with no protection from the sun, than when planted in a slat house. In these sections too much damage is caused to the young fronds by the larvæ of a night-prowling moth. The month of August seems to be favored as a time for destruction. Various remedies are used with more or less success, particularly spraying with Slug Shot or fir tree oil. Setting the plants out in the full sun, however, seems to be the best insurance against the pest, and in the drier sections of the south this pest has never given any trouble. There the plants require some sun protection, such as a lath house affords. In planting always leave room for the plants to develop without undue crowding. They will require much water, but should not be deluged by a strong pressure from the hose. August in the northern and September in the southern sections are the best months in which to transfer the plants from frames to pots. Needless to say, the weeds and grass must be kept down at all times. L.

CYCLAMENS IN THE SOUTH.

The first batch of cyclamens that were pricked off ten or twelve weeks ago will probably need handling again. Instead of putting them into 2¼ or 2½-inch pots, try them in boxes or in a shallow bed. They seem to grow more quickly when handled in this way and are easier to water and cultivate. They can be potted when ready for 3-inch pots. The soil at this stage should be at least half leaf-mold, with a little decayed manure. The red clay soil in most sections in the south requires much leaf-mold to make it suitable for cyclamens. The glass over the plants should now have a little shade, to break the sun's rays. In potting cyclamens see that drainage is thoroughly provided for and you will find the danger from overwatering reduced to a minimum.

As soon as the cold weather is gone the young plants should be placed in a coldframe, using lath shades as a protection from the sun. To keep thrips away use tobacco stems between the rows of plants, and renew this treatment every third week. Use glass sashes to protect the plants from rain storms. Remove all shading at night, to give plants the benefit of the dew.

During the hottest months the plants may be "dewed" daily by using a fine spray nozzle on the hose, but keep a watch for spot on the foliage. At the first appearance of this stop all "dewing" at once. A spraying with half an ounce of potassium sulphide dissolved in a gallon of water will check the spot quickly, seldom requiring two applications. Give the plants frequent stirrings of the surface soil during the summer season, and avoid overpotting at all times, or rather avoid shifting until the pot is well filled with roots. L.

BALTIMORE'S LARGEST GROWER.

[Tate, the Baltimore correspondent of The Review, recently visited the range of Isaac Moss, Inc., near that city, and has written an interesting account of what he saw there.]

One Saturday I made a pilgrimage out to the range of Isaac H. Moss, Inc. What a busy place that is! It was about half an hour before I could get our old friend, Ike, with his corncob pipe, seated comfortably in his office and to say: "I am at your disposal."

He is just the same today as he was thirty years ago, refusing to be in the least flustered, no matter what the excitement may be, and success has in no way spoiled him.

As I was waiting to get him alone, where I could ask questions, the thought came to me that as our column is to help those in the trade, I could do nothing better than to give some of the younger men in the trade his experience. What one man has been able to accomplish, some other man should be able to duplicate.

Started Thirty-five Years Ago.

I can remember well when he first started in business. It was in 1882 that Ike, after serving an apprenticeship of ten years in the nurseries and greenhouses of W. D. Brackenbridge, started out with a single lean-to house, 15x50, and no assets except a rugged constitution and a determination to succeed. This little house was in the yard of his father's home. In a few years two more span-roofed houses were added and he was getting along nicely when a carriage factory was erected on an adjoining lot. The building shaded about half his glass and made it useless. But this did not deter him; it just aroused the fighting spirit in the man, for he secured a lot across the road and erected a lean-to house 25x100 feet. Then he gradually added to this until he had a range of six houses, each 25x75, in addition to the first house.

Plant Now Is Modern.

These houses stood until 1910, when he replaced them with a range of iron-frame houses, which are furnished with every modern device. Three of them, 30x180, are devoted to roses and, although they were off crop just at that time, I thought this would be a good place to find good Richmonds, White Killarneys, and Brilliants about Easter. They were all looking fine, not a trace of mildew, and as clean a looking range of roses as one would wish to look at.

Then he had a house of carnations which were especially good. In this house there were just two varieties, Beacon and Enchantress. Another house was devoted to callas and they were fine, there being no trace of disease.

Another house was devoted to plants for Easter. Azaleas, lilies, wistaria and lilacs were credits to the genial foreman, W. C. Price.

Isaac H. Moss.

Another feature of this business, which I must not forget, is landscaping. Nearly every place through Greenspring valley bears the stamp of Moss, so that out on Bellona avenue, almost adjoining the place where he had served his time, he has twenty-one acres of fine ornamental nursery stock. On this place there also is a range of six houses, 30x200, all except two devoted to carnations. In one of these houses there is red and pink Radiance and the other is as fine a house of field-grown roses in 6-inch pots as one would wish to look at.

All of this range has grown from the little lean-to house in his father's yard.

His Recipe for Success.

As I asked him to what special feature he owed his success, he replied: "Hard work and a close application to business."

So if any young man, who is fighting for a foothold in business, should become discouraged, my advice to him would be to take an afternoon off, go out to Govans and see what one young man, without capital to start with, has been able to accomplish. And I am sure he will go back to his work with new determination and hope.

There was one thing that impressed me greatly; it was that, in spite of all those years of close application, time has dealt gently with our friend, as his picture will show. I am sure it is the wish of all the boys in the trade that he may be spared many years yet to enjoy the fruits of his labors. Tate.

TRY A CROSS AND LILIES.

I am new at the retail business and would like a suggestion for an Easter window display. It must be inexpensive in character, but I would like something different from what we usually have. I have a nice variety of plants and a window about 5x10 feet.

L. C.—O.

A novel Easter window display can be made at small cost if you will combine art with stock. Your window is of good size and the following suggestion could well be carried into effect: In one corner, preferably the main corner, could be placed a large standing cross from four to six feet in height. This could be made with magnolia leaves carefully arranged so that they could be used over again. My preference would be the brown leaves, over which a nice spray of Easter lilies could be arranged, with the stems in test tubes of water so that they would not wilt. At the back of the cross, built away up, I would place Easter lily plants, making them to appear as though they were growing on a mound. A few doves hanging from the ceiling would greatly improve the effect. Other Easter novelties and plants could be shown to their best advantage kept at a reasonable distance from the cross. A handsome bow of lavender ribbon tied among the lilies on the cross would enrich the effect. H. J. H.

Washington, Pa.—The Warrick Floral Co. was one of the participants in the manufacturers' and merchants' exposition held by the Board of Trade March 27 to 29, the object being to boom the town by attracting out-of-town visitors.

Kearney, Neb.—J. E. Charlson, of the Kearney Floral Co., is planning an extension of his facilities, the work to be commenced at an early date. A steady increase in business makes it necessary that more space be had, both in the office and in the greenhouses.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

PESTS ON LETTUCE.

Some time ago I wrote to The Review regarding insects with which my lettuce is infested and in your reply you requested that I send you some of the insects. I am therefore enclosing some of the infested lettuce. The ground just under the plant is covered with this pest. Can you tell me what it is? Has the green fly anything to do with it? Does the green fly have a different appearance in its different stages, like other insects? Any information on how to successfully combat this pest on my lettuce, and how to control lettuce diseases, will be appreciated. W. F.—Pa.

This aphis has no connection with the common green aphis. There are over forty varieties of aphides that infest greenhouse plants. Fumigation with nicotine extract and scattering tobacco dust below the plants will check the injuries materially. Aphides breed with marvelous rapidity, in many instances being viviparous; that is, in these instances there are no eggs, but the aphides are born alive. Against the whole aphis family such remedies as nicotine extracts, whale oil soap, kerosene emulsion, etc., are used, but of course lettuce would be unsalable if such liquid sprays were used on them. I think that to clean out these and allied pests and diseases affecting lettuce, you should sterilize your soil or rotate crops. The sterilizing would be of the greatest benefit in controlling lettuce leaf-rot and allied diseases. C. W.

FRUIT ROT ON TOMATOES.

I have a house of Bonny Best tomatoes which were planted late last fall and which should have been through bearing fruit by February 1; but as we have had little sun, the tops of the plants are full of green fruit ready to ripen and a large number are beginning to rot at the ends. Also, some of them seem to have a rusty streak at the end. Is this a disease? I burned wood the greater part of the winter, on account of the scarcity of coal, and, of course, could not keep an even temperature. I have tried to keep the temperature at 62 to 65 degrees during the night and higher during the day, but some nights it has varied 8 or 10 degrees. I have allowed the plants to go somewhat dry during the cloudy weather, with a moderate supply of water on sunny days. I am sending a sample under separate cover and shall appreciate any information on the subject.

F. D. C.—Mass.

The cause of rot on tomatoes is not yet known. It is liable to come more frequently after long spells of dark weather, and affects most the plants which are badly crowded. The only remedy I know of is to pick off and destroy all affected fruit and in this way help to prevent the spread of the fungus. Tomatoes like dry conditions at the root during dark weather and your treatment seems to have been correct. Air the plants on all favorable occasions, as a close atmosphere is favorable to the spread of this disease. I think if you planted such special forcing tomatoes as Comet, Stirling Castle and Lister's Prolific you would find them more profitable under glass than Bonny Best, which, while a useful outdoor variety, has its limitations for forcing purposes. C. W.

INSECTS ON CUCUMBERS.

I am writing for information about the insects on my cucumbers, of which you will find a sample enclosed. Please tell me how to destroy them.

W. H. W.—O.

The leaves enclosed were cracked and in small fragments when received. I did not notice any signs of aphis. These are easily taken care of by fumigation or spraying with a nicotine solution. One fragment of leaf contained some red spider. This is a serious pest. It breeds where the atmosphere is dry, and is most liable to appear in quite warm parts of the house, particularly near heating pipes. The best remedy for this is a pressure of cold water from the hose, well directed through a fine spray nozzle below the foliage. Also, use the hose more freely on any portions of bench or floors, or below benches where there is the greatest drying out. An increased atmospheric moisture will prove uncongenial to red spider. C. W.

BUGS ON VIOLETS.

There is a pest on my violets which has the appearance of a chinch bug. It eats holes in the flowers and foliage and causes them to turn yellow. I am enclosing a few leaves with some of the pests on them. Can you tell me how to get rid of this bug? Would you advise me to use nicotine? Also, what treatment shall I give the violets in order to have them nicely in bloom for Easter?

C. M. S.—O.

The pest is one with which I am not acquainted. You should be able to get rid of it by either a nicotine fumigation or spraying, or both. In spraying be sure to use a fine nozzle and direct the spray below the foliage as well as possible. More than one application may be necessary to clean out the pest. A fumigation with one of the standard nicotine extracts should account for most of these pests. A mulch of well decayed manure will be beneficial to your plants. You could further improve them by giving an application of liquid cow or sheep manure water, but do not use any chemicals. They make the flowers too soft. Violets will need an abundant supply of water as the days grow longer and warmer. Some shade may be needed to keep your plants in condition for Easter.

C. W.

Auburn, R. I.—C. W. Patt & Son specialize in lettuce and mention the late frost in the south as a factor in even higher prices being obtained for this popular salad.

Westerly, R. I.—Conrad Schultz says business has considerably increased since the opening of the store downtown. Important changes are contemplated during the coming summer.

Danbury, Conn.—T. H. Judd is so pleased with the returns from the new house recently built that he feels like adding another, providing spring business turns out in proportion to present conditions.

Waterbury, Conn.—Alex. Dallas & Son report a busy season in which funeral work has formed a large part. Raising the bulk of the stock used, the cost of production figures heavier than usual, the dull weather causing a short supply when most needed.

Auburn, R. I.—J. A. Budlong & Son have cut back part of the Beauty stock following a successful season. In addition to being one of the largest growers of roses in the east, Messrs. Budlong grow large quantities of cucumbers, which are bottled and pickled on the place.

Amherst, Mass.—Prof. A. H. Nehrling left Amherst March 17, to take up his new work as manager of the McDonald Floral Co., Crawfordsville, Ind. Clark Thayer, instructor at Cornell, has arrived in Amherst to fill temporarily the position at the Massachusetts Agricultural College left vacant by Prof. Nehrling.

Norwich, Conn.—The Geduldig Greenhouses are well equipped for a good Easter trade. No complaint to register, says Otto Ernst, proprietor.

Amherst, Mass.—The Florists' and Gardeners' Club Annual is being distributed. Members of the trade may obtain copies by addressing Harry Saidel, Amherst, Mass.

Lynn, Mass.—Mr. Van Maldeghem, working foreman for Gibbs Bros., claims a record for well flowered cyclamens. For Christmas he had eighty-five plants in 9-inch pots and each plant carried sixty or more flowers; one had ninety-three open flowers and another, counting the buds that showed above the leaves, had 116! Some of the plants in 7-inch pots had seventy blooms and the smaller sizes were proportionately heavily flowered.

Augusta, Me.—Florists in this state are not greatly exercised over the impending passage of House Bill No. 110, requiring the licensing of firemen operating steam boilers. In the first place, it applies only in cities of 40,000 population, of which there is only one in Maine. Also, a special grade license is provided for night firemen and those in charge of low-pressure heating plants. Also, the bill provides that any person "who has operated a boiler in any particular plant for five consecutive years and who shall produce a satisfactory statement from his employer to that effect, shall be entitled to a license to operate the boiler and engine in this particular plant where he is employed, without examination, and upon payment of the fees prescribed for the granting of licenses by examination."

OBITUARY

Lawrence Cotter.

Lawrence Cotter, manager of the Lake View Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., died at Jamestown, March 24. Mr. Cotter was formerly manager of the Castle Grove Greenhouses, Danville, Pa., and subsequently, but before assuming charge of the Lake View Rose Gardens, was located at Dorchester, near Boston. Associated with him at Jamestown was his son, Charles N. Cotter.

Harry G. Lehr.

Harry G. Lehr, member of the firm of Lehr Bros., retailers and growers, Baltimore, Md., died March 20. His death came within a month of that of his father, William F. Lehr, who established the Lehr range at Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, near Baltimore, in 1850. The funeral services were held March 22 and were attended by many of the Baltimore florists. Mr. Lehr and his brother, William G. Lehr, succeeded their father in the management of the range at Brooklyn. This is one of the finest rose ranges in Maryland. Both businesses will be continued by the brother.

Mrs. Mary A. Chapin.

Mrs. Mary A. Chapin, in the florists' business for thirty-six years with her two sons under the firm name of Chapin Bros., died at her home in Lincoln, Neb., March 20. Mrs. Chapin's death was sudden and, although 91 years of age, she took intense interest in the business until she died. With her sons, Leonard C. and Howard A. Chapin, Mrs. Chapin opened a retail store in Lincoln in 1881 and the business has grown with the city. It will be continued by the sons.

Frederick C. Page.

Among this month's victims of pneumonia was Frederick C. Page, of Morris, Ill., whose death March 11 brought to a close the career of one of the pioneer florists of the state. For half a century Mr. Page had followed his calling of florist and gardener at Morris.

The decedent was born in Colin, Germany, May 6, 1832. In 1865 he married Miss Maria Krammer and two years later came to America and settled at Morris. Nine children were born, seven of whom survive.

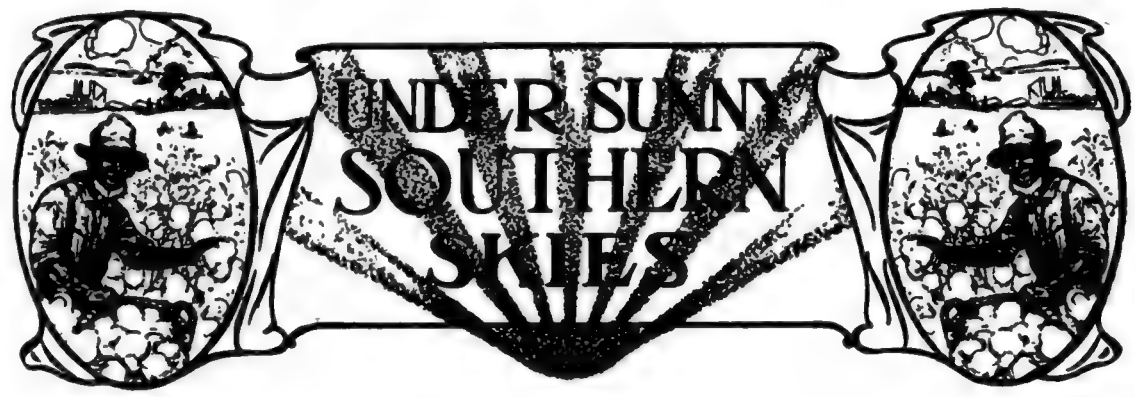
PROPAGATION OF VIOLETS.

How should cuttings be taken from violets in order to have good success with them? I have heard that runners taken at this time of the year will not do well. M. B.—Minn.

Violets may be propagated from runners. These make fairly good plants, but I have had much better success by dividing plants when the blooming season has passed, cutting the leaves and roots back somewhat, putting these into flats of sandy loam and later transplanting them to the field. This is especially true of the singles. As the doubles bloom a month later than the singles, I would prefer to take good runners from these where obtainable and make up any deficiency from divisions of the old plants. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Mark Aitken, of Springfield, Mass., summed up the situation with the remark: "You may mark my word, that this Easter will see the biggest clean-up of blooming plants and cut flowers in the history of the trade. Our stock of lilies and azaleas was never finer. I agree with Mr. Danker that azaleas grown the second year seem to last longer in residences, and our customers favor the natural shape."



Albert M. Herr, of Lancaster, was picking out orders for rooted cuttings of geraniums and remarked that the space occupied on the benches was just one-half of what it usually was and what it should be. The mercury was dodging around zero; old Boreas was howling and inspired the observation that extra wrapping material was required. "Additional costs all around," said Mr. Herr.

Ernst C. Ludwig, of Allegheny, Pa., staged pots of tulips and daffodils outside his store February 8, bringing them as close as possible to the public. It was in keeping with the first touch of spring.

B. F. Barr & Co., of Lancaster, Pa., are much pleased with the special McCray refrigerator recently installed. It is the admiration of all who see it. The new 2-story warehouse and packing room at the nursery is a valuable addition. "Our great drawback was the lack of a storehouse," observed Mr. Barr. "The distance from the farm barred us from handling local business satisfactorily."

T. Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa., contemplates adding another greenhouse after the spring business, which is anticipated to be fully as good as last year's.

H. W. Pierce, of Wilkes-Barre, grows just two crops under glass, Grand Rapids lettuce, three parts of the year, and one crop of tomatoes, to market before the outdoor stock is fit. "Many think, because we are near the mines, that we can more easily obtain coal, but that is not so," observed Mr. Pierce. This was confirmed later by a miner's son, with whom I got into conversation. He mentioned that he, with his father, farms twelve acres of land. He works until the afternoon and then goes into the mine. The young man said he drove a mule from 4 to 9 p. m., five hours, and received $2.25 for the five hours. The operators have been unable to obtain labor to load the coal mined into the cars, and here is where the greater part of the trouble exists today. W. M.

Ponca, Okla.—A. G. Kaner has come from Wichita, Kan., and opened a store here. He is making plans, it is said, for the erection this spring of the largest greenhouse in northern Oklahoma.

Nashville, Tenn.—Alleged injuries sustained when struck by an auto truck are the basis of a suit for $10,000 damages filed in the Circuit court against Geny Bros. last week. The complainant avers that he was in the hospital three weeks following the accident.

Asheville, N. C.—E. E. Brown, of Brownhurst, "where the flowers grow," is the local Rotarian. At one of the recent luncheons he made an address on the business, incidentally informing his fellow members that florists live longer than other business men because of the influence of their surroundings.

Houston, Tex.—It may be that shippers in the north do not appreciate the extent to which express charges add to the cost of the stock sold here. For instance, one Houston florist states that the express charges paid in the one month of December, 1916, amounted to $625. This did not include the charges on certain shipments refused because of late delivery and damaged condition.

Miami, Fla.—M. M. Carroll, bulb merchant of Norwood, O., has been a recent visitor here.

Fitzgerald, Ga.—The new year saw the passing of Joel Thomas, but the Thomas greenhouse business is being continued successfully by the decedent's daughter, Mrs. Lula Armantrout.

Lawton, Okla.—W. H. Cole, who has been associated with the Stiles Co., of Oklahoma City, has arrived here to take charge of the landscape work of the Hornaday greenhouses, a new department recently added by the proprietress, Mrs. O. G. Hornaday. E. S. Biggard has severed his connection with the same concern and gone to California.

Raton, N. M.—B. B. Naylor, Jr., manager of the Raton Greenhouses, is confident that they have a winner in a snapdragon of unknown origin that appeared in their stock three or four years ago. It is bronzy red with yellow lip and is a stronger grower than any other variety on the place. The color is distinct and their customers prefer it to any of the standard named sorts. Mr. Naylor says they never yet have had enough of it for their local trade, but he plans eventually to name it and distribute it in the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.
Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

No finer snapdragons ever have reached The Review than the two dozen spikes of the unnamed bronzy red variety that came this week from the Raton Greenhouses, Raton, N. M.

Now that New York has the spring show out of the way and can look back with satisfaction on a successful effort, the work of preparing for a record S. A. F. convention in August will be turned to with enthusiasm.

WHEN an express company tenders for delivery a cut flower box with about 30 cents charges collect, if the editor isn't napping he declines to pay the price to see what is in it, the chances being the parcel contains a double-spathed calla, sent by a reader who never saw one before.

ROSE growers who have had little success with Hadley will be interested to note that it was the outstanding feature of the cut flower classes of the Philadelphia show of the American Rose Society. With Hadley the Joseph Heacock Co., one of the two conspicuously successful growers of that variety, took sweepstakes in all three groups, best 100, best fifty and best twenty-five blooms.

ENDLESS confusion is almost certain to result from the unusual conditions affecting the Dutch bulb business. The travelers are out of touch with their houses, because of infrequent sailings, the censor and the loss of much mail. Buyers are canceling orders when another salesman quotes a lower price, as is not infrequently the case, and acknowledgment of receipt of a cancellation is difficult to get, which no doubt will mean the shipment of many canceled orders.

THE DATE OF EASTER.

Easter Sunday falls on dates as widely separated as thirty-two days during the present century, the earliest being March 24, 1940, and the latest April 25, 1943. The last day of March will be Easter in 1918 and April 20 will be the date the following year. Here are the dates of Easter for the next five years:

1918	March	31
1919	April	20
1920	April	4
1921	March	27

IT HAS A LONG REACH.

The long and strong arms of The Review reach out thousands of miles to bring results for its advertisers. A little ad is read with as great interest in California as in New York and in Maine as in Texas. Here is the proof:

Kindly discontinue our classified ad on orchids. The ad has shown good results. Have had inquiries from California to New York.—J. F. Ammann Co., Edwardsville, Ill., March 23, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

PAPER.

To supply the demands of the trade and print last week's Spring Shows Number of The Review, 10,922 pounds of white paper were required. For this week's Easter Number 11,750 pounds, nearly six tons, will be used.

That's nearly eleven and one-half tons these two weeks.

It would be extremely satisfactory if it were not that paper now costs The Review just 214 per cent of the price paid before the ascension.

Although the quality of the stock at times has not been anything to brag about, The Review has had no trouble in procuring the four and one-half to six tons per week it needs to keep going.

AIRING A TRADE ILL.

As the custodian of the closet in which abide the trade's skeletons—there are several of 'em—the editor is frequently called upon to serve as arbiter of matters in dispute between a seller and a buyer, in which the buyer charges the seller with rank negligence in packing his plants; for did not the goods arrive in poor condition, with some of the stock damaged or frozen, or useless? Being considerably removed from his opponent, and—in many cases—having sent cash with his order, the buyer's chances for redress, providing the seller, or shipper, is culpable, may be decidedly slim. In rebuttal the seller maintains that the buyer is all wrong in his stand. Having sold plants for twenty years, the seller says he certainly knows how to pack his stock for shipment! The work is done carefully; his boxes are strong, if light, and special attention is paid to the wrapping of the plants. After delivering himself of this verbal defense, the seller concludes with the statement that either the express company is responsible and liable for the damage, or the buyer is playing an unfair game. Furthermore, as a last resort, the seller can absolve himself from all blame by producing a sort of disclaimer, printed in his catalogue or on his shipping tags. Here is a typical one: "Note—All plants are packed with the best care within our power and are shipped entirely at the buyer's risk. Our responsibility ceases with delivery, in good condition, to the transportation company."

The controversy may go on indefinitely, a court may render a decision in favor of the shipper or the buyer, or the express company may pay the damages, yet the adjustment will never be satisfactory from a business point of view. The two contending parties will forever be business enemies; the possibilities for any future business transactions between the two never will exist.

It requires a philosophical and broad mind to arrive at some definite remedy for this drawback of the business. There perhaps is only one iron-clad rule by which troubles and dissatisfactions of this sort can be avoided, and that rule at best is rather ambiguous. The seller, if he is absolutely on the square, does not enter the proposition as one of the responsible parties. Either the shipper or transportation company is to blame. But whether or not the shipper is innocently or guiltily responsible, or whether or not the transportation company is to blame, the power to eliminate the greater part of all such trouble rests in the hands of the shipper. The shipper's packing and wrapping should be so thorough and so well done that any damage to his shipments in transit will be impossible. It is not a question of fixing a blame. Prevention is what is wanted, and the shipper is the only one who can provide it.

A conscientious grower knows that none of his sales are completed until his stock is delivered to the buyer in good condition, despite the fact that the average court would sustain his claim to no responsibility after the stock is receipted for by a local express agent. Incidentally, as everybody knows, proper, thorough packing is essential to the grower who aims to build a business, for no buyer will let the "same bee sting him twice."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Changeable and erratic was the course of the market last week. While one day business was good with prices firm, the next found a complete falling off of demand. The warmer weather brought in an increased supply of all kinds of stock and at no time was there a scarcity. Taken by and large, however, business was fairly good and no real cause for complaint can be found.

The supply of American Beauties is larger than it has been and especially is there more longer stemmed stock. The demand, however, continues strong and no difficulty was found in clearing stock at quotation prices. Roses were easily the firmest item on the market last week, the demand being fairly steady at all times. The supply is ample and quality good. Russell easily is the leader. Carnations fluctuated from day to day, but on the whole good stock moved fairly well at moderate prices.

There was a tremendous supply of bulbous stock on the market last week, brought on by the warm weather. Like carnations, bulbous items were most changeable, one day selling well at fair prices, the next dragging heavily. There is a much larger supply of bulbous stock generally this year than in former years. Jonquils and daffodils move slowly, fancy stock selling best. Tulips are slow. The supply of Darwins is larger and prices are accordingly somewhat lower. Poeticus is near the end of its season, as are freesias. Both items move slowly. Rainbow freesias, however, sell fairly well. Good lilies are not plentiful. Callas also are in small supply and do not figure much in the market. The supply of orchids is sufficient to meet a mediocre demand. Violets are plentiful and sell fairly well. Sweet peas also are in ample supply. There are not many calendulas and they move fairly well. Colored snapdragons sell well, while the white variety moves slowly.

Although greens are still scarce, larger quantities of plumosus, Sprengeri and adiantum now arrive.

New Wholesale Florists.

A new wholesale cut flower house will be opened April 2 in the Atlas block, Room 218, by D. E. Freres and R. J. Windler. Mr. Freres has been in the commission flower business for eighteen years, being in business for himself the last nine. Mr. Windler was formerly in the business in St. Louis. He now operates the greenhouses in Rogers Park formerly owned by Adam Zander. Both men are thoroughly experienced and well qualified for their new undertaking.

Easter Prospects.

The market is confident that the Easter business will break records, as the early orders are unusually heavy, the Monday morning mail of many houses having been the largest ever received two weeks ahead of Easter.

There is agreement that there will be plenty of short and medium lilies and that long lilies will be much less abundant.

Some wholesalers say there will be plenty of roses and no great abundance of carnations, but others believe a few days of warm, bright weather, such as are due anytime now, will rush the rose crops off and bring out the carnations. The crops certainly advanced rapidly under the influence of three spring days last week.

J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., was a visitor last week. Mr. Hess says that he has so much work that he absolutely doesn't want any more.

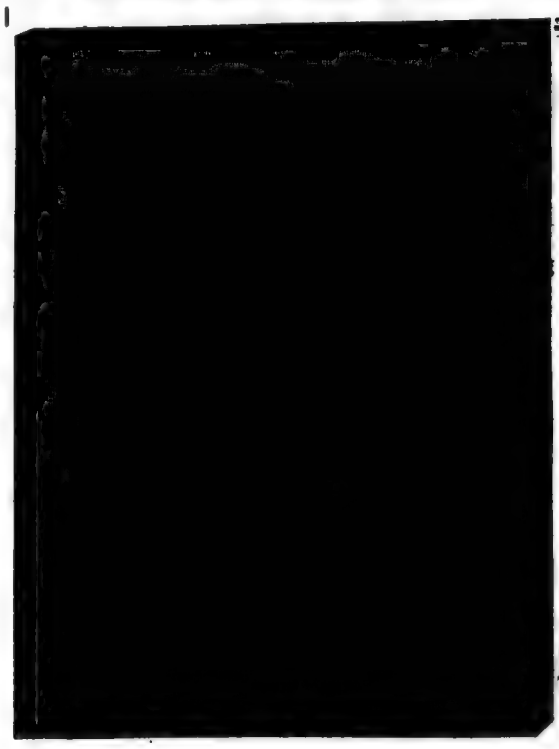
Thomas Cahill, of the Akron Flower Shop, Akron, O., has been in the market on Easter buying bent.



The presence of the following visitors was noted last week: E. D. Ludwick, Columbus, Ohio; D. MacRorie, San Francisco, Cal.; E. T. Mazey, Minneapolis, Minn.

BALTIMORE.

The Allied Bazaar.

Business in some of the uptown stores fell off quite a bit last week, but the cause was not difficult to find. The Allied Bazaar, held at the Armory, was the Mecca for everyone who had the money to spend. The flower booth did a phenomenal business. It was in charge of Mrs. Thom, with a group of Baltimore's fairest society girls for assistants. How they did sell flowers! There was one thing that struck many a poor business man, and that was what poor accountants they were, for they did not know how to make change, no matter what the size of the note one gave. When you consider that the receipts for the week at the bazaar were over $100,000, you are not surprised that business in the stores was somewhat affected. Yet many of the florists were busy for the bazaar, for, as in all charity sales, everything was donated. So there were lots of flowers sold to friends of those who had charge of the flower booth, and donated.

Another feature of this big fair was the decorations. I have heard that the Armory never looked better. This is saying a great deal, for I have seen some fine work done there. I. H. Moss had his entire force on this work for one day. But no one will complain of the temporary check it might have put on regular business, for it was all for charity, and charity covers a multitude of sins.

The Murray Funeral.

Everyone had all he could do with funeral work at the end of the week. The funeral of Oscar G. Murray was held in the main parlor of the Stafford hotel, where he had made his home since coming to this city. I think I am safe in saying that no more elaborate or greater profusion of flowers was ever seen at a funeral. They were banked in every possible space of this large hotel parlor, and while the designs were massive, coming from such sources as the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, his own road, the Baltimore & Ohio, and many others of the large railroads of the country, simplicity and taste were displayed in every piece.

The flowers at this funeral again demonstrated that Baltimore has no apologies to offer for those engaged in the florists' business. Space will not permit descriptions, but the only flowers on the casket were in a bunch composed of cycas leaves, Harrisii lilies, lavender orchids and violets. Now, such a bunch as that is not easy to arrange, yet at a glance one could see that it was the work of an artist. This also was the case with the hundred or more bunches and designs. There was not a piece in the whole lot that was not a credit to the one who designed it.

Various Notes.

Many of the boys took advantage of the opportunity to see the two big eastern shows. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Johnson and their daughter, of West Madison street, went to New York and, after doing the show there, stopped at Philadelphia for the rose show on their return. E. A. Seidewitz told me he was going to New York, and I. H. Moss said he would be there if he could get away.

I certainly owe an apology to E. A. Seidewitz. In a recent letter giving a brief history of the Florists' Exchange, I said that during the life of the exchange it had but three presidents. This was an error, for, being the chairman of the committee that first launched the project, no one worked harder for its success. He also served several times as its president.

Robert Johnston, son of Mary Paterson Johnston, was quite proud of his window in honor of Ireland's patron saint, and justly. I saw it after it had been partly taken to pieces, and it was a creditable piece of work. My advice is: "Go to it, Robert, for there is no better place to master the art of decorating than right in your own window. It is like music; you may have it in you, but those who are masters will tell you that it is the hardest kind of daily practice that brings perfection."

I am beginning to find that writing for The Review is more of a pleasure than a labor, for it brings me into contact with people whom I have not seen for years. I met Mrs. Mary Thomas, the aunt of Robert and John Halliday, and we talked about old times. I can well remember that before she retired she was one of the leading florists of the city. Going into her store on North Charles street, one would think he had been transported into Arcadia, and here, among artistic surroundings, the culture of the city was wont to meet. She is still hale and hearty and on fine days gets downtown to see how the two boys are coming on.

Stock of all kinds is plentiful, with the bulbous verging on a glut. Prices are holding up well and to the question, "How is business?" the answer is invariably the same, "We have been quite busy." With the store folks talking this way, everything is going well with the growers, who are now up to their eyes in work shifting stock about to get it in for Easter, or perhaps to hold it back. I am sure after it is all over we will just hear the same old story, "This was the best Easter we ever had." Tate.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business in general slackened considerably last week, as is customary previous to a big rush. So far the Lenten season has shown quite a bit of activity. Funeral work is keeping up wonderfully well and the special sale held every Saturday keeps the market well cleaned up. The Easter outlook is encouraging, with prospects for a good quantity of cut and potted stock and promises of good business. The quality of stock at the present time is particularly good. The supply of roses is large and good stock is seen in Shawyer, Ophelia, Sunburst, Maryland, Killarney and Montrose. The prices are within reach of all. American Beauties are not too plentiful, but meet the present demands. Carnations are of fine quality and the market is well stocked with them.

An abundance of sweet peas are offered, including good stock of the orchid-flowering, with long stems. They come chiefly in pink; little is seen of the whites and lavenders. The supply of Easter lilies is quite large. Callas, too, are plentiful. Valley is not in demand and the quality is inferior. Orchids move slowly. The market is well stocked with jonquils and daffodils, for which there is a steady demand. They are selling at $2 per hundred. Narcissi and tulips in various colors move quite freely. Myosotis is used liberally in colonial corsages, for which there is a growing demand. Snapdragons of pink and salmon colors are of good quality and sell well. Calendulas also find easy sales. The market is well supplied with all kinds of blooming plants, palms and ferns. There is, however, a decided shortage of cut Asparagus plumosus.

Various Notes.

A. D. Pratt, of Pratt & Crump, nurserymen of Pittsford, N. Y., was in town during the week and reported good

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather last week was exceptionally warm and bright. The sun, gathering strength each day, helped considerably, and stock came in quite plentifully. Business in general was fair and the clean-up was good, considering the quantity of stock of different kinds to be disposed of.

Roses are in large supply and the cut for Easter will be exceptionally fine. Some especially fine Russell, as well as Killarney and White Killarney roses, will be in the market, but the supply of Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia roses will be limited as compared with the other varieties. Carnations are coming in strongly and the quality is fine this year. The demand has been sufficiently great, however, to take up almost the entire supply, and no bargain prices were necessary. The prospects for Easter are good and there will be a heavy cut at that time. Sweet peas are not so plentiful as formerly and sell out each day. The quality of the stock is good, but it will not cut as much of a figure in the Easter business as usual.

There will be a large supply of fine double violets, but the singles are becoming scarcer each day and there will be few in the market for the Easter trade. There are plenty of fine orchids in the market, but the demand is quite light and this stock is not moving so readily as it should. Cut lilies are selling well and the supply is large enough to take care of all orders. Unless the weather turns dark for a few days, there is the possibility that this stock, as well as some other classes of plants, will be in a little too soon, as the weather has been unusually bright.

Orders for both cut flowers and plants now are coming in fast, and plant shipments have been going out as fast as possible during the last few days. The plant business has been good so far, but the supply is extra large. The warm weather makes shipping easier than if it were colder, and every little bit helps tremendously at a rush time like this.

Various Notes.

E. H. Mazey, proprietor of the Mazey Floral Co., of Minneapolis, was in town last week placing orders and getting ready for his Easter trade. From what Mr. Mazey says of the coöperation of the florists of his city and the decorative work promulgated by the city, our own local trade would do well to copy

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The wholesalers feel that the danger of overproduction before Easter has passed. The market has been active at moderate prices for the flowers received.

There is no especial change in conditions since last week's report. Sweet peas are extremely fine. They are offered in some ten different varieties, covering white, purple, two shades of lavender and half a dozen shades of pink. Daffodils, mostly Emperor, are to be seen everywhere. The receipts of daffies are simply enormous. The quality stands preëminently high, while the price for such fine stock is exceedingly moderate. In fact, good judges believe that these Emperors are produced at a loss, but the growers insist that this is not the case. One of the leading growers of Emperor daffodils said this week that by careful buying, economical handling and putting the price within reach of all classes of buyers, these fine flowers were grown at a moderate profit. Curiously enough, such heavy crops turn small buyers into large ones. I mean by that, that those buyers who are ordinarily classed as large do not move many low-priced daffodils. It is the smaller buyers and those who are tempted into the market by the prospect of a quick turnover. Many of these are street men.

Owing to the frost in Florida, Asparagus plumosus sprays continue scarce, but they are slowly coming in again.

Pennock Brothers.

There was a funeral in Trenton, N. J., Monday, March 19, of most unusual floral importance. It was the funeral of a man great in the business world, who has led in some of the important constructive work in this country. While nearly every florist of note in New York city was called upon to send his delivery car to the New Jersey capital that day, to the firm of Pennock Bros., in this city, was given the order for the family flowers. So large was the order that two delivery cars and several men were sent over to deliver and arrange the floral offerings. Charles W. Kahlert, who has been for many years with Pennock Bros., said that he had never seen so many and such handsome flowers gathered together in one place before. Some idea of the extent of the work performed can be gleaned from the fact that the casket cover alone cost $1,500. It was made of lilies of the valley and orchids.

THE JOHN HENRY CO.
LANSING, MICHIGAN

Mention The Review when you write.

Particular significance is attached to the exhibit of Pennock Bros. at the National Rose Festival last week. The idea embodied in this exhibit was that of individualizing floral work, an idea that deserves far more attention from our leading florists, because to its development the profession must look for advancement in floral art. Perhaps this idea can be most clearly defined by describing it as the exact opposite of the low price bargain sale, where a thousand bunches of flowers are offered, each one pretty much the same as any other in the lot. The exhibit contained special debutante baskets and bouquets, carefully selected gifts for the dear little baby who has just arrived, and so on. These baskets, bouquets, baby gifts, etc., are individual. They are not duplicated for any other debutante or little baby. In fact, they are expressly designed for the person to whom they are sent and for that person only. This is done by careful selection of basket, or box, or vase, by painting, by card, by ribbon, and so on. Thought is given to the choice of flowers and their combination, to their color or colors. The receptacle is in keeping with the flowers. A showy receptacle is not considered the thing, any more than it is considered in good taste to use showy furniture on a showy rug. If the rug be showy, let the furniture be plain. So when the flowers are showy the basket or box must enhance, not rival, them. The coming spring colors, blue and yellow, the old colonial colors, were brought out in this interesting exhibit of Pennock Bros., colors that will be noticed more and more as the season advances. This brief description will give some idea to those who were not able to attend the exhibition. Why is this exhibit singled out for further comment? All the retail exhibits were good. Their quality and variety added much to the interest of the show. Philadelphia is proud of the work of its retail florists.

Various Notes.

The spring show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, described last week briefly in these notes and at greater length under the heading of hydrangeas, deserves further mention. The Darwin tulips were of unusual excellence. They show possibilities of a great future for indoor as well as outdoor culture. Miss Caro Miller lectured on School Gardens.

George S. Hampton is pleased with the hit made at the Rose Festival by the willow vases furnished by the Joseph G. Neidinger Co.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

After one of the dullest weeks on record, a "good Saturday" was more than welcome. Prices grow firmer as Easter draws near and a splendid cut flower trade is anticipated.

It will not be a plant Easter, for there are not enough blooming plants for the demand. In fact, the invariable response of a grower when I interviewed him has been, "Nothing left to sell."

American Beauties came down last week after a steady 75-cent top for many weeks. The best could be had at 50 cents. Hadley gained enormously in prestige last week at both the New York and Philadelphia flower shows. The demand for it grows, and it is running neck and neck with Beauty. All other varieties of roses are in good supply.

For low grade carnations $10 per thousand was the price. Most of them, however, were sold at better figures.

Longiflorum lilies were abundant and from $8 down was the quotation. For Easter the best are being booked at $12, with $10 as the popular figure with the majority.

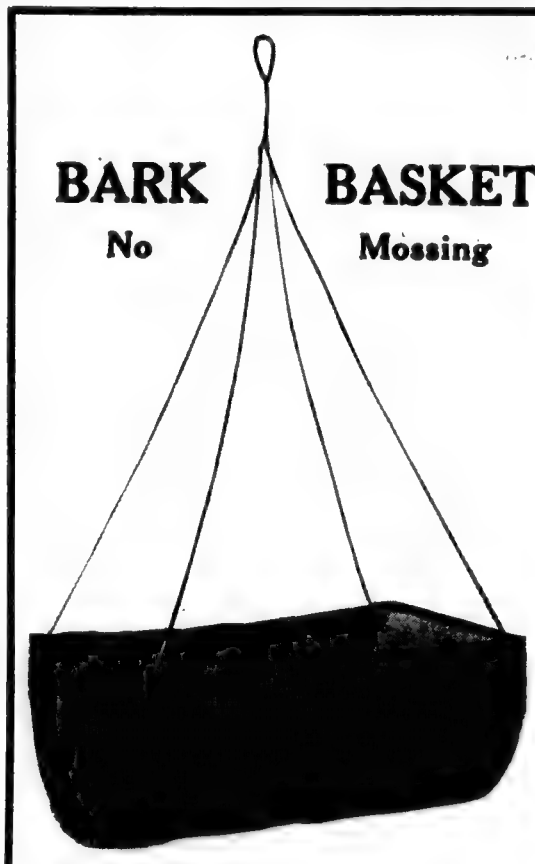
Valley advanced last week to $5 per hundred.

Callas are now abundant, freesia limited, and plenty of daffodils and narcissi for any possible demand.

There are no signs of lighter tulip, sweet pea or violet shipments. The latter are looked for in big numbers for Easter needs. The violet specialists talk of them in hundred thousands. One wholesaler sold half a million in a day last week. There are plenty of spring flowers as spring approaches—daisies, pansies, stocks, snapdragon, wallflowers, mignonette, calendulas and forget-me-not.

In orchids there will be a fine variety, such as Phalænopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis. Southern gladioli are not popular and are far too abundant.

Various Notes.



The International Flower Show is but a memory. It will be some time before the committee makes its final report, but it may safely be asserted that the exhibition was a financial and artistic success.

Another sign of spring is the opening of the horticultural auction sales, March 27, by the MacNiff Horticultural Co., 56 Vesey street. C. C. Trepel is holding a daily auction of plants in his Bloomingdale conservatories on Fifty-ninth street, with John P. Cleary as auctioneer.

It is certain that a prominent Broadway florist will locate in the new hotel now being built at Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth streets and Madison avenue, October 10. Within a stone's throw are the stores of McConnell, Kottmiller, Bunyard, Armstrong, Ramm and Dards, making this a great floral center in the big city.

The trade will learn with regret of the dangerous illness of Warren Spaulding, manager of the wholesale store of the Beechwood Heights Nurseries. March 19, while attending an evening

At the funeral services for Millman, the aviator, last week at Mineola, N. Y., many aeroplanes, laden with blossoms, circled above the cemetery where he was buried, and dropped flowers upon his grave.

Irving Hanig, son of Abraham Hanig, the unique enigma of floricultural Brooklyn, is a member of the Boy Scouts of that loyal village.

Lincoln Pierson has fully recovered from a severe illness.

Bert Robinson, of the Kervan force, entertained the stork March 24 and the old bird left a 12½-pound boy.

C. A. Dards returned last week from his long southern trip, which included South America.

J. H. Small & Sons had charge of the decorations last week for two notable events, the Sloan-Dodge-Widener wedding in New York, and the grand display at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in Philadelphia. The latter required a large force of the firm's Washington and New York artists, as well as the direction of Albert Small, of New York, and Henry Small, of Washington.

The business of the New York Florists' Supply Co. has grown so rapidly that it has been found necessary to add several auto trucks to the facilities.

William Sullivan is in charge of the store of the Beechwood Heights Nurseries during the illness of Mr. Spaulding.

Alex. McConnell will have another store on Fifth avenue for Easter week.

The leading retailers in New York are following the fashion and are raising the prices for cut flowers. This works admirably with the millionaires, who seldom, if ever, inquire the cost of flowers.

Warendorff opened his new store at Broadway and Eighty-fifth street March 24. It is a gem, and in a fine neighborhood. Victor Warendorff is in charge. This is the fifth store Herman Warendorff has opened in New York and all are successes.

David Clarke's Sons have a grand Easter plant display in the big store at 2139 Broadway, and many fine blooms from their own greenhouses.

Charles Millang is now devoting his entire attention to his cut flower department.

The Market.

Great quantities of stock are being consumed daily. The call for all kinds of potted plants and cut flowers is exceptional at this time, and the good supply is being well cleaned up. Roses are about the only item in the market in limited supply. The varieties most in evidence are Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney and White Killarney. Also in the market, but less conspicuous, are Hoosier Beauty, Milady, Hadley and Richmond, and these seem to be losing their popularity. The prices range from $2 to $12 per hundred. Beauties and Russells are scarce and bring from 75 cents to $4 per dozen.

Carnations in all colors are plentiful, the best bringing from $2.50 to $3.

Tulips move well at $3 and cut hyacinths are good property at $3 to $5. Valley and orchids are about as usual.

abundant, but long-stemmed fancy stock is somewhat limited. Superb snapdragons are a valuable addition to the market and they bring all the way from $5 to $10 per hundred sprays, with the pink and yellow leading in popularity. Spanish irises are newcomers welcomed for the Easter trade. A few yellow daisies, along with forget-me-nots, are also in evidence. Smilax has reached the 20-cent mark and Sprengeri and plumosus remain extremely scarce. Fern leaves, however, are in ample supply, but slightly higher in price.

Various Notes.

The local stores are enjoying the best Lenten business they have known for years.

R. R. Harris, of Huntsville, Ala., was a recent visitor in the city.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. reports exceptionally good business and that it is well prepared for a big Easter business with more than 4,000 potted plants.

Hartje & Elder lost quite a bit of glass during the severe storm March 23—the same day that New Albany was visited by the tornado. This firm has been cutting some fine yellow daisies.

Clarence Thomas and C. H. Bookedis have just returned from Chicago, where they have been looking after Easter stock.

Herman Young has been sick from an attack of the grip.

Homer Wiegand is completing a new residence at his country place near Riverside park. Mr. Wiegand is a chicken fancier and has a fine strain of barred Plymouth Rock prize-winners. He intends to erect a chicken range and go into the business.

The next meeting of the State Florists' Association will be held April 3, at the Claypool hotel. A large attendance is expected, as some interesting topics will be brought up for discussion.

Jacob Hess, of Omaha, Neb., was here last week; also Isaac Kahn, of the Wheatley Pottery Co.

The City market has had exceptionally good business during the last week. Prices, which a few weeks ago were rather low, have improved, to the great satisfaction of the majority. Potted plants are numerous but move rapidly, including bulbous stock, cinerarias, azaleas, primroses, etc. Cut flowers have also been receiving a good call.

The Market.

Business is fair. The demand has kept up steadily and generally has taken up most offerings in good order. The supply for Easter promises to be large and adequate.

Roses are in fair supply. Carnations are more plentiful than they were. Sweet peas are abundant and prove to be good property. The supply of bulbous stock at times has been larger than the market could take care of. Callas are plentiful. Some excellent snapdragons are arriving at the wholesale houses and excellent gladioli may be had. Fancy greens are plentiful. At times the supply exceeds requirements.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent gladioli. They have become popular with the buyers.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Adrian, Jr., have purchased a home on Wood avenue, Clifton, adjoining the greenhouse range.

Miss May Carroll writes that she is enjoying her stay in Florida immensely. Miss Carroll intends to return about April 15.

Florists here are sorry to hear of the loss by A. Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., of a part of his range through the recent tornado.

George Bemer, of C. E. Critchell's force, has recovered from his recent operation and is at work.

Nearly "Three Score Years and Ten" and Still "Going Strong"

The Men under the F. T. D.

These are the high-grade florists who have mobilized under the F. T. D. flag, who are building a bigger-than-ever F. T. D. business, who are striving "For Better and More Efficient Floral Service to the Public as well as from Florist to Florist." Every member is advertising the F. T. D. service to the fullest extent in his territory. Every new member who joins the forces receives the benefits of the campaign. Reciprocity requires that out-of-town orders be addressed to F. T. D. members at the places of delivery.

The Market.

Business has not been good of late and prices on the average are a little lower than those of a week ago. Roses have been moving sluggishly and are only cleaned up at low prices. There is a marked scarcity of American Beauties, but an abundance of all other roses. The popular varieties continue to be Ophelia, which is easily the most popular as well as most profitable rose today; Lady Alice Stanley, Killarney Queen, Killarney Brilliant, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Ward and Russell. Prices run all the way from $10 per thousand to the same amount per hundred, with some fancies a little higher. Carnation conditions have not changed much from a week ago. Violets are abundant and cheap; so are sweet peas. Many of the latter now are of splendid quality. Dutch bulbous flowers are overabundant and are cleared with great difficulty.

Lilies are more plentiful and Formosa takes the lead. Yellow marguerites arrive more freely, but sell out nicely. Snapdragons are of much better quality, with Nelrose the best of the pinks. Cornflowers are extra fine, but do not sell well. Callas are in large supply, with Godfrey the leader. There are now heavy supplies of calendulas, anemones, ranunculi and primroses. Gardenias are in the main short-stemmed and sell cheaply, but the call for cattleyas has been good. Green supplies are meeting with a better sale.

deners' and Florists' Club at the W. W. Edgar Co. place, Waverley, March 24. The houses were, as usual, filled to overflowing with a wealth of high-grade plants for the Easter trade. Of giganteum lilies 15,000 are grown, and a splendid lot they are. While the majority are grown one bulb to a pot, others have three or four bulbs to a 6-inch pot and carry an average of twenty buds and blooms each. French hydrangeas are grown in quantity and are a splendid lot. Genistas are seen in all sizes, some being extra large specimens. Some superb specimens of Pink Pearl and White Pearl rhododendrons attracted everyone's eye. Many Catawbiense hybrids also are grown.

Baby ramblers are heavily grown and I never saw a finer batch of Magna Charta than those in one house. There were over 1,500, potted January 8, in prime condition. Such astilbes as Philadelphia, astilboides, Gladstone and Queen Alexandra are grown in quantity. Many hundreds of lilacs were beautifully flowered, the leaders being Charles X, Marie Legraye, Mme. Lemoine and Spaeth. A long row of Pelargonium Easter Greeting in 6-inch pots was finely flowered. Of azaleas there were some thousands, while pans of bulbs were seen on every hand. Darwin tulips are heavily grown, especially fine being Pride of Haarlem, Baron de la Tonnaye, William Copeland, White Queen and Comtesse de Saunder. These sell much better than the early tulips.

For later flowering, large batches were noted of hydrangeas in tubs, Calceolaria Stewarti, lilies and roses. Of cyclamens a splendid batch of 14,000 were in pots or flats; also, an equal number of Melior, Cincinnati, Lorraine and Mrs. Peterson begonias. Bedding plants in large quantities were hungry for more growing space.

New additions are constantly being made at the Edgar place. These include a carpenter's shop, in which an electric motor is being installed. Packing cases, flats, etc., will be made here. Plans are out for a fine salesroom with an imposing front, to be erected on the site now occupied by Mrs. Edgar's house. A new residence will be built on land now occupied by coldframes. Kroeschell boilers now heat the entire plant and give complete satisfaction.

Following an inspection of the greenhouses refreshments were served to the visitors, the party including many ladies. President Methven, of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, voiced the thanks of everyone for the many courtesies extended and called on a number of those present for remarks, those responding being Mrs. W. W. Edgar, H. H. Bartsch, the able manager, who was greeted with three cheers and a tiger; James Wheeler, A. K. Rogers, W. N. Craig, W. J. Kennedy, W. J. Stewart, Robert Kift, Robert Cameron, Fred Lautenschlager, Peter Fisher and John F. Briry. Perfect weather favored the visitors and all voted the field day a perfect success.

Bowling League Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Florists' Bowling League of Boston was held at Young's hotel March 22. There was an attendance of over 150. The menu proved to be an excellent one. The plan of electing officers and transacting business during the progress of the banquet could hardly be called a success.

the McAlpine & McDonald cup; fifth, J. Bresnahan, who took the D. & E. J. Welch cup.

High man of the McAlpine & McDonald team was Guerin, who took the Saunders bag. Other leaders on the various teams were Dowd, on Galvin team; Mitchell, Waban Rose Conservatories; Gurineau, the Coöperative Market; A. H. Carr, the Flower Exchange; Jacobs, the New England Florists' Supply Co.; Sherman, H. M. Robinson & Co.; Tipton, Penn's; Lynch, the B. A. Snyder Co. High strongs were won by J. Gurineau, 128, and A. Peirce, 136; high triples by A. Peirce, 351, and F. McDonald, 325. The lowest average went to J. Snyder.

Henry Penn was toastmaster and W. C. Stickel presented the prizes.

Various Notes.

One of the most interesting retail growing establishments near Boston is that of R. C. Bridgham, the Newton Rose Conservatories. All plants and flowers are disposed of at retail, and nearly everything sold is grown on the place, a wider variety being grown than in any other establishment in this section. Two houses are devoted to roses, and they looked well. Mrs. Jardine was fine and proves popular; also, Ward, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, Killarney

Queen, Killarney and such smaller sorts as Mrs. George Elger, Baby Doll, Bon Silene and Sweetheart. Carnations occupy two houses. Pink Sensation showed up splendidly; also Matchless, Beacon, Champion, Gloriosa, Ward and other varieties. One house of sweet peas was in heavy crop; another had seedlings only a few inches high, for May and June flowering. Primulas, cyclamens, begonias, cinerarias, acacias, azaleas and a wide range of other pot plants are grown, including even orchids. There are ten houses, all filled with useful stock for the retail trade. One is an attractive show house entered from a neat salesroom. Outdoor roses, hardy perennials, etc., are grown in quantity. The establishment is the center of a populous part of one of Boston's best residence sections and the retail trade has been built up within five or six years. Mr. Bridgham and his manager, A. P. Calder, Jr., certainly have accomplished much in this time and deserve congratulations.

the finest Nelrose snapdragons I have seen this season. He also has a heavy crop of English primroses. His best carnations are Matchless, White Enchantress, Pink Delight, Benora and Beacon.

March 24, at noon, flag-raising ceremonies took place at both the Boston Coöperative Flower Market and the Boston Flower Exchange. A boys' band from the St. Vincent school furnished plenty of inspiring music, and a body of boy scouts was also on hand. The flags, which are handsome ones, were purchased by subscriptions in the two markets.

I am glad to report that David Welch, of Welch's, is again "attending to the delectations of life," to quote his own words. He has had a long siege with the grip. Business at Welch's is good. I noticed a fine lot of Lilium regale and remarkably fine sweet peas, carnations, roses and other flowers.

A. H. Hews & Co., of North Cambridge, report that they are being hard driven to keep up with pot orders, which are pouring in, of unprecedented volume.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is marketing a splendid lot of Tausendschon and Magna Charta roses. In orchids he has grand cattleyas and odontoglossums. Mr. Dolansky feels proud over winning the first prize of $300 and a gold medal for the best orchid group at the late spring show. The group was the finest he ever has staged.

Rawson's Conservatories, of Arlington, are marketing quantities of good Spanish irises, splendid sweet peas and an immense crop of Beacon, Enchantress Supreme, Enchantress and Ward carnations.

The spring show, just closed, drew a host of visitors from a distance. A few of those noted were J. Roehrs and F. G. Sealy, of Rutherford, N. J. They brought the Roehrs' orchid exhibit to Boston by auto truck. The weather was severely cold and a few of the plants got nipped in transit. Among others were John Canning, of Ardsley, N. Y.; J. J. Lane, of Garden City, N. Y.; James Stuart, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Joseph Manda, of East Orange, N. J.; J. H. Stalford and J. Renwick, of Bar Harbor, Me.; C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me.; J. W. schlager, of Chicago, Ill.; Robert Kift, of Philadelphia.

At Penn's the bride window continues to be a star attraction this week. Many of the specimen flowering plants from the late show are also on exhibition here. Business is remarkably good.

Thomas Howden, for some years gardener to Oliver Ames, at Prides Crossing, Mass., has resigned his position to go on a farm at Marlboro, Mass. Archie McDonald, of Manchester, N. H., succeeds him at Prides Crossing.

While many growers have discarded the Richmond rose, Thomas Roland grows it remarkably well at his Revere establishment, and as grown by him it is still in the front rank. The sweet peas at Revere are remarkably fine now.

Lewis Smith, of Tewksbury, is cutting a superior crop of sweet peas and bachelor's buttons at present.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plains, is a bulb specialist whose flowers are always of high-grade quality at this season. Murillo and La Reine tulips, Victoria and Golden Spur daffodils are some of his best sorts, but a number of others are grown. Mr. Fee each year is badly poisoned in his hands by the juice from the narcissi.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

E. W. KNIGHT, of Newburyport, Mass., has established a reputation as a successful grower of onion seeds.

ARNOLD RINGIER, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, announces that he has severed his connection with that organization after twenty-seven years of service.

EDWARD H. GOLDENSTEIN, of Chicago, announces that he has withdrawn from the firm of Langhout & Co., Sassenheim, Holland, having disposed of his interest to W. Langhout.

ACCORDING to A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, it is almost impossible to get shipments to Europe, and the company is in consequence forced to hold all orders over.

F. H. EBELING, G. A. Ebeling and A. A. Day have incorporated their seed and plant business at Syracuse, N. Y., under the title of F. H. Ebeling, Inc. The authorized capital stock is $125,000.

IT is stated that approximately 20,000 acres in Spokane county, Washington, will be under peas for seed this season. J. R. Shinn, the county agriculturist, has been encouraging both the farmers and the seedsmen to enter into contracts.

THE Bureau of Crop Estimates of the U. S. Department of Agriculture fixes the condition of the Bermuda onion crop in Texas as seventy-three per cent March 15, 1917, as against sixty-six per cent March 1, 1916. The acreage is placed at 12,050 this year, against 10,057 last year.

A NUMBER of the salesmen for Holland bulb houses, including some of the new "permanent" American branch houses, have practically ceased to try to do business, awaiting a change in conditions. At present it is more difficult to do business than ever before, but if the bulbs come over all right it is thought it should be possible to sell them in the fall.

WESTERBEEK & KLYN'S New York office says the New York postoffice differs with the statement given out in Washington as to the quantity of Holland mail on the Laconia at its sinking. The postoffice, says Westerbeek & Klyn, tells them only a few days' accumulation of Holland mail was lost, where the Washington statement was that a month's mail went down.

A FRENCH horticulturist named de Noyer proposes the stems of spinach for making paper. These contain forty-six per cent of cellulose against four per cent in the stems of wheat straw. M. de Noyer claims that in his experiments in making paper from spinach stems he has produced a product equal to the best SEED HELD AS ASSETS.

In bankruptcy proceedings against one Hutchcraft, who had been engaged for many years in conducting private warehouses in Kentucky, it is held by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth circuit, that holders of warehouse receipts issued by Hutchcraft for stated quantities of "bluegrass seed," and "stripped and cleaned bluegrass seed," had no lien against seed on hand in the warehouses, as against the bankrupt's other creditors (238 Federal Reporter, 278).

The decision is based on the fact that the seed belonged to him, that the receipts were issued as security for his debts, and that there had been no segregation of the seed from the larger quantities on hand in the warehouses. Section 4769 of the Kentucky statutes requires warehouse receipts of this kind to set forth "the quantity, quality, kind and description" of the goods, and that the goods "shall be designated by some mark." It appears that these requirements were not observed in the issuance of the receipts.

Accordingly, it was decided that deliveries of seed made to the creditor holding the receipts, within a few days preceding institution of the bankruptcy proceedings, amounted to an unjust preference of that creditor over others which was subject to be set aside. S.

IS DUTCH STOCK COMING?

There is news for importers in the report from Washington that a fleet of fifteen Dutch steamships sailed recently from a port in Holland for the United States, by way of Halifax. The vessels all are said to have steamed out the same day and are believed to be well north of the German submarine zone around the British Isles.

It is intended by the Netherlands government, which has the ships under charter, to have them load grain, probably in New York, and then return by the same route they came. It was explained that lack of foodstuffs in Holland made it necessary that a large quantity be obtained at once and it was felt that a merchant fleet could better brave the dangers of the seas than individual ships. Many Dutch ships loaded with grain now are being detained in British ports either by the British authorities or through fear of German submarines, but the interest to the trade lies in the possibility that the Dutch fleet may be bringing the shipments that have been accumulating at Rotterdam since the last regular sailing early in January.

THE FREE SEED LAW.

Although every seedsman has felt the effects of the free seeds distribution, probably few have read the act of Congress by which the free seeds are provided for. Here it is, from the agricultural appropriations bill for 1917-18:

"For the purchase, propagation, testing and congressional distribution of valuable seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants; all necessary office fixtures and supplies, fuel, transportation, paper, twine, gum, postal cards, gas, electric current, rent outside of the District of Columbia, official traveling expenses, and all necessary material and repairs for putting up and distributing the same; for repairs and the employment of local and special agents, clerks, assistants and other labor required, in the city of Washington and elsewhere, $243,720.

"And the secretary of agriculture is hereby directed to expend the said sum, as nearly as practicable, in the purchase, testing, and distribution of such valuable seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants, the best he can obtain at public or private sale, and such as shall be suitable for the respective localities to which the same are to be apportioned, and in which same are to be distributed as hereinafter stated, and such seeds so purchased shall include a variety of vegetable and flower seeds suitable for planting and culture in the various sections of the United States:

"Provided, that the secretary of agriculture, after due advertisement and on competitive bids, is authorized to award the contract for the supplying of printed packets and envelopes and the packeting, assembling and mailing of the seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants, or any part thereof,

"An equal proportion of five-sixths of all seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants, shall, upon their request, after due notification by the secretary of agriculture that the allotment to their respective districts is ready for distribution, be supplied to senators, representatives and delegates in congress for distribution among their constituents, or mailed by the department upon the receipt of their addressed franks, in packages of such weight as the secretary of agriculture and the postmaster general may jointly determine:

"Provided, however, that upon each envelope or wrapper containing packages of seeds the contents thereof shall be plainly indicated, and the secretary shall not distribute to any senator, representative, or delegate seeds entirely unfit for the climate and locality he represents, but shall distribute the same so that each member may have seeds of equal value, or as near as may be, and the best adapted to the locality he represents:

"Provided, also, that the seeds allotted to senators and representatives for distribution in the districts embraced within the twenty-fifth and thirty-fourth parallels of latitude shall be ready for delivery not later than the tenth day of January:

"Provided, also, that any portion of the allotments to senators, representatives, and delegates in congress remaining uncalled for on the first day of April shall be distributed by the secretary of agriculture, giving preference to those persons whose names and addresses have been furnished by senators and representatives in congress and who have not before during the same season been supplied by the department:

The Verdict of the Expositions on Swas-Teeka Cannas

SWAS-TEEKA BRAND Cannas walked away with the gold medals at both the San Francisco and the San Diego Fairs.

That was the verdict. A verdict which means that when you buy Swas-Teeka Brand Cannas, as the best Cannas to buy, your opinion agrees with that of the judges at both Fairs as to what the best Cannas to buy really are.

Milo M. Potter, President of the Potter Hotel Co., Santa Barbara, Cal., visited the San Diego Fair. He saw our Gold Medal Winner Cannas. This is what he wrote about them:

"While in San Diego, I visited the San Diego Fair and had the pleasure of seeing your Cannas. I not only looked once, but several times—I mean by that I went away and then came back to look again. * * * Have visited thousands of beautiful gardens and parks, but I have never seen such Cannas as you have at the San Diego Fair."

These Gold Medal Winner Cannas are selling like hot cakes.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Santa Cruz, Cal.—Climatic conditions have produced a short supply of Mexican ivy this spring and it will be some time before shipments of normal size go to the eastern markets.

Benton City, Wash.—Ward M. McKnight, a market gardener, says he intends to try his hand at the florists' business, beginning this summer. Mr. McKnight is not a recruit, having seen service in the trade several years ago.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The Lenten season so far has been a satisfactory one to retailers and shippers, but for a few days there has been a falling off in retail trade and out-of-town business. Inquiries seem to foreshadow a good Easter, with stock none too plentiful. The cool mornings and nights are against field-grown stock and the heavy moisture in the atmosphere renders carnations peculiarly susceptible to fungoid diseases, which are becoming increasingly prevalent in this section. Rotation of crops and study of these diseases will have to be taken up by growers if they intend to be successful, and the hit-or-miss methods that have been so long practiced will have to be changed.

Regarding Easter lilies, growers say their plants are going to be well on time, and if so there will be a plentiful supply, both for cutting and pots. Indoor roses are still fine, the only scarcity being in good reds. The present week has been remarkable for the large amount of funeral work done, but a good deal of money can be spent in this without reducing the visible supply of stock much.

Valley is promised in good supply for Easter, but how the realization will be remains to be seen. Orchids are still scarce and hard to obtain. Baby roses are becoming more plentiful, but those from outdoors are short in the stem, though brighter in color than the indoor-grown. Daffodils are plentiful now, but, according to present appearances, they will be almost over in quantity by Easter. Tulips should be just right from outdoors. Greenhouse carnations are good and there is a fair supply. Asparagus plumosus has been cut so hard during the winter, and the weather has been so cool, that this green is practically out of the market, that arriving being poor in color.

Various Notes.

The interest taken by owners of the large private estates and the large number of new residences being erected are healthy signs of the times. I was particularly impressed with this the other day when looking over the Arthur Letts estate at Hollywood. Mr. Letts is one of our prominent merchants who years ago built a fine residence and planted the grounds to every class of rare trees and shrubs obtainable, and these have grown up to fine proportions. Under the superintendence of A. A. Hunt the grounds are now going through a thorough overhauling, thinning out fine specimens where necessary and removing them to other parts of the place. Mr. Hunt has been successful in moving extra large plants of rare and valuable kinds and the grounds will be much improved thereby. There are large consignments of rare conifers arriving now from the east and from English nurseries, and these, with the many unique specimens already there, will round out a wonderful collection. Mr. Hunt has made a careful study of conifers and has practically all of these unique varieties properly classified and named, which makes the place an interesting one to visit.

O. C. Saake has gone to Murrietta Springs for a short visit, to recuperate before the Easter rush.

The L. A. Floral Co. has been shipping a great many flowers of the odorless African marigold, the flowers being grown here under glass. They are as large as a good Bonnaffon chrysanthemum, of about the same color and last for weeks.

George Smith reports big business at the Seventh and Figueroa street store and says that shipping is good from the new nursery at Sherman. His first catalogue under the new regime has been published.

Shipments are keeping up well at the S. Murata & Co. establishment. Good reports are coming in on the condition of stock on arrival at Kansas and Missouri points.

Morris Goldenson left March 20 on a business trip to San Francisco. At the store business is keeping up well. There was a fine decoration for a farewell reception, in which large quantities of peach blossoms were used with good effect. A pall of violets and hyacinths and a large number of other pieces were made the same day for a funeral.

C. Brazee, of Wilmington, is sending in remarkably fine tulips and hyacinths. His stock is being handled by Tassano Bros.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Perfect spring weather, stock in ample supply but not excessively plentiful, quality good and demand seasonably active, sums up the local market situation of the last week. Considerable extra stock was moved St. Patrick's day, especially white carnations, which were at a premium. At present conditions are a little more favorable for the retailer than the wholesaler, as there is plenty of good stock to be had and the retailer can buy just what he needs without fear of not being able to get more if the occasion arises. There has been a general recession in prices. The rose situation has not changed much since the last report, except that offerings are more plentiful, without a noticeable increase in demand.

Carnations seem to be going off crop with some of the growers, but the supply is still ample to meet all requirements. Daffodils continue to arrive in great numbers, but the heavy cut is not expected to last much longer. They have had a wonderful sale this season and there is no hurry to see them go. Darwin tulips are beginning to show nicely, the only complaint being that the stems are a little short, which has been the case with all spring bulbous stock, on account of weather conditions. The flowers are good, however, and there is no difficulty in moving the rather limited supplies. Hyacinths are plentiful and popular. Many wild flowers are offered and they work up to good advantage in basket arrangements.

For decorative purposes, blossoms, acacias and pussy willows have a good call. More orchids could be used. Gardenias are also in light supply. Easter lilies, both cut and potted, are plentiful and show excellent quality. Other potted stock is showing up well for Easter, including splendid rambler roses, rhododendrons, etc. The pot plant trade has been quite good since Christmas. Greens continue on the short side of the market, but little difficulty is anticipated from now on.

Various Notes.

Plans for the consolidation of the California Dahlia Society and the California Dahlia Growers' Association are progressing nicely. Final action now rests with a committee consisting of five members from each organization and an eleventh member to be chosen by the ten. This committee has full power to act. The representatives of the society are: Messrs. Peckma , Dupuy, Henning and Durbrow and Mrs. Symbery, while the association is represented by T. A. Burns, F. C. Burns, C. S. Quick, Frank D. Pelicano and Mrs. Jessie L. Seal. A meeting is to be held within a few days at the call of the presidents of the two organizations and indications are that a favorable vote will be taken at that time for the merging of the two bodies.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray is well satisfied with business at her new place on Geary street, near Larkin street. She continues to make improvements in her store and, besides a nice counter trade, much funeral work and many decorations, she is working up an active shipping business. Saturday, March 17, was her best day to date, all departments of the business making a splendid showing.

For a new enterprise the California Florial Co. reports business fully up to expectations at its store on California street. The location is near an important street car transfer station, and careful attention to the display has a tendency to bring the waiting passengers into the store.

The Sunkist Floral Co., which opened an attractive store a few weeks ago in a new apartment house at Post and Leavenworth streets, has decided to give up the venture, as business did not develop as rapidly as was expected. The place has been dismantled and the future activities of the proprietor have not been announced.

C. Kooyman reports a good cut of American Beauty, Killarney and Richmond roses.

Frank H. Forrest, who recently started in the decorating business on his own account, is meeting with good success. He has made contracts with various downtown business places to look after their decorative work, and besides has a good many wedding and other decorations booked. One for April 25 is for an elaborate church wedding in Berkeley, followed by a reception at the Hotel Oakland.

The Art Floral Co. has had a busy week, the principal item being funeral work.

F. T. Schlotzhauer, proprietor of the Francis Floral Co., is gratified that a large new office and store building is being erected on the opposite corner of Powell and Sutter streets, as he figures it will bring considerable extra business to that district. He reports business holding up well for the Lenten season.

The force at B. M. Joseph's is busy getting novelties ready for the Easter rush.

As a novelty for St. Patrick's day, a member of Albert O. Stein's force made up some bouquets of new potatoes and small onion sets, which created quite a sensation at the stand in the Palace hotel. One style was labeled "Murphy's Irish bouquet," and the other "Miss High Cost of Living." A good many orders were taken and several calls have come in since for similar novelties.

Manager Axell, of the E. W. McLellan Co., considers indications excellent for a heavy Easter shipping business, in view of the advance orders already received.

The finishing touches are now being put on Charles C. Navlet's enlarged store at San Jose, Cal., and he hopes to be ready for the formal opening by Easter. The establishment has been completely rebuilt and embodies many new features, which, it is said, will make it one of the finest stores of its kind on the Pacific coast. At the Navlet stand in the Emporium department store, of this city, Manager Picetti says business is holding up nicely. S. H. G.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Business has not been brisk since the advent of the Lenten season. Funeral orders have been responsible for most of the activity. The growers, however, especially those doing a shipping business, seem satisfied with business. It is the retailer who suffers, for his high rent and running expenses keep up just the same.

Stock is good. Seldom are better grades to be had in any of the different flowers now in the market.

Various Notes.

Silver Pink snapdragons from H. L. Olsson's place have been the first in the market. They are wonderful, with stems four or five feet in length and flower spikes sixteen to eighteen inches. So far as can be learned, Mr. Olsson will have the only spiræas this Easter, and even his supply is limited to about 200, all of which have been contracted for at good prices. He has a splendid crop of Easter lilies coming on, practically all of which are sold.

Jack Burt is wearing his usual smile, indicative of a good business through the winter. He recently bought a new delivery car of neat design.

Donart & Stapleton, who are pushing their seed department strongly, feel that the elements are against them. After almost five months of continuous winter, there is no sign of a let-up. Consequently, a seed display has a task before it in stirring up the gardening "fever" in the system of the busy business man.

The Spokane Florist Co. had an attractive St. Patrick's day window, featuring an Irish castle and shamrocks. Rarely have shamrocks and green dyed flowers sold as well as this year.

Henry Reimers' store seems well prepared for the Easter business rush. He always has some of the best grown lilies in the city. L. B. H.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The equinoctial storm came on time this month and brought several days of disagreeable weather. The demand for flowers was reduced and the supply became less, apparently equal reductions, which kept market conditions well balanced. The call for funeral work has been light for several weeks. This, however, is considered accidental, and not caused by any change in conditions. Indoor-grown daffodils are gone and none as yet are being cut from outside plantings. This indicates that the season for outdoor daffodils is at least two weeks behind that of last year. All other sorts of bulbous blooms are plentiful, though the season for them is nearing its close. High-grade cinerarias and genistas are in their prime, and form strong features in several window displays. Stocks of Easter lilies in the hands of the growers are reported to be coming on in satisfactory form, and there are plenty of cut lilies and some of the potted ones shown. Landscape workers are using all the men they can get and need more help.

The cut of roses is normal, but the stormy weather has bettered its quality.

RUDOLPH FISCHER

Freesia Specialist SAN GABRIEL, CAL.

March 20. Two new members were admitted and one application read. The amount of stock growing and available for a festival center was canvassed, and it was found that there was an abundance among the growers, but that it would need attention soon if it were to be used for display. With this information at hand, the committee on exhibitions will await the action of the festival board of governors.

H. A. Lewis, president of the Multnomah county fair, announced that a fund for a floral display would be appropriated, and asked that a committee be appointed to arrange the premium list and secure the planting of display beds at the Gresham fair grounds. The chair appointed John Zimmerman, J. Feser and J. G. Bacher for this duty. A communication from a firm supplying posters and stickers advertising Mothers' day was read and referred to the retailers.

Senator H. A. Lewis explained the difficulties encountered in handling the mechanics' lien bill in the recent legislature and stated that some of the features interesting to the trade were not incorporated in the final draft. Later he will have a copy of the bill and go into details.

The president's desk was decorated with a large bulb attached to a card inviting members to name it. It was concluded that it was one of the high-priced onions which had changed shape and color on account of its sudden rise in the world, until J. G. Bacher identified it as a large specimen of Lilium Henryi. John Zimmerman stated that these large bulbs shrunk after blooming. Mr. Bacher denied this. L. W. Scott took the bulb home to grow it and settle the dispute.

Various Notes.

The Portland Rose Society held its annual meeting March 12. E. B. McFarland was elected president and Dr. Emmet Drake, secretary. The society plans to help supply roses to the delegates attending the National Educational Association convention, which will be held here in July.

The date of this year's rose festival has been set as June 13 to 15. E. E. Larimore was chosen to head the board of governors, and William McMurray has charge of the festival center. Some of the decorative features will be kept in place until the N. E. A. convention meets in July.

John Willius is cutting some good sweet peas at his range near Beaverton.

Several large growers are forcing for Easter all of the hydrangea stock they have. Large quantities of this stock were frozen early last fall and it is worthless.

Clarke Bros. are busy shipping mail orders, the result of their last catalogue.

Easter lilies are reported in excellent condition at the ranges of the Rahn & Herbert Co., Clarke Bros., the Martin & Forbes Co., the Holden Floral Co., the Wilson, Crout & Gehr Co. and the Tonseth Floral Co.

James Forbes, of the Martin & Forbes Co., said he did not expect any surplus of lilies in the market after Easter.

William E. Wood, of the Scott-Wood Co., said he had leased a greenhouse to be used as a cool house for bedding stock. The greenhouse is in the Columbia park district. S. W. W.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE Elm City Nursery Co., Woodmont Nurseries, Inc., state that they will be able to proceed with the development of their extensive new nurseries at Woodmont, Conn., as the New Haven railroad's plans, which would have taken all their nursery properties, have been so changed as to make this possible.

KEROSENE EMULSION.

Directions for the mixing of kerosene emulsion are contained in a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 723, "The Oyster-shell Scale and the Scurfy Scale," by A. L. Quaintance and E. R. Sasscer. For a stock solution, sixty-six per cent oil, the formula is:

Kerosene	2 gallons
Fish-oil or laundry soap (or one quart soft soap)	½ pound
Water	1 gallon

First dissolve the soap in boiling water; then remove the vessel from the fire. Immediately add the kerosene and thoroughly agitate the mixture until a creamy solution results. The stock emulsion may be more conveniently made by pouring the mixture into the tank of a spray pump and pumping the liquid through the nozzle back into the tank for some minutes.

The stock solution, if well made, will keep for some months and is to be diluted before use. To make a ten per cent spray, the strength for trees in foliage, add to each one gallon of the stock solution about five and two-thirds gallons of water. For twenty and twenty-five per cent emulsions, for use on dormant trees and plants, use respectively about two and one-third and one and two-thirds gallons of water for each one gallon of stock emulsion. Agitate the mixture in all cases, after adding the water. The preparation of the emulsion will be simplified by the use of a naphtha soap. No heat will be required, as the kerosene will combine readily with the naphtha soap, in water, when thoroughly agitated. Double the quantity of naphtha soap given in the above formula, however, will be required, and soft or rain water should be used in making the emulsion. In regions where the water is hard this should first be broken with a little caustic potash or soda, as common lye, before use for dilution, to prevent the soap from combining with the lime or magnesia present, thus liberating some of the kerosene, or rain water may be employed.

NOTICE OF QUARANTINE.

The Federal Horticultural Board has given notice of a proposed quarantine of the New England and other states to prevent the spread of the white pine blister rust. The notice reads:

The secretary of agriculture has information that a dangerous disease, known as the white pine blister rust or Peridermium strobi Kleb., not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Minnesota, on account of which it appears necessary to quarantine them, together with certain other states or portions thereof, as indicated in the next paragraph hereof, in accordance with Section 8 of the Plant Quarantine act of August 20, 1912, as amended by the act of Congress approved March 4, 1917, and to prohibit or regulate the movement from said states to other states and territories of five-leafed pine nursery stock and currant and gooseberry stock.

It seems advisable to consider the establishment of this quarantine either at the line of the western boundary of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, or at the western boundary of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana, or at the Mississippi river, or at some other line within these states.

It also seems desirable to prohibit or regulate the movement of said stock from the most seriously infected states, viz.: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York, to those of less serious infection.

A public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Room 410 Bieber building, at 10 a. m., April 10, 1917, in order that any person interested in the proposed quarantine may be heard either in person or by attorney.

During the past year the white pine blister rust has spread alarmingly in the previously known infected areas in New England and has been discovered in new localities in the middle west. The increase in the powers of the secretary of agriculture to deal with the movement of dangerously infected domestic nursery stock, conferred by recent congressional action, has made more effective measures possible.

The importation of the five-leafed pine from Europe already is prohibited and it is proposed to establish a quarantine against currant and gooseberry plants. The notice reads:

The secretary of agriculture deems it necessary, in order to effectively prevent the introduction into the United States of the white pine blister rust or Peridermium strobi Kleb., to extend the provisions of notice of Quarantine No. 7, issued May 21, 1913, to forbid the importation of all currant and gooseberry plants from Europe and Asia.

In compliance with Section 7 of the Plant Quarantine act of August 20, 1912, a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Room 410 Bieber building, at 10 o'clock a. m., April 10, 1917, in order that all persons interested in the importation of currant and gooseberry plants from Europe and Asia may be heard either in person or by attorney.

SPRAY FOR PEAR LEAF WORM.

The pear leaf worm, an insect which does considerable damage to pear orchards, especially on the Pacific coast, is easily controlled by spraying. A contact spray is usually effective in controlling the insect in the larval stage, and should be applied when the blossoming period is about over and two-thirds of the petals have fallen. The following formula for a contact spray is given in a new professional paper of the bureau of entomology, U. S. Department of Agriculture: Fish-oil soap, one pound; water, twenty-five gallons; nicotine sulphate (forty per cent concentrate), one part to 1,200 parts of the spray. When the infestation is severe and promises destruction of the foliage, a poison spray made of four pounds of lead arsenate to 100 gallons of water should be used. The best time for applying this is when the holes in the leaves are not larger than one-half inch in diameter.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

The report from almost everyone is that business is heavy. Lent has not been thought of or noticed in the least, as the market is cleaned up every day in all kinds of flowers, with the exception of sweet peas of the lower grades. This year there were almost twice as many grown. The better grades hold well in price. American Beauties have increased in supply and the prices are lower. All other roses are bringing fair prices. The demand is heavy, but the supply is large enough to meet it. The carnation supply is large, but is cleaned up easily by reason of much funeral work. The bulbous stock is the best ever seen here, especially tulips and jonquils. A great many Darwin tulips meet with an exceptionally good sale. Lilies are more plentiful. Greens of all kinds continue scarce and are not good in some lines.

THE WHOLESALE FLORISTS OF PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA 1608-1620 Ludlow Street — NEW YORK 117 West 28th Street — BALTIMORE Franklin and St. Paul Streets — WASHINGTON 1216 H Street, N. W.

Various Notes.

Arthur Newell reports that he does not see any of the usual effects of the Lenten season. The men are working overtime to get out the orders, including advance orders for Easter.

T. J. Noll & Co. have had an unusually good week. They have cleaned up all cut stock daily. Mr. Noll is handling many American Beauties. His supply trade for Easter is heavy, especially in pot covers already made. Mrs. Noll spent last week visiting in St. Louis.

Frank Stuppy, of St. Joseph, was in the city last week. He was on his way home from New York.

W. J. Barnes had an unusually busy week in funeral work and a great sale of flowering pot plants of all kinds. He now has most of his greenhouses filled to the doors with spring bedding stock. He has a fine batch of spiræas in for his Easter trade.

Edward Ellsworth has a good line of stock at his greenhouses. He has a large quantity of young chrysanthemums, about 10,000 for next year.

E. Humfeld has his place well filled with plants of all kinds for Easter. As usual, he will have a fine batch of azaleas ready.

E. G. Bunyar, of Independence, has a fine line of spring bedding stock. He uses a Skinner irrigating system throughout his houses and expects to add more greenhouses.

Business across the state line has been exceptionally good, especially in funeral pieces and blooming pot plants. Orders are coming in fast for Easter stock and decorative work. W. J. B.

Hogan, W. Va.—Flowers have been sold on the same premises as drugs, fruits, candies and groceries, so perhaps it is nothing unusual for the Hogan Art Store to couple flowers with pictures, kodaks or painters' oils.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

After a long siege of disagreeable weather, this week brought with it delightful spring days. Trade has been good in all lines. The old Lenten bugaboo of diminished business seems to have missed us, for, despite the fact that there has not been much social activity, business has been excellent.

Roses are more plentiful, but as yet there is no oversupply. Carnations are about equal to the demand. Lilies have been scarce, but now are arriving in large quantities. Tulips and daffodils are a glut in the market. Extra fine sweet peas are so plentiful that cheap prices are necessary to move them.

The retailers are getting ready for the Easter trade. The stores are attractive with their blooming plants and combination baskets. Large funeral orders have helped to keep everybody busy.

Various Notes.

The Fox Flower Shop is an attractive store in the Jenkins building, corner of Fifth and Penn avenues. After April 1 a stand will be opened in the Arcade.

A. Krongold has rented a large store on Liberty avenue, near Olive street, where he is making a fine display of foliage and blooming plants for Easter. He purchased 2,000 azaleas recently and says he has cornered the azalea business in this city.

Miss Gertrude Renziehausen, an employee of the Ludwig Floral Co., was struck by an automobile while on her way home March 24. She was not seriously injured. Clarke.

Do It Now!

Go over your Rose Houses carefully and estimate the plants you need for replanting this Spring, and place your order. Roses are going to be scarce. The Manetti situation is such that those who get it are fortunate, and the demand is far greater than the limited supply. We have sold over 100,000 grafted Roses in the last two weeks. We have 200,000 more to sell. There is considerable building contemplated. "Changing from Carnations to Roses" is a frequent explanation made when placing an order. If you are short at planting time it will be your fault and not ours. The growing of grafted Roses is an industry in itself. At Cromwell the large quantity of Roses grown for cut flowers makes it possible to get scions that are first-class. We want your Rose Plant order, and we want to be able to say "yes" to your inquiry. Estimate your requirements and write us.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Preceding the Easter rush, business is quiet, but has been fair. With few society functions and funerals, the week has passed without much excitement or work. This is good in one way. The florists all over the city are at work planning for the Easter trade. The stores are being arranged so that every space can be utilized. The growers are also busy getting their stock ready for their customers.

Stock is coming in well. There are still lots of bulbous stock in daffodils, tulips, poeticus and jonquils. Prices range about $2 for these. Good quality roses are also coming in at prices from $4 upward. Richmond brings about $8, as does Ophelia, for which there is much demand.

Violets and forget-me-nots are in the market in good supply and have a steady demand. Some fine purple iris has been displayed by the florists, but there are only a few and they are hard to get. Some genistas and purple wistaria are in the stocks of a few florists, but there are only a few growers of these about the city. Plants are already coming in for the Easter market. Primroses, begonias and hydrangeas are in, but as yet they are not plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Lakewood cemetery greenhouses have some fine crotons, receiving about 500 from the east last week.

Easter Plants

We have our immense stock of Easter plants now ready to ship out, and we recommend the immediate placing and shipping of orders. Personal selection and growing of stock has enabled us to offer to the Trade as fine an assortment of plants as can be seen anywhere, of good commercial sizes and at the right price for good stock.

The Markets.

Trade was quieter last week—a lull before the Easter rush. Roses, carnations, callas and Easter lilies are plentiful. All kinds of bulbous stock, with the exception of Paper Whites, are in excellent supply, but the demand for these is good because prices are low. Some good snapdragons are seen, while sweet peas, violets and other flowers are plentiful enough to supply the wants of the trade. Potted stock is in good demand.

Various Notes.

H. G. Pauli is busy potting off spring stock. He has about 20,000 geraniums in 4-inch pots, as well as an abundance of other kinds of bedding plants. He looks forward to a big business in the near future.

Miss M. A. Tierney, of the Bills Floral Co., has added a large display case for ribbons, which has added materially to the appearance of the store.

Koopmann Bros. report a large wholesale demand for potted plants of all kinds. W. G.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Community garden work, suggested some time ago, is beginning to take form and it is probable that the idea will be in working order at an early date. At a meeting of representatives of the Newport Garden Association, the Home Garden Association, the Civil League, the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Board of Trade, held a few days ago, a committee was appointed to conduct the campaign.

Augustus Jurgens, of Chicago, is visiting his cousin, William Jurgens, of this city, for a few days.

A new range of greenhouses is among the improvements to be made at Stoneacre, recently purchased by Godfrey Loew from Mrs. Thomas. W. H. M.

Easter Greetings and the Chaps Who Grow 'Em.

NOW IS THE TIME to prepare for after-Easter business. Fill your space with 25-cent and 75-cent plants instead of 15 and 25. That means 'Easter Greeting.'' It's the most profitable plant grown. It sells on sight. It's a wonder. We are prepared with a fine stock for immediate shipment. Given a shift, they'll return you more quick cash than any plants you ever had. 2¼, 3 and 4-inch Easter Greeting and Lucie Becker, 7c, 9c and 15c each; Swabian Maid and Wurtembergia, 3 inch, 12c. We favor small buyer, because we know he'll come again. Absolute guarantee.

The Markets.

Trade was quieter last week—a lull before the Easter rush. Roses, carnations, callas and Easter lilies are plentiful. All kinds of bulbous stock, with the exception of Paper Whites, are in excellent supply, but the demand for these is good because prices are low. Some good snapdragons are seen, while sweet peas, violets and other flowers are plentiful enough to supply the wants of the trade. Potted stock is in good demand.

Various Notes.

H. G. Pauli is busy potting off spring stock. He has about 20,000 geraniums in 4-inch pots, as well as an abundance of other kinds of bedding plants. He looks forward to a big business in the near future.

Miss M. A. Tierney, of the Bills Floral Co., has added a large display case for ribbons, which has added materially to the appearance of the store.

Koopmann Bros. report a large wholesale demand for potted plants of all kinds. W. G.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Community garden work, suggested some time ago, is beginning to take form and it is probable that the idea will be in working order at an early date. At a meeting of representatives of the Newport Garden Association, the Home Garden Association, the Civil League, the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Board of Trade, held a few days ago, a committee was appointed to conduct the campaign.

Augustus Jurgens, of Chicago, is visiting his cousin, William Jurgens, of this city, for a few days.

A new range of greenhouses is among the improvements to be made at Stonecare, recently purchased by Godfrey Loew from Mrs. Thomas.

The Market.

The weather now is favorable for planting and everyone is hustling to make up for lost time. Thousands of carnations will go in the field this week and those who grow vegetables as a part of their business will find this one of the busiest weeks of the year.

The demand for seeds and bulbs over the counter is heavy now. Gladioli are being planted freely. Bedding plants will begin to move by the last of the week.

The Easter stock is being subjected to more heat or placed in cool houses, according to its progress. The outlook is for the best Easter trade the city has ever known, and most of the stock promises to be on time. There is little novelty in sight for Easter this season. Something good and decidedly different is needed for the Easter trade, it seems.

Various Notes.

We were told this week that the Lischey Gardens will be offered for sale soon. The location is good, and the gardens are a part of one of the oldest establishments in the south.

T. H. Joy was in St. Louis three days last week looking after business interests.

The funeral of one of Nashville's most prominent financiers last week called for more flowers than any funeral this city has seen for a long time. The business was generally divided among the florists.

Prof. G. M. Bentley, state entomologist and secretary of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, was in the city last week.

Geny Bros. are cutting largely of the best peas they have ever grown.

Daniel McIntyre is still confined to his bed, but seems to hold his own rather well.

The city is building a new park in the fire-swept district of East Nashville.

The Joys are fulfilling a large planting contract with the Golf and Country Club. F. B.

St. Paris, O.—Charles Maxon has succeeded Henry Burkomer in a florists' business here.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The approach of Easter is being vividly foreshadowed by the increasing number of department stores, corner groceries and fruit stands that are displaying potted bulbous stock. Few lilies have yet put in an appearance, but it is understood that the supply will be fully adequate to meet all demands. The cut by the outsiders is being felt already by the flower stores, but the unusually large call for funeral work tends to equalize the market.

In view of the city's successful planting day last spring, when thousands of rose bushes and other plants were put into the ground, Mayor Gainer has issued a proclamation to the people of the city, setting aside April 21 as Planting day in Providence this year. The arrangements for the planting day are being made by a special committee of the Providence Chamber of Commerce, which has unanimously agreed upon the bush honeysuckle, or Lonicera Tatarica, and golden bell, or Forsythia Fortunei. Superintendent of Parks Frederic C. Green, City Forester Alexander H. Johnson, Prof. E. K. Thomas, of the Rhode Island State College, and Secretary John J. Dunn, of the State Board of Agriculture, are assisting in the campaign. Last year 23,000 Dorothy Perkins climbing roses and spiræa were distributed.

Various Notes.

The town budget of Bristol, adopted last week, contained an appropriation of $150 for parks and $800 for the care and replacing of the famous old elms.

Timothy O'Connor had the decorations for the Corinthian Lodge of Masons on Ladies' night at the Turk's Head club, Tuesday evening, March 20.

Stephen Greene, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a business visitor in the city last week.

William Jurgens, of Newport, accompanied by his cousin, Augustus Jurgens, of Chicago, Ill., was in the city last week.

One of the greenhouses belonging to the range of James B. Canning, on Smith street, had a narrow escape from fire a few days ago. Fortunately, the flames were extinguished before they had attained much headway, but several hundred dollars' worth of damage was done to plants by smoke.

The annual appropriations of the town of North Attleboro, made last week, included $150 for public parks; $500 for tree warden; $400 for forest fires, and $2,500 for gypsy-moth department.

William E. Chappell, of Branch avenue, was taken to a private hospital last week for treatment for a nervous breakdown and complications.

The town of Warren has appropriated $300 for the care of trees during the next year.

Henry Patri, with Johnston Bros., is suffering from a severe attack of the grip.

Mr. Addelman was in the city last week calling upon the trade of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa. W. H. M.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The market last week was well supplied with stock. Beauties, of course, hold right up to their margin and clear readily at a good figure. Other roses are in more than sufficient supply, as well as carnations and bulbous stock. Some excellent snapdragons and sweet peas are to be had. Easter lilies and callas are also more plentiful. All kinds of potted plants are available and Easter lily plants are beginning to appear on the market. Violets and orchids sell briskly.

Various Notes.

Another Buffalo boy has joined the staff of Breitmeyer's Sons, at Detroit. L. Neubeck is the fortunate one. He is at the park store.

John S. Carter, of the Rock Flower Co., of Kansas City, Mo., stopped off at Buffalo while en route to the flower show at New York.

Emil Brucker and Wallace Eiss spent several days at the New York spring show.

The feature at S. A. Anderson's last week was a huge wreath of green magnolia leaves, trimmed with various kinds of fruit.

The Felton Flower Shop, formerly at 1375 Main street, has been moved to a new location in Utica court. This is a most advantageous location for a flower store. At this place there is one large window and ample store room. A. E.

Hutchinson, Kan.—The Stamm Floral Co. has changed ownership in the dissolution of the partnership of F. A. Smith and Cecil Wildin, the former owners. Harry L. Smith, for some time manager of the business, is the new owner. He will continue the downtown store and greenhouses, retaining the old firm name. William Eickenroth, of Denver, Colo., will be Mr. Smith's greenhouse manager.

WINGFOOT

Putting the Water On the Flowers

Were you spraying the carnations this morning?

Down the long aisle you pulled and tugged and strained, the poor hose twisting and flopping and kinking after you.

And when you had untangled the snarls and straightened the kinks, only a measly dribble greeted the drooping plants and flowers.

Cracks and breaks in the hose were stealing the water from them.

You can rid yourself of such annoyance by simply installing Goodyear Wingfoot Lawn Hose in all of your greenhouses.

Then does your morning sprinkle or washout become a pleasant duty.

Then do cinder and concrete walks and obstructing bench legs offer no damaging resistance to hose so well made.

Goodyear Wingfoot Hose is, in fact, amply fortified against greenhouse abuse.

The seamless tube is of active rubber and braided cotton that will not become hard and brittle, yet does not soften and "mash."

So well made is Goodyear Wingfoot Lawn Hose that every foot of it is guaranteed not to burst within two whole lawn hose seasons.

Ask your own supply dealer for further facts concerning Goodyear Wingfoot Lawn Hose service.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

UP GOES THE FREIGHT.

Growers in the cities where Pocahontas and New River smokeless coals are used are threatened with a further increase in the price of fuel. Declaring that the railroads of the country are facing a most serious situation by reason of greatly increased costs of operation and rapidly declining net earnings, a delegation of the presidents of the seven principal carriers of bituminous coal from the West Virginia fields appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission March 22 and asked approval of advances in freight rates.

The proposed advances would affect shipments to the Atlantic seaboard and the lake ports. The tariffs which have been filed provide for increases of 5 cents a ton to Hampton roads and Newport, 10 cents a ton to Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, and 15 cents a ton to the lake ports.

Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad system, acted as spokesman for the railroad executives. Reasons cited by him to show the immediate necessity for higher rates on coal and other freight included the advanced cost of materials and fuel, the Supreme court decision on the Adamson Wage Act, the scarcity, high price and inefficiency of labor in general, and the constant increases in taxes. Advances in fuel prices alone, Mr. Rea said, will involve an added cost of at least $37,000,000 a year to the seven railroads represented.

STOCK WAS NEARLY FROZEN.

Kindly give me your expert advice as to the best way of remedying the faults in the piping of my greenhouse. I had a steamfitter on the job, and I suspect he was thinking of steam instead of hot water. The greenhouse is 22x90 and twelve feet high to the ridge. The side walls are five feet high and the south wall contains two feet of glass. The house is well protected. I have a Wilks boiler, 36x48, with two 3-inch openings, from which are run two 2½-inch flows, which slope slightly upward in the greenhouse, so that the highest point is at the farther end from the boiler.

One flow feeds the coils at the north wall and under the center bench. The other flow feeds the coil under the south bench and the piping in a small store, 16x18 and ten feet high to the ceiling, in front of the greenhouse. The store is piped for about seventy-five square feet of radiation. The coils drop slightly toward the boiler. The coil at the north wall consists of six 1½-inch pipes; the center coil has four 1½-inch pipes and the south coil has six such pipes. All the coils are about eighty-one feet long and they run into a 3-inch main, which branches into two openings at the lower end of the boiler. The boiler is set in a 2-foot pit. There is a ¾-inch pipe from the main return to the expansion tank, which is three feet above the highest point. The chimney is about sixteen feet high and has a 10-inch flue. Each of the flows has an air cock at the highest point.

The temperature should be 60 to 65 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. On several occasions I have been nearly frozen out, when the thermometers outdoors indicated 14 to 16 degrees below zero. The highest temperature I could keep was 35 degrees, or just above freezing. Is there enough piping in the house? Which is the better system, uphill or downhill, as far as fuel or circulation is concerned? For some unknown reason, I have never been able to get the thermometer at the boiler to register over 200 degrees. C. F. C.—Ill.

So far as can be judged from the data furnished, there is no one thing to which the difficulty in heating the greenhouse can be ascribed. Although 200 degrees is a fair working temperature for the water in the boiler, there should be no difficulty in bringing it to the boiling point if the attempt is made. The fact that a boiler 36x48 inches will not bring the water above 200 degrees, when there is less than 900 square feet of radiation, indicates that there is something wrong either in the firing or with the draft from the boiler. While a chimney ten inches in diameter and sixteen feet high should answer for the foregoing radiation, it is possible that, owing to the character of the surroundings, a height of twenty-four feet would be none too much, especially as the boiler is considerably larger than necessary for the radiation.

On the other hand, if a temperature of 60 degrees is to be maintained, we would use at least 100 square feet of radiation in addition to what is listed, unless a closed system is used, and nothing will be gained in placing the water

Ramsburg Locking Pot

MADE OF MANILA BOARD

Our Manila Board Pots and Bands are perfection in style, strength, and quality. They are quickly set up and, being heavy, are easily filled and as easy to remove when plants are grown. They peel off as readily as a banana skin. You will appreciate this advantage when you have tried to remove a plant from a thin paper band or from a nailed-together pot. Thin paper sticks to the roots and practically becomes a part of the plant, while our MANILA BOARD peels off as a pot should—no trouble; no cuss words.

Scores of repeat orders prove all of the above points, plus better plants. Throughout the country there are millions of plants growing in our Manila Board bands and pots. On our own premises we have thousands of bands in use filled with carnations, geraniums, cannas, and various bedding plants.

You can find nothing better than the Ramsburg Locking Pot, made of Manila Board. We can make immediate shipments of all sizes. State whether wanted by express or freight. Send postal for samples and prices.

Our bands and pots are favorites with experiment stations. Last week we made shipments to four of them. The Michigan station at Ann Arbor has had three large shipments. Get your samples and join with the successful growers.

under pressure unless it can be raised above the boiling point.

For a house ninety feet long we would use fourteen 2-inch pipes for the returns. For the flows three 2½-inch pipes will be necessary, for good results in an open-tank system. The additional flow could be placed upon the plate of the south wall. A 2-inch flow to the store could be taken off from the main which supplies the 4-pipe coil. The present location of the flows supplying the coils under the middle and north benches need not be changed. If the 1½-inch returns are to be retained, we would use two additional pipes, placing one in each of the outside coils. While we prefer to run the flows downhill and connect the highest point of each flow with the expansion tank, we would not think it worth while to make the change.

When an open-tank system is used, we prefer to have the top of the boiler below the lowest point in the returns. This change alone would greatly increase the efficiency of the system, but it will not be satisfactory until it is possible to bring the water in the boiler to the boiling point. This would also be necessary before any benefit could be secured by placing the system under pressure. For use with a closed system no change would be necessary in the number or size of the flows and returns, and good results could be secured with the boiler as now placed.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

We have been enjoying typical April weather during the last week and vegetation shows signs of growth. The weather has not had a stimulating effect on the florists' business in this locality and it has fallen off considerably within the last week or ten days, funeral work being the main standby of the retail florist. There have also been a couple of large weddings, but outside of this the trade has been dull.

The supply of cut flowers is flooding the market, owing to the unseasonably warm weather. Roses are exceptionally plentiful and the quality remains good. The best varieties on the market are Russell, Ophelia, Shawyer, Sunburst and Richmond. The supply of American Beauties is not large. Carnations are plentiful, one grower remarking, "We have oceans of carnations."

Sweet peas are holding their own and, except for a slight curtailing of the length of the stems, there is no deterioration in their quality. Lily of the valley is noticeably more plentiful than it has been all winter. Violets are becoming scarce. Orchids are moderately plentiful and good prices prevail. Lilies, both Easter and calla, are in good supply and there is a host of varieties in bulbous stock available.

Green goods are scarcely available. Smilax is being held by the growers for Palm Sunday and Easter. The former day sees a large demand for greens and flowers for decorating the city churches.

In the plant line the varieties are numerous, and include some specimen plants of cinerarias, cyclamens, azaleas, rhododendrons, lilacs, rambler roses, primroses and bulbous stock in every seasonable variety.

Various Notes.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey had charge of a large and fashionable wedding March 24. There were six in the bridal party, who carried baskets and colonial bouquets of orchids, Shawyer roses and sweet peas, while the bridal bouquet was composed of white orchids and Kaiserin roses made in shower effect. The decorations at both the church and house were elaborate.

Miss Catherine Vesey has just received her new 4-passenger Auburn roadster.

Miss Margaret Vesey has gone to Terre Haute, Ind., to attend the state meeting of the King's Daughters, of which she is an ex-president.

Mrs. Cecil Max, who had been spending several weeks in this city visiting her father, Judge W. J. Vesey, and family, has left for her home in Muncie, Ind.

A recent visitor was a representative of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago, who called on the trade here on his way to the home office. He reports business brisk this season.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are making preparations for the Easter business. Their greenhouses on Walton avenue are a revelation in the florist's skill. Bulbous stock in every known commercial variety is grown there, and their roses, carnations, Easter lilies and miscellaneous stock are looking exceptionally fine.

Mrs. Richard Blossom, of the Flick Floral Co., gave a talk on the American gardens at a recent meeting of the Round Table Club. R. F.

Gentlemen: * * * We would say that we used all the Paper Pots we got from you to raise tomato plants.

Our weather is often very severe late in May, therefore we have to keep them inside and we were certainly very satisfied with the splendid results obtained from the Paper Pots.

In fact, WE DID NOT HAVE HALF ENOUGH TO FILL OUR ORDERS. WE CHARGED EXACTLY TWICE THE AMOUNT we did other years and yet our CUSTOMERS INSISTED ON HAVING THOSE IN PAPER POTS.

In our hot sun they never wilted.

We reserved a few for Primulas and certainly have some fine ones.

It was easier to keep them watered and growing during the hot months. Wishing you success, Blackadar & Co., Dauphin Nursery and Greenhouses, Dauphin, Manitoba, Can.

"I used five thousand of your 2-inch Paper Pots and was very pleased with them.

"I grew Tomato plants, Salvias, Garden Pinks, Asters and Pansy plants.

"EVERYTHING DID FINE.

"I sold the plants on our city market.

"Customers were well pleased with the Paper Pots because they make a neat package.

'I got the same price for plants in Paper Pots as in the same size clay pots and I GREW LOTS MORE PLANTS IN THE SAME SPACE."

William Dew, 202 Hillside Ave., Des Moines, Iowa.

"I raised Tomatoes, Cabbage, Eggplant and Peppers in the Paper Pots. From about 2,700 Tomato plants I picked 1,140 MARKETABLE CRATES of tomatoes, which brought me $600."

D. B. Moses, Purchase, New York.

"We raised vegetable plants and asters in your Paper Pots. They gave BETTER PLANTS THAN THOSE IN CLAY POTS AND SOLD AT DOUBLE PRICE. We expect to use them for carnations this year."

SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION

Dear Sirs: The Paper Pots purchased of you were for use in the Formal Gardens of the * * * San Diego Exposition.

These pots proved a grand innovation, wherein I have been able to replace and rotate all kinds of plants during the entire year.

After young plants, either from seed sown in the Pots or picked from flats, were fairly well established I plunged the pots where I wanted the plants to remain, and they went on as if to the manor born.

The loss was simply unobservable.

This covered Canterbury Bells, Asters, Linarias, Gaillardias, etc.

The Pots, being square, took up less room in the flats, being light are easily transported to the garden, the paper rotting gradually in the ground the roots are never retarded or disturbed.

Congratulating you, I am very truly yours, F. Edward Gray, San Diego, Cal.

"We used your Paper Pots for Tomatoes, Geraniums and Ferns.

DIRT BANDS

CREASED DIRT BANDS

1—Should a Dirt Band be CREASED and the ENDS held together until it is set in place? Yes.

OUR DIRT BANDS ARE CREASED, CUT AND SCORED BY MACHINE TO THE EXACT SHAPE and the ENDS HELD TOGETHER.

NOT "LOCKED"

2—Should the ends of Dirt Bands be "LOCKED"? NO. Because "locking" does not serve any purpose and is a serious detriment.

If the ends are "LOCKED" the band has to be TORN OFF when the plant is taken out.

After the bands are filled and watered the soil settles tight against the insides and they cannot be unlocked.

TEARING the ends of the bands apart will break many of the "balls" or cubes of soil.

Get a "locked" band, lock it and try tearing it apart.

Ours are made to SLIP APART easily, without tearing, to let the plant out.

Our bands are made of the same special, tough paper that has been PROVED 5 YEARS to be perfect for the purpose.

They are the BEST Band on the market, but also the CHEAPEST.

Mr. H. B. Weaver of Bird-in-Hand, Pa., grows Carnations, Mignonettes, Sweet Peas and other cut flowers. He says of our Dirt Bands: "I believe any one using these bands will become a regular customer"

(He got 5000 Dirt Bands in 1913, 60,000 in 1914, 70,000 in 1915, 50,000 in 1916 and has just ordered 60,000 for 1917.)

Mr. J. M. Gager, Willimantic, Conn., says: "The crop from the plants raised in your Dirt Bands PAID ME THE BEST of any crop of tomatoes grown SINCE I HAVE BEEN IN THE BUSINESS."

(Mr. Gager has just ordered 10,000 4-in. bands for this year.)

Mr. Herbert W. Coulter, Avon, Mass., says: "I am so well pleased with the Dirt Bands that I DO NOT SEE HOW A MARKET GARDENER CAN AFFORD TO GROW PLANTS WITHOUT THEM."

"I have now about 14,000 Carnation plants started in 2-inch Bands, which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

"I also have about 20,000 Aster plants transplanted in 2-inch Bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND as would be the case if I used 2-inch pots.

"I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER."

Yours truly, H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa.

"I used the Rochelle Dirt Bands for early Tomatoes and Cucumbers with VERY GREAT SUCCESS.

"The plants grew well and did not mind the shift from the frames to the open. I had an IMMENSE CROP of both tomatoes and cucumbers and both started picking fully 15 DAYS BEFORE THE USUAL TIME in this section. I shall use them more extensively this season."

Chas. H. Weaver, Choice Fruits and Vegetables, Dunnville, Ont., Can.

"I find your Dirt Bands very good for the growing of Carnation plants.

"I am enough pleased with my one season's experience with the Dirt Bands TO CONTINUE TO USE THEM EXCLUSIVELY."

Wm. H. Feierbend, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

"We used your Dirt Bands for tomatoes, asters, beans, sweet corn, squash and melons.

"WE GOT GOOD PLANTS."

W. H. & W. N Gage, Cochituate, Mass.

"We raised tomato plants in the 5-inch Dirt Bands you shipped us. Plants become root bound quicker in clay pots and REQUIRE LONGER TO START OFF after setting in the field. BANDS WILL GIVE BETTER PLANTS THAN POTS." F. B. Murdoch & Co., Kingston, Pa.

"We have used your Dirt Bands with great success in forwarding vegetable and flowering plants."

C. R. Clarke, Supt. of Farming and Gardening, Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster, O.

"I used your Dirt Bands for tomatoes, peppers and eggplants; also for mignonette, heliotrope and helichrysum.

"I and my trade were pleased wtih them.

"I shall use more the coming season."

The Market.

There has been no shortage of stock this week, spring-like weather bringing the stock along after a fashion to meet any Lenten need. At the same time, business has not been bad, for the retail stores have been taking large quantities of flowers and moving them steadily to the public. Those who have glass of their own all have bulbous stock that they are pushing in preference to flowers they must buy on the market.

The prospect for Easter is excellent. Preparations are being made on a large scale and everyone is confident there will be a big business. Stock should be equal to all requirements.

Various Notes.

J. J. Beneke has been laid up since the flower show with a bad attack of rheumatism.

It was an oversight that caused the exhibit of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, to be omitted from the list of trade exhibits at the show, printed last week. Not only was the exhibit as conspicuous as any at the show, but the exhibitor paid $100 for the space and had two men, including General Manager Kurowski, on the job from start to finish.

Scranton, Pa.—Members of the Scranton Florists' Club at a recent meeting decided not to hold the fourth annual flower show of the club, which was scheduled for March 14 to 17. Instead, the exhibition will be held in the fall. The postponement was made because many of the out-of-town exhibitors would be too busy with displays at the New York, Philadelphia and Boston shows. Members of the show committee are: William MacDonald, chairman; F. J. Moran, T. B. McClintock, Miss A. L. Besancon, Miss G. Schultheis, C. W. Baldwin and Anton Schultheis.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The warm weather has increased the receipts of cut flowers and plants, the latter including hydrangeas, rhododendrons and bulbous stock. The increased supplies have resulted in a recession of prices on some items. Geraniums have made their appearance, but apparently they will not be plentiful. Roses, Easter lilies and callas are good. Carnations are abundant.

Various Notes.

A florists' business has been started at 707 Broad street under the name of Benson & Co. Those interested are William Benson, K. Catsephos and John Dowrakos.

John Blakely, of Elizabeth, says business has never been better than this year. There seems to be more money about, he says. Potted plants have experienced a large sale during the last few months.

Charles Stamberg has opened a store at 554 Orange street. He calls himself the Roseville Florist. R. B. M.

GERANIUM SOIL TOO RICH.

I am sending under separate cover a sample of my Ricard geraniums. There seems to be something wrong with them, but I have not been able to determine what it is. Other geraniums in the same bed as yet are not affected and S. A. Nutt and King Edward in a bed right next to this are all right. Can you tell me the cause of this trouble? E. G. P.—O.

The plant was frozen when received. It had the appearance of a healthy plant, with good active roots, and seemed to be unusually vigorous. Perhaps you are growing your plants in too rich soil. I would suggest that you add some more sand to your soil, to give it porosity; also a little fine bone. Rather than use rotted manure, use a 4-inch pot of fine bone to a bushel of loam. This will promote a stocky, sturdy growth and make the plants more floriferous. C. W.

Springfield, Ill.—Hembreiker & Cole have made plans to enlarge their range here this spring.

Ogden, Utah.—F. J. Hendershot has noted that the bone refuse from the local million-dollar packing house is shipped east to be ground and then shipped back to the florists here. He thinks he will save a part of it the thousand-mile journey by putting in a small grinding plant.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

While this section of our letter may be growing monotonous to the readers, it is with pleasure we write of the continued good business being done by the Louisville florists. Indeed, the trade seems to be growing from day to day. Last Sunday many of the houses remained open all day to handle the heavy volume of business. All classes of floral work are in heavy demand.

Outside jonquils are appearing and are meeting with ready sales, being used as fast as brought in. Flowers are moving steadily. The ever increasing supply of roses and carnations is being met with a like demand. Blooming plants are arriving in numbers now and are making a brave show in the shops.

At the greenhouses of all local growers the quality of the plants for the great flower day is gratifying. The stock has never looked better and the great quantities should line the pockets of the trade with an extra amount of velvet.

Various Notes.

The John Bettmann Co. furnished nearly all of the flowers for the victims of the cyclone, the entire force working all night both Saturday and Sunday.

The Jacob Schulz Co. staged a window last week which at times promised to congest traffic. The sale of bird houses was featured and many attractive designs shown. The window was screened and birds of many varieties, fluttering among the foliage and bathing in the pools, drew the attention of the passers-by.

We must congratulate Louis Bryant on the arrival of a boy. Mr. Bryant is the popular representative of Anders Rasmussen.

August Baumer has added a handsome new car to his delivery equipment. It outshines any car in the flower trade at present.

W. B. Franz has left the employ of F. Walker & Co. and we understand has accepted the position of superintendent on one of the large estates at Glenview, Ky. G. G. W.

Glenwood Springs, Colo.—Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Lewis, partners in business as well as in the home, have leased their Charlsen Flower Shop at Emporia, Kan., for two years, and have purchased the Glenwood Greenhouses here.

ABOUT THAT COMPOST PILE

Is the scarcity of Stable Manure delaying you in the building of your season's Compost Pile?

Do you know that one ton of Magic Composting Fertilizer, guaranteed to analyze 2.75 to 3 per cent Ammonia, 3 per cent Phosphoric Acid and 1 per cent Potash, will go as far as five tons of ordinary Manure.

HERE ARE THE REASONS:

	Magic Composting Fertilizer	Original Stable Manure
Plant Food	7 per cent	1½ per cent
Humus	85 "	23½ "
Undecomposed Matter	5 "	15 "
Moisture	3 "	60 "

In dry state 2 to 3.5 per cent.

Note carefully: If you use Magic Composting Fertilizer, you will save four-fifths of the expense involved in the handling and hauling of Stable Manure.

SAVES MONEY, LABOR, TIME

With the ever increasing difficulty of obtaining suitable Stable Manure for your Compost Pile, it will certainly pay you to investigate the value of Magic Composting Fertilizer for this purpose. Many of our largest growers have done so with large saving of labor and resultant profit.

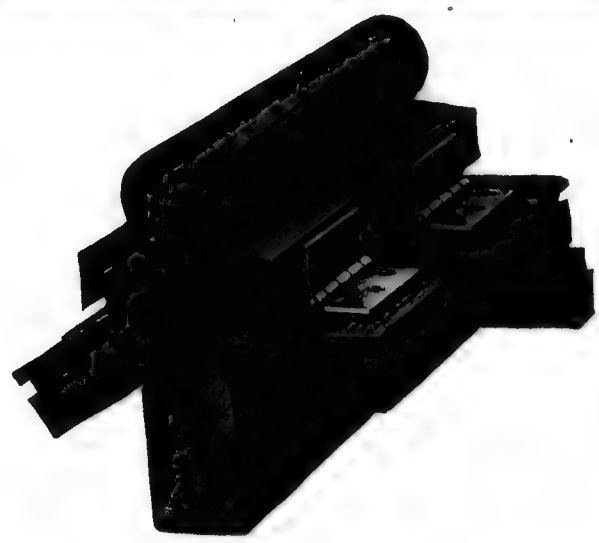
...NEWS NOTES...

Lincoln, Neb.—Frederick Eiche is erecting a greenhouse on South Twentieth street. Mr. Eiche, by the way, is a physician.



Medicine Hat, Alta., Can.—Alois Wiedeman, formerly associated with the Rosery Flower Co. here, but now residing at Irvine, has decided to start a florists' business in Prussia—that is, Prussia, Sask. Although the town of Prussia is nearer the north pole than is Medicine Hat, Mr. Wiedeman will not have to depend on Eskimos for his business.

Dayton, O.—Perhaps some of the old-timers have recollections of one James Dallas Treadway, who many years ago was one of the town's well known florists and nurserymen. Mr. Treadway died the other day in a soldiers' home in Tennessee, in his seventy-third year. He was a veteran of the Civil war. Funeral services were held at the home of his daughter in this city.

Jeannette, Pa.—E. Bushyager, whose specialties are "fresh eggs, fruits and flowers," has had frequent trouble with a rash on his face and a recent attack has affected his eyelids, nose and cheeks. His doctor tells him it is some kind of local poisoning and he thinks it comes from rubbing his face with his hands after handling nicotine insecticides.

Olivette, Mo.—Charles Steidle is doing away with all his Killarneys, with the exception of one-half a house of white, as he thinks they are a dead letter. Mr. Steidle will plant one house each of Russell and Ophelia, planting Shawyer for the rest, which he intends to give a thorough try-out this year, having grown a few to his entire satisfaction this season. He says that he was not at all troubled with mildew and thinks that growing good, clean Shawyer is merely a matter of proper ventilation.

Columbus, O.—When Frank S. Miller, aged 51, struck his brother-in-law, George Thompson, aged 67, on the head with a flower pot the other day, the latter wielded a knife, inflicting wounds on Miller's left arm and abdomen. He was taken to Lawrence hospital. The trouble occurred at the range of the Columbus Floral Co. Miller is manager of the concern, and Thompson secretary and treasurer. Five years' business transactions had led to various quarrels that terminated in the wounding of Miller. His injuries were not serious.

RIDGE

It's Leak Tight

IT'S easy enough to say a ridge is tight.

It's easy enough to say that the leak drips are condensation.

It's easy enough to finally declare that no one can make an absolutely leakless ridge when ventilating sash are used on both sides.

With a hard, beating, wind-driven rain, we doubt if it's possible to shut out every drop. But if any ridge is practically leak tight, this one of ours is.

That angle-shaped groove prevents the water from creeping in. When it strikes that groove it drops on to the vent sash. If every part of the sash could be held as snug and tight as at the hinges, there would be no leaks.

To overcome this, we mill the main part of the ridge with a special curve. The sash is also curve milled.

When the curve of the sash strikes the curve of the ridge, a leverage is produced that sort of pries tight shut every inch of the sash's length. Everyone who has it, says it is absolutely tight.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

A PERFECT GUTTER
"LEAK-PROOF" (Patent Pending)

When planning the details of your new houses, the question what kind of gutters to use will be of vital importance. Shall it be a metal gutter (you know they will sweat and drip in cold weather, be burning hot in summer, will rust and cost an enormous price, especially this year)? Or use the old wood gutter, with its probability of leaks which before annoyed you so much? Let us submit you our estimate with our "LEAK-PROOF" gutter, made of the best grade of Louisiana Red Cypress. This new style gutter eliminates the objectionable features of other gutters and will give you PERFECT SATISFACTION.

CONTROL OF MUSHROOM PESTS.

Methods of controlling mushroom pests, such as maggots, mites, springtails, sowbugs, slugs and crickets, are described in Farmers' Bulletin 789, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Prevention of damage to cultivated mushrooms by insects and other creatures, according to the author of the bulletin, C. H. Popenoe, entomological assistant in the Bureau of Entomology, begins with the construction of the mushroom house, which should be as tight as possible, with outlets capable of being tightly closed. The windows and ventilators should be screened with fine wire gauze, as this forms an excellent prevention against the entrance of the small fungous gnats or flies and the mites which they carry.

Mushroom spawn should be purchased only from reliable dealers, as otherwise insects may be introduced with the spawn. As gnats may also be brought into the house through the agency of manure, special attention should be given to fermenting the compost uniformly, to insure a heat which is sufficient to destroy maggots and other pests that may be present in the manure.

Where the soil is infested, the author advises sterilizing the soil of the benches by heating it to a temperature of 150 degrees, while fumigation with carbon bisulphide just previous to spawning is productive of good results in destroying maggots in the compost. Carbon bisulphide vapor, however, is inflammable and even explosive when mixed with air and brought into contact with fire or sparks, or when heated to a sufficiently high temperature, and great care should be used in handling it. Destruction of adults or flies in mushroom houses can be effected by fumigation with nicotine preparations or pyrethrum.

Sowbugs may be detected at night by the aid of a lantern and killed, or hot water may be poured along the cracks in the boards and in other places where the bugs may be concealed by day.

The bulletin also contains suggestions for poisoned baits which are effective against sowbugs and crickets, and remedies for slugs.

Service

Metropolitan Greenhouse Service
the utmost in efficiency and—results

No matter what the initial cost of a greenhouse amounts to, it is in every instance a good investment, provided the revenue results are proportionate, and the cost of maintenance remains at a minimum. But no matter how little the initial cost, it is far too much for unsatisfactory returns, with constantly increasing upkeep and repair expenses.

Therefore, as the quality of materials used in the construction of all greenhouses is, after all, a matter of contract specifications, this organization bases its claims upon the high character of its labor and its constant endeavor to render a service which is at all times the utmost in efficiency, economy and results.

The reliability of this organization has been conclusively proven by the fact that it has not merely sustained, but heightened its prestige for so long a period.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

AGMCO AGMCO AGMCO

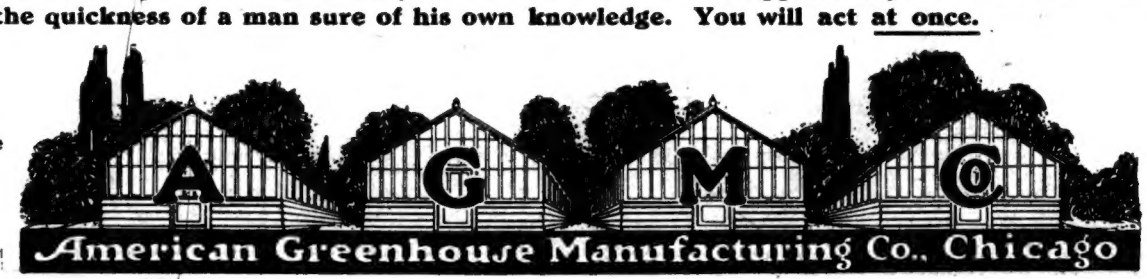
a solution of the high cost of materials—

The AGMCO "Cantlek" wooden gutter is a new invention brought out on account of the present high cost of steel and iron products.

It is unique among wooden gutters in that it embodies new principles of gutter construction by locking the sills to the bottom plate and filling the joint with a white lead-and-putty mixture.

The sill will always line up straight with the plate, as it must fit over the bevel on the plate. When the sill is put on, it is hooked into the groove and forced against the bevel side of the plate. This draws the sill down tight and makes the tongue fit snugly into the groove on top of the plate.



When the sills are in place and the groove is filled with white lead-and-putty mixture, you have a water-tight, flat gutter. The mixture won't run down and out, as in all other gutters, but will fill up the little trough on top of the plate. After this sets, your gutter is like one piece.

This bevel and groove sounds the death knell of all other wooden gutters. It's the solution that greenhouse-makers have been looking for these sixty years. You can't afford the old leaky, crooked, water-soaked wooden gutter. Our "CANTLEK" pattern is the only pattern worth owning.

All sash bars are joined to the gutter with our special "Triple Screw" bar brackets. These brackets prevent rot and split ends. Can you afford to spoil gutters and bars that cost you money by nailing them on in the old-fashioned way?

You alert, cost-saving experts—you keen business masters of the greenhouse world—you will seize upon this with avidity! You will hail it as an opportunity! You will act with the quickness of a man sure of his own knowledge. You will act at once.

Sell yourself successful crops—

—you can do it by growing in AGMCO houses. Ask Daut Brothers, of Decatur, Ill. They know.

How do they know?

—they have four of the best reasons in the world for knowing. And these are?—four of the finest steel frame houses ever erected. They are 36x300 feet—each one of them.

And, mind you, the whole plant—four steel frame greenhouses, an up-to-the-minute brick service building, a McKee heating system and a 100-foot radial chimney—everything is AGMCO.

Do you know what Daut Brothers did when they gave the contract for their entire plant to the AGMCO? They sold themselves successful crops.

Don't think for a minute that Daut Brothers have any monopoly on this royal road to wealth. They haven't. It's an open road. Where is it?

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The three large houses you put up this year for us are now completed and planted with roses and carnations, and we wish to compliment you on your new style of steel construction.

We consider that the use of channel iron in the construction of greenhouses is the best idea ever put into use in greenhouse building, as it gives more strength to the house for the amount of shade than any other type we know of.

This last addition to our plant gives us now about 300,000 feet of glass, all of which is of your construction, and the new houses are so much superior to the old that there is no comparison between them, although the old houses are very fine houses.

Your new all-steel house is a marvel of strength, lightness and beauty, and not nearly as expensive as we thought it would be; and we would like to have the privilege of recommending it to other growers who want to build good greenhouses, and would be glad to show our new houses to anyone as an example of fine greenhouse construction.

We wish to thank you also for the prompt attention you gave to the few kicks we made on questions of immaterial importance, and hope to have the pleasure of doing more business with you. Respectfully yours,

(Signed) Miller Floral Co.,
